MASSIE VERDICT: ALL GUILTY

CERMAK NAMES 2 LAWYERS TO SCHOOL BOARD

Action Preliminary to Budget Fight.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The fight starts Monday to slash at least $50,000,000 from the $90,130,000 school budget. That is the reported objective of Mayor Cermak, and in the opinion of Ald. John S. Clark, chairman of the council finance committee, such a cut in expense is necessary.

Preliminary to the battle the mayor yesterday appointed two new school trustees. At the same time the city council delayed approval of the tax levy ordinance of the board of education.

New Trustees Are Lawyers.

The new trustees are lawyers, in sympathy with the mayor's economy policies, and both reported to be aggressive fighters. One is Orville J. Taylor of the law firm of Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden, of which Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel for Mayor Cermak, is a member. The other is Ernest Buehler of the firm of Lucius, Buehler & Lucius. Both appointments were immediately confirmed by the council.

Mr. Taylor is a graduate of Northwestern university, and attained prominence about ten years ago when he served as a special assistant to the United States attorney general in the railway injunction cases. He was commissioned as a major of cavalry during the world war.

Mr. Buehler's first experience in public affairs was as an assistant state's attorney under Maclay Hoyne. Later, he was Swiss consul in Chicago for a number of years. In the prosecutor's office he had much to do with tax matters and therefore should be well equipped for the pressing problem of the school board. These two new men take the places of Trustees Walter Brandenburg and Oscar Durante, whose terms expired.

Has Four of Eleven Members.

Technically Mayor Cermak has now four of the eleven members of the board, last year's appointees being Trustees Robert F. Carr and Mrs. W. S. Hefferan. While the other seven trustees are appointees of a former mayor, President L. E. Myers and William D. McJunkin voted against the $90,000,000 budget, as did Trustee Carr.

Mrs. Hefferan, however, voted for it and her specialty has been to urge the claims of the teachers. She, however, is expected to line up for the mayor's economy program, unless it involves a further reduction in the compensation of the teachers.

So friends of the mayor hope that he will have six of the eleven votes favoring a slash in school expenses. Some went so far as to predict that Trustee English will also turn against the $90,000,000 budget, which the lack of tax collections has now demonstrated cannot be financed. In that event, there would be seven on the side of the taxpayers.

Mayor Is Pleased.

After the council meeting, Mayor Cermak said: "I have appointed the two best men available and I am certain they are in harmony with my desire to cut the cost of government."

The refusal of the city council to adopt the financial requests of the school board will prevent it from getting $5,970,105 in cash, which it needs to meet current obligations. One request was that the city council pass the board's 1932 tax levy ordinance calling for $68,910,020. If that had been passed the county clerk would be required to spread a tax accordingly, and there would be no further tax reduction.

The board is legally unable to issue 1932 tax warrants, until that tax levy ordinance is passed, so the board cannot obtain cash by peddling 1932 warrants.

Plans Warrant Exchange.

It was the plan of the trustees to take $3,410,105 of the 1932 warrants, if the levy had passed, and place them in the city treasury in return for a like amount of 1931 tax warrants, which would be used to pay current obligations. The board's request for this procedure was sent to the council finance committee.

The third request of the board was to substitute its own bonds for $2,560,000 of 1928 tax warrants now held in the city treasury. That, too, was sent to the finance committee.

Mr. Buehler was sworn in as a trustee yesterday afternoon. Mr. Taylor, who was attending a funeral, will take his oath this morning. Both will be present Monday at the special meeting of the board called to consider the McJunkin resolution pro-

HUEY P. LONG HURLS WRATH AT HIS OWN PARTY

Angry Senator Quits Committees.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.] — Senator Huey P. [call me Kingfish] Long of Louisiana screamed himself into a red faced passion in the senate this afternoon; yelled denunciations at Minority Leader Joe Robinson for not "sweatin' down the rich" in the pending tax bill, and hollered out his resignation from all committees because he was "one Democrat who don't want to go along with the present Democratic leadership."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, ice on top, but angry clear through, administered placid, periodic sentences of chastisement at the Kingfish with whom he so recently "dunked" potlikker, characterized the resignation as "a comic opera performance," and, turning toward his fellow Democrats, told them in a voice husky with emotion that he'd willingly resign his leadership any day they wanted him to, but he would not resign his principles. Those principles, he declared, put present governmental function above party politics.

How Republicans Like It.

Up jumped Senator Copeland [Dem., N. Y.]. In his best medico-manner he surveyed the somewhat disheveled Mr. Long and said: "By training I am poorly fitted to indulge in rough and tumble debate, but I do want to say that we on the Democratic side of the aisle pledge our faith to the senior senator from Arkansas. He has excited his leadership in the best possible way in these difficult times."

Meanwhile the Republicans sat back and enjoyed the show; tried not to let on just how much they enjoyed it.

It all started peacefully enough with Huey Long wanting to know what had happened to his recent amendment to the tax bill, making it illegal for any person to have an annual income of more than a million dollars; forbidding the inheritance of a fortune of more than five million.

Senator Robinson scoffed at the resolution; termed it confiscation of wealth.

Long Starts Tirade.

Then Long jumped up, waved his cerise handkerchief in the air, flung back his curly black hair, and started in. He smashed into the Democrats for taking orders from big business in writing the new revenue measure; he shouted out his favorite statistics about 59 per cent of the wealth being in the hands of 1 per cent of the people.

Then, turning his volley on Minority Leader Robinson he cried out:

"When it comes to a campaign this fall with a man running on the Farmer-Labor ticket advocating a reduction in swollen fortunes, against a man running on the Democratic ticket advocating ideas sounded by the senator from Arkansas, then I'm goin' to vote for the Farmer-Laborite. And when it comes to a man running on the Republican ticket advocating a reduction in swollen fortunes as God Almighty ordained and as against a Democrat sounding the ideas of Barney Baruch, I'm gonna vote for the Republican."

Screams Committee Resignations.

Swirling around as if he were catching a ball, he jumped straight in the air, came down balanced, beat the table with his fist and screamed out this announcement:

"I send to the desk my resignation from every committee in the United States senate that has been given to me by the Democratic leadership."

The clerk read the committees—naval affairs, manufacturers, commerce, and inter-oceanic canals.

Suffering, starving people, he argued, have looked to the Democrats for help and looked in vain.

"But there's got to be a new leadership," he shouted. "We cannot sit here in this congress and tell the people that they can swap the devil for the witch. The people of this country are wanting relief and they do not have to eat a whole beef to tell when it is tainted."

Robinson Replies Quietly.

In the midst of the cascade of words Senator Robinson quietly summoned a page boy, who returned presently with a glass of water. Slowly the minority leader sipped it. It was a signal that he was going to answer the junior senator from Louisiana and the press gallery, already crowded, was packed still more.

With dignity Mr. Robinson rose. He began very slowly:

"Mr. President, any man who

Milk Drivers Vote to Take 10% Pay Cut

Six thousand of the 7,200 union milk wagon drivers in Chicago, at a meeting held last night in Carmen's hall at 220 South Ashland avenue, voted to accept a wage cut of $5 a week, or 10 per cent. They also agreed to take reductions in commissions, which are expected, with the straight wage slash, to lower the drivers' incomes by about 12 per cent or more.

Under the old scale the drivers received $50 a week for delivering a minimum of 1,333 units a week—a unit being a pint or a quart of milk or a bottle of cream. This meant that the driver was paid the same for a pint delivery as for a quart. Over the minimum delivery amount the driver was paid extra commissions, with the pints counting just as much for him as the quarts. From now on it will require two pints to equal a quart credit.

With the revision of the units so that a driver gets a smaller credit for the smaller bottles it is believed that the average amount of milk delivered by each man will be raised about 2 to 4 per cent.

Milk Price Cut Indicated.

The agreement accepted by the union members was tentatively made by union officers and representatives of the dairy companies after a series of conferences over the last few weeks. It was reported that the object of these meetings was to cut costs so that a reduction of a cent on each bottle of milk, either pint or quart, could be made to the consumer.

Robert G. Fitchie, president of the union, told his men that economic conditions forced them to accept the slash and that a compromise on the demands of the union and the companies had been reached. The meeting lasted several hours and the balloting was by no means unanimous, many of the drivers preferring to hold out for the old rate of pay, according to reports.

The new scale is to be in effect for two years, subject to revision, under certain conditions, at the end of one year.

Other Workers Expect Cut.

Negotiations are now on for a wage cut for inside workers in Chicago dairies, and a decision on the percentage of reduction is expected to be made on Tuesday. These inside workers have been receiving a minimum of $44 a week, with cashiers, foremen and highly skilled workers getting a higher rate. All are said to be expecting a cut.

During the bargaining between dairy company representatives and the union, it was reported that farm producers of milk might be asked to take a lower price for their milk. Don M. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, with 18,000 farm members, has asserted that any such move will be resisted. He said the farmers' income from milk already had been cut more than twice the percentage of the reduction accepted by the union.

He pointed out that the farmers in the last two years have taken two cuts that enabled the distributors to lower delivered milk costs 2 cents a quart. The distributors argue that they have been carrying a burdensome surplus of milk from the Pure Milk association since the volume of retail sales fell off and that, as a result, their profits are negligible.

OLD MASTERS SHRINK IN VALUE AT AUCTION SALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 29.—Old masters are without a market in Europe. The sales rooms of Christie's was packed today for the auction of 30 paintings, including one by Romney, one by Lawrence, two by Reynolds, and three by Raeburns, but the crowd was backward in bidding and kept prices far below previous records.

The Romney portrait, which realized $24,000 in 1909, sold this afternoon for $7,200. A portrait by Reynolds of Viscount Donough More brought only $3,500 and another portrait by the same artist, which sold for $3,400 a few years ago, was knocked down for half that.

Bomb Causes $5,000 Loss in Fur Plant

Warfare between New York and Chicago furriers was revealed early this morning when a powerful dynamite bomb was exploded in the plant of the Superior Fur Dressing and Dyeing company at 1646 North Kostner avenue.

Damage to the plant was estimated at $5,000. Another $1,000 or more damage was done to the windows of neighboring factories, including the United States Gypsum company, 1717 North Kostner avenue, and the North Western Expanded Metal company, 1719 North Kostner avenue.

The blast from the bomb rocked the northwest side for miles and was heard as far east as the lake shore.

Owners Tell of Threat.

From Michael and Joseph Shapiro, 3148 North Kedzie avenue, owners of the fur plant, Cragin police learned the probable motives underlying the attack. According to the brothers much of their business comes from New York. They deal in raw furs.

Some time ago, they said, they received warnings from eastern furriers to refrain from reaching into the New York territory. A "cocoanut," New York term for a bomb, would be sent, they were warned.

Police Guard Withdrawn.

The Shapiros notified police and for two months a guard was posted at the factory. The guard also saw the brothers to their homes. The police protection was lifted last week when danger from the New Yorkers was deemed over.

MILLS URGES U. S. STATE BODY TO EASE TAX BURDEN

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—A national commission to devise means for coordinating state and federal taxation was urged tonight by Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, in a speech before the bar of the city of New York.

He suggested that the commissioners should be named at once by joint action of President Hoover and the governors' conference.

Declaring that taxes of all sorts collected in 1930 by the federal, state and local governments of the United States amounted to $10,248,000,000, or approximately one-seventh of the national income for that year, Mr. Mills went on to cite the undesirable effects of duplicate taxation.

The largest single tax, that on real estate, is responsible for "a major social evil," he declared, in that it discourages the owning of homes and bears heavily upon impoverished farm owners.

JURY CONVICTS FOUR FOR SLAYING; URGES LENIENCY

Mrs. Fortescue Sits Unmoved; Held for Manslaughter.

BULLETIN.

HONOLULU, April 29.—(AP)—Lawrence M. Judd, governor of Hawaii, was "ready for anything" tonight as news of the manslaughter conviction of the defendants in the Joseph Kahahawai lynching case spread like wildfire throughout Honolulu.

Reports were spread the governor had called out the National Guard, but he denied this. He admitted, however, that precautions had been taken against a possible emergency.

"Certainly we have taken precautions," he said. "We are ready for anything."

Harry Hewitt, territorial attorney general, denied that the National Guard had been called out.

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 29.—All four defendants in Honolulu's celebrated honor killing case were found guilty late this afternoon.

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Granville C. Fortescue, Seamen E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones all were convicted of manslaughter for the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai Jr., half-caste islander, on Jan. 8. The jury attached to its verdict a recommendation of mercy. The verdict means a sentence of from one to 10 years imprisonment for each, to be served in the Oahu prison at the outskirts of Honolulu.

The original charge was second degree murder, which calls for a penalty of 20 years to life imprisonment. Judge Charles S. Davis ruled, however, that the jury could find not only second degree murder verdicts, but also manslaughter, or acquittal, or, for Lieut. Massie, not guilty by reason of insanity.

Verdict Light, Yet Severe.

Today's verdict may be light, but the blight is on the naval lieutenant and his aristocratic mother-in-law and a stain has fallen on the navy group which will take many years to live down.

Attorney Clarence Darrow, who came here from Chicago to defend the four and who made one of the most forceful jury pleas of his life, was greatly disappointed at the jury's verdict. He had been buoyed all day, and during the 48 hours that the jury was out, by the hope of acquittal, as all signs had pointed that way.

Jury Was Divided.

There was a division of the jury over the question of the guilt of Mrs. Fortescue and Seaman Lord. Several jurymen insisted that they be let go. Others were for a more severe sentence for Lieut. Massie and Seaman Jones. The two sailors—Jones and Lord—calmly exchanged money which they had bet while the verdict was being announced. Massie took the announcement bravely, standing, his face strained and blanched, but Thalia, his wife, broke down utterly, and the whole verdict drama was enacted to the sound of her deep sobbing. Mrs. Fortescue sat stolid, unmoved.

Motion for a new trial and passing of sentence was set by Judge Charles S. Davis for May 6, and the defendants were released to the navy to guard after an exchange of hostilities between Prosecutor John C. Kelley and Capt. Ward K. Wortman, commander of the submarine base. Mrs. Ann Kluegel, head of the Good Government association which is so vitally interested in the case, kissed each defendant as the quartet left the room.

Jury Ready to Report.

At 5 o'clock, after 48 hours, word came from the jury room that the jury had reached a verdict and was ready to report to the court. By previous arrangement, 20 minutes were allowed attorneys and others to reach the courtroom. Telephones soon were ringing clubs and hotels, gathering in those vitally interested in the outcome. Attorney Darrow was the first to arrive. Several members of the legislature, including Senator Charles Rice, were in court.

Darrow Is Excited.

"How did you get here so soon?" he was asked.

"I flew," was his reply. "Fifty years in the game and I still get excited!"

The courtroom soon began to fill up as the news ran through the city. Attorneys George S. Leisure and Montgomery Winn for the defense soon were in court. At 5:30 o'clock the defendants arrived, accompanied by Mrs. Massie. She was wearing a blue linen dress and a white turban. Mrs. Helen Ripley and Robert Bell, Mrs. Fortescue's faithful sister and brother, were by her side.

Police Guard Building.

Chief of Police Weeber took charge of policing the halls, and prohibited all parking in front of the building. A radio patrol car, with machine guns and tear gas bombs, was waiting nearby to guard against any emergencies.

Lieut. Massie and the sailors, Lord and Jones, arrived a few minutes later. The jurors entered the box at 5:27 o'clock. During the half hour of waiting there

ASKS PRESIDENT FOR NEW TRIAL ON MAINLAND

New York, April 29.—(AP)—Dudley Field Malone, attorney who at first considered going to Honolulu with Clarence Darrow, tonight was informed of the Massie case verdict and immediately wired President Hoover urging that the four defendants be "placed aboard a warship and brought to the first port of jurisdiction on the mainland, namely San Francisco." His telegram read:

"To the President:

"I most respectfully submit that you do now what you should have done at the beginning, namely: Order Lieut. Massie, his wife, his mother-in-law, and the two enlisted men on board a warship and bring them to the first port of jurisdiction on the mainland, namely San Francisco, where they can get a fair trial and the protection American citizens should be properly entitled to."

Maj. Granville Fortescue, husband of Mrs. Fortescue, received the news of the verdict as if it stunned him.

"What?" he asked after it had been read to him. A moment later he hung up the telephone receiver with a brief: "Nothing to say now. Thanks."

Judge Davis asked, "Gentlemen, have you agreed on a verdict?"

"We have, your honor," the foreman replied.

"Hand the verdict to the clerk," the court instructed.

Massie leaned forward in his seat. He was breathing heavily. Mrs. Massie clutched at her throat. Mrs. Fortescue sat rigid. Jones was biting his fingernails. Lord slouched in his seat.

Clerk Reads Verdict.

Judge Davis took it, read it, then ordered Clerk Wong to read the verdict. He read the words slowly. The verdict was guilty of manslaughter for each of the four defendants with leniency recommended for each.

At the sound of the word "guilty" following the reading of the name "Lieut. Thomas H. Massie" Mrs. Massie burst into loud sobbing, which continued throughout the rest of the scene, into which tense drama was packed in only ten minutes.

Mrs. Massie fell into the arms of Capt. Wortman, naval custodian for the defendants and in whose home she has been living since the trouble began. Mrs. Fortescue stood proudly with dry eyes. Her face was stonelike.

Jones, whose hair was rumpled and his cheeks flushed, laughed. Lord sat stolidly as ever.

Darrow's Shoulders Slump.

Attorney Darrow's shoulders slumped. He feels the fate of his clients as much as if it were visited upon himself, and he had longed for a clear vindication of this group. He has grown fond of the young couple, especially of the lieutenant.

The court, after a moment of stunned silence, broken by Mrs. Massie's sobs, said:

"Gentlemen of the jury, is this your verdict?"

"It is," nodded the jury, which was composed of five Americans, three Chinese, a Dane, a Portuguese, and an Hawaiian.

"So say you one, so say you all?"

"Yes," nodded the jurors.

No poll of the jury was asked and Attorney Winn was first on his feet for the defense. He said he would make a motion for a new trial.

Tells Four to Be Seated.

"In the matter of sentence," began Judge Davis, and then he stopped and looked at the defendants who ha' remained standing.

"The defendants may be seated."

"One week from today will be all right," said Prosecutor Kelley.

The defense agreed and then the matter of custody of the defendants was introduced.

Attorney Winn suggested that the present arrangement continue, and Assistant Prosecutor Barry S. Ulrich began to agree. Prosecutor Kelley interrupted and raised the question as to how long this arrangement was intended to last.

"You know all about it damn well!" he cried.

Kelley Glares Back.

Kelley, who in his closing speech had said, "To hell with the admirals," glared back. The court ignored this exchange and asked if the representative of the navy were ready to take the defendants in charge.

Capt. Wortman arose, as did a white uniformed lieutenant stationed in the doorway. The two naval officers led the defendants out of the building. Mrs. Massie was still sobbing.

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of this naval district, came into the courtroom just as the defendants were leaving. He was at Pearl Harbor when the jury reached its decision and raced six miles into the city in an automobile. Asked if he had any comment to make, he said:

"Not a damned thing!"

The jury was summoned before Judge Davis at 4 o'clock. The jurors then informed the court that they had been unable to reach a verdict, but that there was some hope of getting one. Judge Davis thereupon ordered the jury to return to its room and resume its deliberations.

John F. Stone, secretary to Frank C. Atherton, one of the wealthiest residents of Honolulu, was disclosed as the foreman of the jury.

Decides to Call Jury.

There was a flurry of real excitement shortly before 4 o'clock when Judge Davis announced that he had decided to send for the jury. After a conference with lawyers for the prosecution and the defense, the defendants were summoned to appear in the courtroom. Within a few minutes the defendants appeared. Upon receiving the summons at the hotel at which they had been remaining until the jury was locked up for the night, the defendants rode to the judicial building in an automobile. All were pale and excited.

Capt. Wortman accompanied them to the courtroom as did Commander Monroe, a friend of Lieut. Massie.

The courtroom was empty, but within a few moments the few benches were filled with court clerks, lawyers, and a few Hawaiians. The jury filed in as the clock struck 4. Judge Davis was on the bench.

"Who is the foreman?" the court asked.

"I am, your honor," Stone said, arising.

"This case has been in the hands of the jury for about 47 hours; have you as yet arrived at a verdict?" Judge Davis asked. "Please answer 'yes' or 'no.'"

"No, sir," Stone answered.

"Answer 'yes' or 'no' if there is any prospect of arriving at a verdict within a reasonable time?" the court again asked.

Judge Offers His Aid.

"Yes, sir, I think there is," Stone replied.

After a moment's silence Judge Davis asked if it would help if additional evidence were received.

"There has been no request for additional evidence," the foreman said.

"Very well," said Judge Davis, "then you may return to the jury room and continue your deliberations. We will take a recess until a verdict has been reached by the jury."

As the jury retired the defendants and the lawyers left the building together. At the entrance, Lord, always good natured, walked up to Prosecutor Kelley and began pumping the lawyer's hand.

"No hard feelings," exclaimed Lord smiling.

Lieut. Massie then stepped up and took the prosecutor's hand.

"If I had anything against you——" the naval officer began.

Mrs. Massie Blazes with Anger.

Mrs. Massie, blazing with anger, cried:

"No, you haven't anything against me."

"Now Thalia," her husband said as he led her away.

She burst into tears and Massie comforted her as they climbed into an automobile to return to their hotel.

All through the last two days, until the verdict came in, the defense thought no conviction was possible.

This is what led Attorney Winn of the defense to suggest yesterday afternoon to Prosecutor Kelley to accept a vote of 10 to 2 or 11 to 1 as the verdict. He insisted it was legal. Kelley replied that he did not care whether it was legal or not and rejected the suggestion. The apparent confidence of Winn on the standing of the jury worried Kelley, and he was sure there was a leak in the jury room somewhere.

Kelley summoned Chief of Police Weeber and had the jury room searched for a dictaphone. Then he had a special guard of uniformed and plain clothes detectives placed around the judicial building, particularly at the rear, where a balcony leading out of the juryroom was open to observation of possible signaling.

No one was allowed out there to gaze on the jurors as they struggled over their verdict.

Kelley Is Criticized.

Under the heading, "An Appeal to Hate," the Honolulu Times, a weekly newspaper which has espoused the navy cause, today criticized Prosecutor Kelley for dragging the naval issue into the case. Editor Ed Irwin said in part:

"Prosecutor Kelley, politician that he is, doubtless thought to curry the favor of those in the community who resented the statements of Admirals Pratt, Stirling and Pettingill. And to do that he raised an issue that not only had nothing to do with the case, but also was calculated to breed strife and dissension not only in the jury room, but between the civilian population of Hawaii and the armed forces of the United States.

"There was no excuse for the attempt to inject into the case the navy and anti-navy issue, and to try to stir the hostility of certain elements of the community and the navy. It was vicious and dangerous. The effects will reach far beyond the court room."

ROB AUNT KATE'S CHEESE OFFICES.

Three bandits stole $300 last night in a holdup in Aunt Kate's Cheese Cake company offices at 2008 Ogden avenue. They menaced Mrs. Kate Kaufman, 42 years old, of 5573 West Jackson boulevard, the owner of the concern, and three drivers.

Here's History of Hawaii's Most Famous Murder Case

HONOLULU, April 29.—(AP)—When Mrs. Thalia Massie, blond young wife of a navy officer, became bored at a party one night last September and went alone for a walk toward Waikiki beach, she involuntarily provided the start of a series of seething events which convulsed Hawaii and reverberated in Washington.

Mrs. Massie was seized, beaten, and criminally attacked, allegedly by five men, among them Joseph Kahaha..ai, young native athlete. She said Kahahawai broke her jaw and raped her when she prayed for mercy. The five men were brought to trial, but the jury disagreed.

Resentment Springs Up in Navy.

Resentment sprang up in the navy group, constituting a generous portion of Honolulu's population, against what was termed the hoodlum class. Naval circles charged the police with inefficiency and with being unduly friendly toward the native and oriental elements for political reasons.

At the same time there were rumors, later brought into the court records, about the attack victim and her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N. One was that Mrs. Massie had not been attacked, but merely had been seeking notoriety; another linked her name with that of a navy officer acquaintance of her husband; and still another said it was Massie who broke her jaw and that he was getting a divorce.

Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, commander of mine craft in this area, informed Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander of the battle force of the United States fleet, that Honolulu was unsafe for the wives of naval officers.

Wives Armed Selves.

Some wives reputedly armed themselves for protection. The navy shore patrol was enlarged to preserve order.

Disorders began. Horace Ida, one of the five accused by Mrs. Massie, was seized and beaten in an attempt to force him to confess. Clashes between individuals and between groups in the streets brought extraordinary police measures.

Then Mrs. James M. O'Dowda, school teacher, was bound, beaten, gagged, and criminally assaulted in her home. Lui Kaikapu, native burglar who had escaped from Oahu prison, was suspected. Captured, he confessed the attack and was returned to prison for life.

A week later, on Jan. 8, while making his daily report to the court pending retrial of the Massie attack case, Kahahawai was lured into an automobile by a fake summons. An hour or two thereafter, at the end of a wild chase toward Koko head, just outside of town, police stopped an automobile driven by Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of the attack victim, and containing Massie and E. J. Lord, navy enlisted man, and the sheeted body of Kahahawai.

Three Seized on Spot.

The three were arrested on the spot and the fourth suspect, Albert O. Jones, was arrested later at the Massie home.

Public feeling surged high. The four accused of the killing were given into the custody of naval officers at Pearl harbor as a measure for their safety. Army and navy enlisted men were barred from the city temporarily.

Flowers and messages of encouragement were showered upon Mrs. Fortescue. In an undertaking establishment banked with blossoms lay the body of the young native. Large crowds, mostly natives and orientals, visited the bier. Many natives were indignant. Kahahawai's weeping father said the young man had taken a native oath that he was innocent of the attack. This was accepted by many Hawaiians as conclusive proof of his innocence.

Refused to Indict at First.

A grand jury at first refused to indict the four accused of the killing, but under the urging of Circuit Judge A. M. Cristy, which the defense later termed judicial coercion, returned an indictment charging second degree murder, the penalty for which is 20 years to life.

In Washington a report of naval officers that about 40 women had been attacked in Hawaii within a year was made public, but was promptly denied by civilian authorities here.

The United States senate ordered a department of justice investigation of law enforcement here. In special session the territorial legislature changed some of the criminal laws and uthorized reorganization of Honolulu's police and prosecuting systems.

U. S. ATTORNEY POINTS OUT POSSIBLE STEPS IN HONOLULU CASE

Probation, pardon, and appeal were pointed out last night as three avenues by which Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Granville C. Fortescue, E. J. Lord, and Albert O. Jones might escape serving prison sentences on their conviction in Honolulu in the Kahahawai slaying. The procedure governing each of these channels was explained by District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson.

"Probation may be granted by the trial judge," said Mr. Johnson. "He also has the power to determine the sentences. A pardon or parole is within the province of the President through action first taken by the United States parole board. This bureau is less than a year old and was created by the President."

Any appeal which might be taken, Mr. Johnson said, would go to the Circuit Court of Appeals in California.

Suggests Sonsteby Should Transfer Judge.

Mayor Cermak was roused to wrath yesterday when he learned of the action Thursday taken by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green, which resulted in the freeing of Sam Hunt, Capone gangster, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Hunt walked out of court a free man when an assistant state's attorney nol prossed the charges against him. This action was necessary, it was explained, because Judge Green had suppressed the evidence against Hunt on the ground that the police had no warrant to search him when they found him carrying a revolver.

Demands Judge's Transfer.

"People should rise up and petition Chief Justice Sonsteby to transfer Judge Green to some place where he can do no harm," said the mayor, heatedly. "He might be assigned either to the Grand Crossing or Pekin courts. Both are closed now. The Bar association ought to look into the judge's actions.

"Or maybe we might give Judge Green a fast car with a radio receiving set so that he can rush to the scenes of holdups. The victims could ask the holdup men to wait until the judge arrives so that a warrant could be issued.

No Encouragement to Police.

"It certainly is no encouragement to the police when a judge makes such a decision. Do you wonder that the police get negligent? We have had the police out of the rut and putting gunmen away but this tends to put them back in the rut again."

Judge Green, informed of the mayor's remarks, said:

"I'll send the mayor a copy of the constitution so that he can read it and see that the rights of citizens must be protected. The mayor should stop four flushing. Let him try to be mayor of the city and stop telling the courts how to run. His job is big enough without his trying to run everything else in the city."

Orders Police to "Carry On."

Although Commissioner of Police Allman would not comment on the case, he sent out the following order over the police teletype:

"Notwithstanding Judge Green's decision in the Sam Hunt case, police officers are to arrest all suspicious characters, hoodlums, and gangsters and when they find any one with firearms in his possession they will prosecute him to the limit."

HANGS SELF AT 79.

August Bartels, 79 years old, hanged himself yesterday in a bedroom at his home, 3731 North Sacramento avenue. The body was found by his son, Otto Bartels, who told the police that his father had been dependent over ill health.

WRECKING CREW RIPS ECONOMY BILL TO SHREDS

Third of Planned Saving Already Annulled.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—Under the leadership of the same radical wrecking crew that recently derailed the tax bill, the house of representatives today continued its dismemberment of the so-called "200 million dollar" economy bill.

By the time the day's session broke up, additional economies of 3 millions to apply on next year's expenditures and a proposed saving of a million a year to begin in 1934 had been stricken out.

Instead of being a "200 million dollar" economy bill, the measure tonight contained legislative power to save only an estimated 143 millions. With the house's previous action in making federal pay cuts apply only to those with salaries above $2,500 instead of $1,000, and in eliminating the abolition of the half holiday—the first, sidetracking a cut of 55 millions and the second a cut of 9 millions—the bill now stands with nearly one-third of its proposed savings removed by the house.

Keep Costly Transports.

Today's excisions were performed on those sections which would have discontinued the costly army and navy transport services at a saving of one and a half millions, and would have done away with the government owned Panama railroad steamship line with a saving of half a million dollars to the government and the restoration to private shipping of a million dollars' worth of business a year.

The vote against these savings was 175 to 32. The motion to strike them from the bill was made by Representative Barbour [Rep., Cal.].

The house was not satisfied with the 9 millions allowed for the government printing office, even though it was specified that 2 millions should be set aside for printing of the Congressional Record and other documents, in which their remarks appear.

There was, nevertheless, uneasiness lest the cut in the printing appropriation, calculated to save five millions, would mean fewer copies of the Record to be mailed free to constituents next year. The anxious representatives adopted an amendment by Representative Stevenson [Dem., S. C.] increasing the nine millions to ten millions and increasing the legislative allotment to two and a half millions.

Two Other Plans Go.

Not satisfied with shelving these immediate economies, the house also struck out two other provisions—one which would have saved approximately a million dollars a year over a ten year period by curtailing federal aid for vocational education; the other which was expected to prevent overlapping and wastage by permitting the transfer within departments of not more than 15 per cent of one bureau's appropriation to another.

Both went—the former on the motion of Representative Cannon [Dem., Mo.], the latter by a vote of 77 to 55, on the motion of Representative Vinson [Dem., Ga.].

The bill being still in committee of the whole, in which there are no roll call votes, the house members could vote with impunity against economy items, saved from retribution at the polls by the fact that their names will not appear in the record. Those, on the other hand, whose districts would lose some governmental privilege by an economy provision had the opportunity to speak and get themselves on record as spokesmen for their constituents' interests.

Bitter Debate Stirred.

There was bitter debate over the vocational education provision and the abolition of the transport services and the Panama railroad steamship line. The wrangling and lack of control that have marked the economy debate were still in noisy evidence.

In the debate on vocational education, as in the recent fight over the sales tax, Representative F. H. La Guardia [radical Rep., N. Y.] led the radical group bent on making the government, through taxing the rich and through the expansion of bureaucratic services, the means of redistributing wealth and bringing about a semi-socialistic order. With him, he found representatives of both parties from rural communities which receive more in federal aid than they pay in federal taxes.

It was Representative La Guardia again who was among the foremost in opposing the abolition of the transport services. He supported his arguments with characteristically fiery charges that New York shippers, whom he termed a "bunch of rats," wanted to "steal" the army and navy piers.

"Some Slimy Lobbying."

"There has been some slimy lobbying going on," he shouted. "A slimy lobbyist, reeking with liquor, has been going around the corridors. I don't know what offices he has been in. The plan was that if the government services were abandoned certain shippers would get the pasesnger and freight business and others the docks."

His charges created a storm and sent Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] of the economy committee stalking down to face the New York congressman and demand an explanation. Mr. La Guardia explained that when the alleged plot became known, Chairman McDuffie had prepared an amendment to prevent the sale of government docking facilities, but he stuck to his conspiracy charges.

Futilely, Representative Wood [Rep., Ind.] pointed out that the transport services and the Panama railroad line not only lost money but took business from private shippers at the very time the government was spending other millions to subsidize the creation of a merchant marine. He pleaded for less government in business.

Congress Uses Them.

With equal futility Mr. McDuffie pointed to the fact that in the world war only one army transport actually crossed the ocean—and that one, he said, never even got back.

The army and navy transports and the Panama railroad steamship vessels are the favorite excursion boats of members of congress.

Last year nearly a hundred senators and representatives, many with their families, took pleasant sea voyages in this fashion. On transports, passage is free, but a dollar and a half a day per person is charged for meals.

LOUISIANA SENATOR RENOUNCES ALLEGIANCE TO DEMOCRACY

SENATOR HUEY P. LONG.

"I send to the desk my resignation from every committee in the United States senate that has been given me by the Democratic leadership. But there's got to be a new leadership. We cannot sit here in this congress and tell the people that they can swap the devil for the witch."

SENATOR LONG.

"I wish now to say to the senator from Louisiana that when he can convince a majority of the senate on this side that he, or another whom he can designate, can perform the functions of minority chairman better than its present occupant can do I shall be glad to surrender the measure of authority which I admittedly so ineffectively exercise."

serves in a position of public responsibility in times like these performs a difficult task. It is not conceivable to me that even the great genius in statesmanship — the senator from Louisiana—if given a free hand and unlimited control, could quickly solve all the problems which embarrass this government and its people."

Offers to Surrender Leadership.

Almost with the revelation of a confessional Mr. Robinson went on:

"There have been times during the last few months when a sense of overwhelming responsibility and of futility of effort have almost crushed my hopes and destroyed my ambition, and I wish now to say to the senator from Louisana when he can convince a majority of the senate on this side that he, or another whom he can designate, can perform the functions of minority chairman better than its present occupant can do I shall be glad to surrender the measure of authority which I admittedly so ineffectively exercise."

It was very quiet in the big room when he said this.

Answering the attack on his alleged pro-Republicanism the Democratic minority leader pointed out that a certain degree of coalition is inevitable when the house is controlled by Democrats, the senate and the chief executive's office by Republicans. Such a coalition is inevitable, he insisted, if government is to function at all. It has not been his policy, nor is it, he explained vigorously, to let his strong partisan feelings go to "such an extreme that legislation is blocked, that tax levies are not placed, that there be a breakdown in government."

Sallies at Long Bring Laughs.

Specifically he attacked the Long "soak the rich" proposition as a confiscation by the government of private wealth and essentially un-American.

"I realize," he said, "that when we don't want to 'soak the rich' for everything, we are immediately accused of being under the influence of big business. But I am under the influence of two great American principles: The right of personal liberty and of private property."

When he called Senator Long's resignation "a comic opera performance that does not do justice to the dramatic talents and powers of the great actor from Louisiana" the galleries giggled.

And they guffawed when the senator from Arkansas remarked, with satiric indulgence, "I don't object to his making that unusual display which he thinks he has to in order to get the publicity and notoriety which is his due. He is a handsome and spectacular figure."

Ends on Sarcastic Note.

Then, at the climax of his emotion, Mr. Robinson turned his back on the rostrum, faced his Democratic colleagues; told them he'd resign if they wanted him to.

Looking across to the Republican side, he referred to Huey Long's recent attack on Robinson's visit to the White House as an "exemplification of a smallness that cannot be described with propriety in this chamber."

He reminded his listeners that it is traditional courtesy to accept an invitation to the White House.

"Regretting as much as I do that it displeases my good personal friend but my great rival and opponent for the empty honor of a leadership where few follow, I must inform him that I shall continue to treat the President of the United States courteously and kindly, and whenever my associates want a leader who will not do that they will have to obtain the services of some one else, and we all know where he can be found."

Johnson Denies Charge Secretary Lamont Fights Economy

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—Senator Johnson [Rep., Cal.] chairman of the senate commerce committee, today came to the defense of Secretary of Commerce Lamont of Chicago for his recent wires to constituents throughout the country urging them to protest to congress against any cut in commerce department appropriations. Senator McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], leader of the "10 per centers" who are working to have all supply bills cut 10 per cent, yesterday assailed Lamont for this move.

SENATOR JOHNSON. [A. P. Photo.]

"Secretary Lamont is careful and cooperative. He has been responsive to every move suggested to him," Senator Johnson told the senate today. "Here are the facts about those messages. He received wires and letters from organizations in various parts of the country protesting against the proposed cut. Here is one from H. C. Hill, president of the Dallas [Tex.] Wholesale Credit Men's association.

McKellar Still Protests.

"He had a form telegram sent out and he sent it only to those people who had already, unsolicited, communicated with him asking him what they could do to stop the cut which they felt would be so disastrous. If that be treason, make the most of it."

"Well, it's against the law, as made by congress, for a cabinet officer to interfere in a matter like that," persisted Senator McKellar. "It makes no difference to me, but it's breaking the law. And the explanation the senator from California just gave certainly strengthens my argument. I cited a case in Tennessee. He brings me one from Texas and tells me there are others."

Lamont Explains Stand.

Secretary Lamont, asked concerning the McKellar charges, verified Senator Johnson's statements. His department, Mr. Lamont said, had disseminated no propaganda, had sent out no telegrams or letters except in answer to protests received by the department against the elimination of local bureaus.

"It is not a fact," said Mr. Lamont, "that local offices will merely be decreased in size. A total of 33 will have to be abandoned, under the present terms of the appropriation. We do not like a 10 per cent cut, but have not opposed it because we intend to support the economy movement. The decrease for the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, however, was more than 10 per cent and it means that 400 employes must go. Were this decrease brought into line with the 10 per cent curtailment, only 200 persons would have to be dismissed."

Reinstatement of Clerk Requested by Judge Green

At a meeting of the judges of the Municipal court yesterday Judge Thomas A. Green asked for the reinstatement of Mrs. Lillian Hindman as clerk in the South Chicago court, a position she has held for 30 years. Municipal Court Clerk Gill, the judges were told, has asked for Mrs. Hindman's resignation effective today, stating that she had been absent from duty for several weeks without making any explanation. The matter was referred to the judges' committee on clerks.

RACE GAMBLERS FACE 10 PCT. TAX IN SENATE BILL

Hope for 25 Million from Pari-Mutuels.

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—A 10 per cent tax on pari-mutuel tickets, estimated to bring 25 million dollars into the federal treasury, today made its way into the revenue bill now up for consideration by the senate finance committee.

WM. A. BRADY. [Otto Sarony Photo.]

This proposed tax, not incorporated in the bill as sent over from the house, is said to have resulted from a chance suggestion made to the committee by William A. Brady, New York theatrical producer.

The committee today exempted from the proposed tax on jewelry all articles for religious use and extended its exemption on flat silver to all table silver, either sterling or plated.

It also struck out the house bill's proposed tax on boats, and substituted the 1926 license system, which places an annual license fee on domestic boats of from $10 to $200.

The committee boosted the proposed tax on grape concentrates from 40 per cent ad valorem to 44 per cent, doubled the five cent tax on brewers' wort, raised the tax on malt sirup from 35 cents a gallon to 4 cents a pound and also voted increased rates on carbonated water and unfermented fruit juices.

Cereal beverages, which include the near beers, become favored by decreasing the proposed tax from 2 to 2¼ cents a gallon.

DE VALERA JAMS THROUGH HIS BILL TO ABOLISH OATH

Passes Second Reading by Vote of 77 to 71.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 30.—[Saturday.]—After a 14 hour continuous session of the Dail Eireann, President Eamon de Valera early this morning jammed through the second reading of his bill to delete the oath of fealty to King George from the Irish Free State treaty. The vote was 77 to 71.

It was a victory for the Fianna Fail party, which the president, himself, declared stood for an ultimate republic, but it may be a hollow victory. For next week in the debate on the committee stage of the bill, the Labor party has declared that it will vote against De Valera unless he consents to amendments which eliminate from the bill clauses removing an article of the constitution which requires it to conform to the treaty.

De Valera Threatens to Quit.

At the conclusion of his speech this morning, just before the vote, De Valera declared that he stood by the whole bill and that if the Dail insisted on amending it it would have to find an alternative government. As the president governs only by the grace of seven Labor men, he may be out in the cold in a few days and the William T. Cosgrave government back in the saddle.

This is evident from the figures in the vote this morning. The threatened revolt of the seven Laborites would make the figures against De Valera 73 to 70. It was made clear by three Labor leaders, William Norton, who is the official leader of the party, and Deputies Davin and Murphy, that while they are willing to delete the oath to the king and that they believe the Dail has the power and right under the treaty to do so, they will not consent to an infringment of the treaty. They appealed to De Valera to agree to deletion from the bill of sections 2 and 3, which would delete from the constitution the governing force of the treaty.

Object to De Valera's Style.

It was also evident that most Cosgrave followers objected not so much to removal of the oath as to the manner of doing so. Deputy after deputy appealed to the president to take the course of negotiating with Great Britain for deletion of the oath, but De Valera refused. The only question he would ever discuss with Britain again, he said, was the unity of Ireland, meaning a reunion of Ulster and the Free State.

A feature of the session was a brilliant obstruction of the debate for nearly two hours by Patrick McGilligan, former minister of external affairs, who goaded the government benches into explosions of anger and kept his own followers in roars of laughter. He also drew from De Valera the admission that the Free State faces a deficit of $15,000,000 in the budget, which is scheduled to be introduced next week.

Chieftain Fights Bill.

A moving appeal was made to the president by The O'Mahony, Irish chieftain, who sits for Wicklow, where his ancestors once ruled as kings. The present course, he said, is starx repudiation of the nation's word and would make the word of an Irishman throughout the world a synonym for breach of faith. He appealed to the Laborites to forget mercenary alliances and vote like men for their country.

There was a violent scene between Desmond Fitzgerald, former minister of defense, and the president towards the end of the sitting. De Valera declared that on a certain occasion he had acted as president of the Irish republic.

"You never were," Fitzgerald injected. "There never was such an office."

The Dail will reassemble Tuesday, when several days must be spent on financial business. Meantime, the Laborites may be whipped into line again by De Valera or moved by promises of unemployment relief, or they may be captured by the Cosgrave party. Any betting at the moment on the course of Irish politics the next week or two is a pure gamble.

Original Alice in Wonderland Now 80, Arrives for U.S. Visit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—Alice in Wonderland, now a whimsical old lady of eighty, came to New York today from England on the liner Berengaria. She is still the Alice of the fabulous story told to her seventy years ago by the Rev. Charles Lutwidge Dodgson and later set forth for the enjoyment of posterity in the world's most delightfully fascinating book of sheer nonsense.

The little girl who was Alice Liddell is now Mrs. Reginald Hargreaves and she came here to participate in the celebration of the centenary of Lewis Carroll [the pen name of the Rev. Mr. Dodgson] on May 4 at Columbia university.

Almost Expect to See Hare.

She is a sweet, bright faced, alert old lady, and this afternoon in the lounge of the Berengaria one half expected to see the March hare, the proud caterpillar, the sad mock turtle, and even Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum peep out of the huge tapestry bag she carried on her arm.

Riding on the upper forward deck of the liner as it swung into view of the skyline was like going through a new looking glass to the Alice in Wonderland, and to prove she still liked a bit of nonsense she asked regarding the skyscrapers:

"Do they build them inside out or outside in?"

A moment later she discovered the statue of liberty. Waving one of the two canes she carries she asked as a character out of the book should ask:

"And what is that thing?"

Tall Son with Her.

The heroine of the adventures behind the looking glass was accompanied by her sister, Miss Rhoda Liddell, and her tall son, Capt. Caryl Hargreaves of the Scots' guards. Miss Liddell does not remember the beginning of the wonderland adventures for she is the youngest of the four sisters and was not included in "the cruel three" who pestered the young don of Christ church for "more stories," Capt. Hargreaves admitted rather boredly that the story never interested him much as a child.

"I couldn't understand much of it," he said.

After a bout with the talking picture cameramen in which the Victorian old lady was asked if she was "a little curly haired girl when you first heard the story?" and replied "I was little, but my hair was never curly," Alice met the press. It was a quiet interview and nothing like the fabulous tea party in the book.

Mrs. Hargreaves said she had been to New York once before, in 1913, but that she came in from Canada and sailed at night and that nobody recognized her as "Alice in Wonderland."

That madcap song, "Soup of the Evening, Beautiful Soup," which was a parody on a then popular hymn "Star of Evening," has always been Alice's favorite bit of nonsense in the story told to her that hot July afternoon in 1862. The Cheshire cat is her favorite character, but she also has a sentimental feeling for the mock turtle.

"I want to go to the aquarium first of all," she said as her fading blue eyes lighted with interest. "I have old friends there."

All of her life Mrs. Hargreaves said she had found "being Alice" pleasant and "very amusing."

Kindliest of Persons.

"I can't remember very much about the way the story started," said Alice, "but then it was two years in the making. Dr. Dodgson was one of the kindliest of persons to small children—I should say little girls.

"We would beg him for just one more story and then he would make up the Jabberwock tales or tell us about the walrus and the carpenter who went awalking."

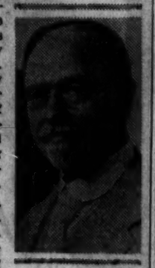
Mrs. Hargreaves is eager to see the original manuscript which she saw auctioned in Sotheby's, London for $75,000 a few years ago. Now it is owned by Elbridge Johnson, founder of the Victor Talking Machine company, and is on view at Columbia in the Lewis Carroll collection.

Her reception here today was like meeting a character out of your favorite old book. One could almost hear the white rabbit scurry by and a ship's waiter seemed to be trying to put the dormouse into a teapot.

ADVOCATES OF BONUS CALLED GOLD BRICKERS BY HONOR MEDAL MAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—Immediate cash redemption of the soldiers' bonus was opposed before the house ways and means committee today by Richard W. O'Neill of New York, a former state chairman of the disabled American veterans, and Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale university economist.



PROF. IRVING FISHER.
[Roger Sherman Photo.]

Prof. Fisher asserted that passage of the Patman bill providing for payment of the soldiers' bonus in a new currency issue unbacked by additional gold would further impair business confidence and retard business recovery. He expressed the opinion that the bill might cause further deflation rather than stimulate inflation.

"What we need is reflation," he said. "We need sufficient inflation to counteract the recent great and rapid deflation. What we need is to bring deposits back by restoring confidence in banks and confidence of banks. This can be done by controlled credit expansion."

O'Neill, who won the congressional medal of honor for bravery in France, said two-thirds of the veterans do not really need the cash payments. He said that in his opinion, passage of the Patman bill would not cure the troubles of the veterans. What they need, he said, is jobs with a living wage.

"If the bonus is paid now," said O'Neill, "the veteran will be living practically in a fool's paradise for two months, then he will realize he has spent his family's only safeguard."

O'Neill criticized the veteran leaders who are pushing the bonus legislation.

"They were known in the service as gold brickers," he said.

O'Neill resigned recently as New York state chairman of the disabled American veterans when that group went on record for cash payment.

WOMAN GIVES AWAY MILLIONS; FOUND INSANE

Daughter Made Conservator for Lydia Norman.

Upon the testimony of her daughter that she had given away $3,000,000 in the last three years, Mrs. Lydia Norman, 57 years old, of the Seville hotel, 4144 Lake Shore drive, was declared insane yesterday in the county court. The daughter, Mrs. Florence Sears, was appointed custodian of her mother and of the estate.

Mrs. Sears testified that her mother inherited an estate valued at $5,000,000 upon the death of her father, Frederick Norman, a retired department store official, three years ago. At her father's death, Mrs. Sears stated, her mother possessed a collection of jewels valued at $300,000, including two perfect emeralds and a number of valuable pearls. All of these Mrs. Norman hav given away since.

$500,000 Lands Given Away.

Mrs. Sears also stated that her mother had given away turpentine lands in Georgia valued at $500,000. She did not name the recipients of any of her mother's gifts, but newspaper files show that in 1929 Mrs. Norman filed suit in a federal district court in Georgia against Edward J. Fogarty, former warden of the Cook county jail, who committed suicide a month before the suit was filed. She charged that he had defrauded her of title to the land. The charges were denied by attorneys for Fogarty's estate, who stated that Mrs. Norman had transferred the land to Fogarty for development purposes.

The insanity hearing was before a commission consisting of Judge J. G. Van Keuren and two physicians, Dr. Francis A. Dulak and Dr. Henry J. Way. Attorney Robert S. Lee, who represented Mrs. Sears, told Judge Van Keuren that he is seeking to recover the property which Mrs. Norman gave away.

Daughter Tells of Insanity.

Mrs. Sears testified that she had first noticed signs of insanity in her mother when she was 7 years old. Her mother used to pull her hair, she said, and on occasions refused to recognize her as her daughter. In later years, the daughter testified, she was frequently embarrassed when her mother flirted with young men who had come to call on her.

Padlocks 3 Entire Floors of the Hotel Delmonico

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—Three entire floors of the Hotel Delmonico, 502 Park avenue, leased to the Breakfast Club, Inc., which was raided last November, were ordered closed for a year today by Federal Judge Goddard acting on a padlock complaint following the indictment yesterday of Albert Grossman, operator of the club. Agents said they found 267 bottles of liquor.

ESKIMO BOY, 12, SAVES MOTHER IN LONG SLED DASH

OTTAWA, April 29.—(AP)—A 12 year old Eskimo boy took a high place today in the long roster of heroes of the far north. Harnessed to a sled with two ailing dogs, he saved his sick mother's life by pulling her over 160 miles of ice and snow to safety at Wager Inlet post.

The feat, performed in the midst of winter, the wildest time of the year, is described by Constable J. W. McCormack of the Cherfield Inlet post in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Eladenac, father of the unnamed boy, died in 1930. His wife, Kudluk, stuck to her oath not to remarry, and her son took up the task of hunting food. But his luck was bad, meat was scarce, and his mother became seriously ill.

Then the dogs began to die of distemper, until only two were left. So, when he saw his mother was getting no better he put her and his 3 year old brother on the sled and started the terrible journey from their igloo to the post. Kudluk recovered, but she is still unmarried. She had rejoined her tribe and accepted the only alternative. She has become the camp drudge.

Acid Poured on Clothing in Oak Park Cleaning Shop

Two armed men invaded the shop of the Wisconsin Cleaners and Tailors, 212 South Marion street, Oak Park, late yesterday afternoon and, after robbing the proprietor of $140, they poured acid on clothing in the shop, causing damage of $2,000. Harry Neiditch, 1113 Madison street, Oak Park, owner of the shop, told the police he has had trouble because of his price cutting.

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER.

The body of Edward Vern, 40 years old, 3218 Fullerton avenue, was recovered from the Chicago river at Kinzie street yesterday. Police said he disappeared a month ago when his wife made a court complaint that he had beaten her.

"A PYORRHEA specialist made THIS toothpaste"

There is a reason for this double-duty toothpaste, a reason that appeals to all men and women who are interested in keeping their teeth.

Nobody today believes that simple polishing is all that is needed to keep healthy teeth. When teeth "come out" there is a deeper cause than the mere cleanliness or noncleanliness of the enamel.

Watch your gums as well as your teeth. Half of the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea. Dr. R. J. Forhan specialized in this disease. He spent twenty-six years in his chosen work and produced the toothpaste which bears his name —"Forhan's."

Brush your teeth and massage your gums with Forhan's. Follow the directions in the package. Trust Forhan's to keep your teeth white and glistening. Even for this purpose there is no finer toothpaste made. But that is only one duty of Forhan's. Its other duty is to protect your gums.

Dentists all over the country are using the professional formula of Dr. Forhan in treating pyorrhea and Forhan's Toothpaste preserves the same scientific principle for preventive hygiene at home. Forhan's is a pleasant-tasting, agreeable toothpaste for general family use. It is pure and mild—liked by the children. But remember: "it's more than a toothpaste." Large tube. Lasts long time.

HUNT BOMBING SUSPECTS; JAP, OFFICIAL DIES

Report Corean Terrorist Plot Discovered.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 30.—[Saturday.]—While a vigorous investigation was being conducted into the circumstances surrounding the bombing yesterday of six high Japanese officials, one of the victims of the outrage died today. He was Dr. Kawa Bata, president of the Shanghai Citizens' association, who was struck in the abdomen by a fragment of the hand grenade.

Meanwhile, the Sino-Japanese peace conference was postponed indefinitely and it seemed certain that any progress which had been attained in the parley had been nullified.

The Corean who threw the hand grenade into the midst of the five Japanese on a reviewing stand in Hongkew park, where they were witnessing a military parade in celebration of Emperor Hirohito's birthday, has been identified as Yin Kitsu, 25 year old revolutionist who came here last year from Manchuria. The Corean was severely beaten by the crowd. It is reported he was killed.

Shigemitsu Seriously Injured.

Most seriously hurt among the other Japanese officials was Marmoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China. Other victims were Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces here. Maj. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, army commander at the beginning of the Shanghai conflict; Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, naval commander-in-chief, and Kuramatsu Murai, Japanese consul.

Shigemitsu is in a critical condition, with 32 pieces of the bomb in his body. Gen. Shirakawa's body was severely lacerated. One fragment passed through his face and knocked out all his teeth. Gen. Uyeda's feet and legs were badly cut and several toes were blown off. Admiral Nomura's left eye was destroyed. Consul Murai's left leg was shattered.

Other Japanese Injured.

A Japanese named Tomono, secretary of the local residents' association who was also on the platform, was slightly wounded. A Japanese cameraman received a serious head wound. Several members of the audience also were struck.

Four foreign military attachés, standing 20 feet from the speakers' stand, had narrow escapes. They were Col. W. S. Drysdale, American; Col. Hadham Thornhill, British; Col. Fratini, Italian, and Col. Bonavita, French.

Crowd Jumps on Corean.

The explosion knocked the entire official group prone on the floor of the stand and tore a large hole in the planking.

The crowd pounced on the Corean, beat him insensible and tore off most of his clothing. A Japanese officer delivered a slash across his head with a saber.

Japanese troops immediately formed a cordon about the grounds. Everybody was searched before being permitted to leave. Many persons were arrested. One Corean, arrested in the French concession, is alleged to have possessed documents showing a widespread Corean plot to assassinate Japanese officials.

Former Chicagoan Seized.

Among those arrested but later released was W. F. Hibbard, an American citizen and employé of the public works department of the international settlement. Hibbard is a native of Chicago, but he has been in China more than 20 years.

(W. F. Hibbard was identified here as a brother of Forrest S. Hibbard, an electrical engineer connected with Price Brothers, 2644 North Maplewood avenue.)

Several of Hibbard's servants were near the park and when accosted by Japanese soldiers ran into Hibbard's home nearby. Hibbard refused to permit the military to enter, but they forced their way in, arrested Hibbard and the servants and took them to military headquarters, where they were questioned three hours despite efforts of American Consul Cunningham to effect their release.

J. R. THOMPSON ESTATE ISSUES TAKEN TO COURT

Three questions among the executors of the large estate of the late John R. Thompson, whose wealth was won through his restaurants, were submitted to Probate Judge Martin C. Decker in Lake county at Waukegan yesterday for further instructions. The controversy began when the estate offered to repay certain debts to the John R. Thompson Securities corporation in the corporation stock at an agreed value of $72.50 a share. The stock now is quoted at a book value of approximately $50 a share.

Attorney Carl Meyer, who represents the executors, John R. Thompson Jr., Henry M. Henriksen, and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, explained that settlement of a debt of $2,437,724 owed the securities corporation by the estate had been offered on a basis of a transfer of 33,623 shares of the corporation stock. Another debt of $591,000, representing cash borrowed by the estate from the corporation for the payment of federal inheritance taxes, was offered on the same terms.

The third moot question involved the right of Mr. Thompson Jr. to $727,206 worth of his father's furniture now in his mother's Lake Forest home. The executors suggested that he be allowed to relinquish all right to the property, allowing Mrs. Thompson a life estate to the furniture. Mr. Thompson favored the suggestion.

Judge Decker continued the matter until May 24.

9 WETS INDORSED IN MINNESOTA'S CONGRESS RACES

St. Paul, Minn., April 29.—(AP)—Nine candidates represented as out-and-out opponents of the 18th amendment were indorsed for Democratic nominations for representatives in congress from Minnesota today at a conference of county chairmen of the "regular" wing of the party.

The group adopted a resolution recommending a referendum on prohibition, but when the slate of congressional indorsements came up for consideration the attitude of the candidates on prohibition was specifically sought.

JURORS ACQUIT 2 EX-OFFICIALS IN CANAL CASE

Crowe's Kinsman Admits Forging Bills.

A jury in Judge John Prystalski's Criminal court late last night found Donald R. Joyce and Timothy L. Connolly not guilty of forgery in connection with the manipulations of the whoopee era of the old sanitary district board. The acquittal followed deliberations of little more than an hour.

Joyce formerly was superintendent of maintenance for the board and Connolly was purchasing agent. Joyce is a son-in-law of Timothy J. Crowe, ex-president of the board. Crowe and Frank J. Link, former trustee, are now under one to five year prison sentences for graft conspiracy in the whoopee régime.

Forged Bills Charged.

The case against Joyce and Cononlly revolved about forged bills of the Ragalle Motor company, on which the drainage board paid $2,200 for automobile hire. Joseph M. Ragalle, head of the company, testified that he had not rented his cars to the sanitary district and that he had received no rental for such service. He said that Joyce and Connolly had handed him checks for $2,200, saying the checks had been made out to him by error. He cashed them on their request, he added, and gave them the money.

On the witness stand Joyce admitted presenting the forged bills to the board for payment, asserting that he had prepared them with the consent of Ragalle. He explained that he had rented cars from his own company to the drainage board, and had presented the bills under the name of the other livery company because he did not desire his own name to appear because of his connection with the district. Ragalle, Joyce declared, had given him permission to bill the Joyce automobiles under the Ragalle concern's name. He testified that Connolly knew nothing of the transaction.

Connolly as his own witness pleaded ignorance of Joyce's operations. He had merely approved the bills for payment, he said.

Seen as End of Joyce Cases.

Last night's verdict probably means that there will be no further prosecution of Joyce. There are twelve more cases pending against him, on all of which he has made demands for trial during the last four months. Under the law, unless he is tried on these remaining cases immediately, they will automatically be voided by the statute of limitations. Prosecutor John E. Northup informed the court after the verdict that the prosecutions of the last eight months had wearied him, and that he would try no others without a rest. He will try Connolly, he said, on the main case against that former official. Evidence used against Crowe and Link will be employed in this case.

Joyce and Connolly were represented by William Scott Stewart.

ADMIT DROPPING OF MANY CASES BY SERRITELLA

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Only one out of every eight complaints against merchants for short-weighting filed during the régime of Daniel A. Serritella as city sealer was sent to the city prosecutor's office for action against the offenders.

D. A. SERRITELLA.

This was revealed yesterday as attorneys on both sides in the conspiracy trial of Serritella and Harry Hochstein, his chief deputy, entered into a stipulation of facts which will be read to the jury in the case next Monday when the trial is resumed.

Of the cases which did reach the prosecutor's office Serritella personally directed the dismissal of more than 15 per cent, the stipulation showed.

Will Save Many Days.

The stipulation, which the lawyers said would result in the saving of many days of testimony, represents a compilation of the records of Serritella's office and of the courts in which cases were presented. It was asserted by the state's attorney that the stipulation contains facts which could be proved by witnesses, but that it saved the time which would be spent in calling many witnesses and producing thousands of records.

A full day's argument was consumed in agreeing upon the stipulation, the arguments taking place secretly in the chambers of Judge James J. Kelly. Newspapermen several times sought admittance to hear the arguments, but the judge refused.

The agreed facts, as included in the stipulation, show the disposition of complaints between April 9, 1927, and March 31, 1931, while Serritella held office as city sealer.

Of the total of 9,000 complaints, only 1,112 were sent to the city prosecutor for suits against the offenders, the stipulation declared. And out of those 1,112 cases the files of 172 cases carried the notation: "Nonsuit—D. A. S." The stipulation does not explain this writing, but a state's witness has testified that he made such notations at the direction of Serritella and that the prosecutions were abandoned.

The stipulation did not state how many of the remainder of the 1,112 cases resulted in convictions. However, it was said that many of these resulted in acquittals. The state has charged that certain chain store companies gave money and supplies to Serritella and Hochstein, in return for which the state asserted the companies were given immunity from prosecution.

Eight Companies Listed.

A list of eight companies, some of which have been shown by evidence to have provided the supplies for Serritella's Christmas baskets for the poor voters of his ward, was appended to the stipulation, with figures showing the number of complaints and dismissals registered against them. The list follows:

GOV. ROOSEVELT STANDS UP FOR BANK APPOINTEE

As a Witness Tilts with Prosecutor Steuer.

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—Over the opposition of the prosecution, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, testifying in the Court of General Sessions today, attempted to assume full responsibility for the official acts of his appointee, Joseph A. Broderick, state superintendent of banks, in connection with the 100 million dollar failure of the Bank of United States.

J. A. BRODERICK.

Broderick is charged with neglect for failing to close the bank before he did.

Gov. Roosevelt was on the witness stand for only thirty minutes and his testimony was almost constantly interrupted by objections from Special Prosecutor Max D. Steuer, who accused the governor of deliberately "trying to fritter away the people's case" with evidence that was inadmissable, irrelevant and incompetent.

Aware of Bank's Condition.

Gov. Roosevelt testified that he was fully aware of the condition of the Bank of United States prior to its closing Dec. 11, 1930. He said he had conferred with Supt. Broderick several times at Albany and at his New York City and Hyde Park homes. He swore that he had knowledge of and had participated in the efforts to save the bank through a merger with a stronger institution. Such negotiations continued from October, 1930, until the night before the closing, and the governor had participated in some of them.

The governor made it plain throughout his testimony—as much as was admitted over the objections of Mr. Steuer—that he considered that he shared the responsibility of the state superintendent of banks, alluding to 200 banks being under the "jurisdiction of myself and the superintendent of banks," weakened by the stock market crash.

"No Reputation Exempt."

At one point the governor managed to get in the opinion that his banking superintendent enjoyed a reputation second to that of nobody "in the whole city of New York," which prompted Mr. Steuer to object:

"Even the governor has not the right to say 'none higher in the city' or anywhere else."

Martin Conboy, counsel for the defense, bridled at the remark.

"I'm not so sure about that," he interrupted. "Maybe we are."

J. F. KING, "BOSS OF LAKE FOREST," TO RETIRE MAY 1

James F. King, city clerk of Lake Forest for thirty-four consecutive years, will announce his retirement at the next meeting of the city council Monday night. He is 73 years old, and in point of service the oldest city clerk in Illinois. His resignation will be effective May 1.

Mr. King is known as "the boss of Lake Forest." The title was conferred upon him by the present mayor, Albert D. Farwell, because of his knowledge of Lake Forest affairs. It was reported last night that Clerk King will be retired on pension, the first Lake Forest official to be so retired.

Including Mayor Farwell, Mr. King has served under thirteen mayors, beginning in 1897 with Edward F. Gorton. The office is appointive annually.

He will be succeeded by A. Duane Jackman, city marshal for the last ten years, whose duties actually are those of city collector.

GRAPE GROWERS OF CALIFORNIA FIGHT DRY LAW

San Francisco, Cal., April 29.—[Special.]—The powerful California Vineyardists' association announced today that it had "retired from the ranks of the Pharisees."

California grape growers now are "definitely divorced from the past hypocritical attitude in the relationship between the use of their products and their stand on prohibition," said a statement issued by Burton A. Towne, president of the association, devoted to explaining its wet stand and a reply to criticisms.

"It is time," the Towne statement said, "the grape growers of California and the public generally stopped their vacillating attitude toward prohibition. We know and the public should know that the law is not being enforced and cannot be enforced. Henceforth we shall wage an open and aboveboard fight against prohibition."

DIRECTS JURORS TO ACQUIT WIDOW IN WILL BATTLE

Superior Judge John P. McGoorty yesterday directed a jury in his court to return a not guilty verdict in favor of Mrs. Mary Warthin Dunne Murphy, 4244 Hazel avenue, the defendant in a suit to set aside the will of her late husband, John B. Murphy, vice president of the Kohler company of Kohler, Wis. Mr. Murphy, who died on Nov. 12, 1928, left his $1,000,000 estate to his widow.

PHONE EARNINGS TO BE PROBED IN CRADLE INQUIRY

I. C. C. Staffs in Action Monday.

The accounting and engineering staffs of the Illinois commerce commission will begin an investigation Monday of the earnings made by three Illinois telephone companies on account of the 25 cents monthly surcharge which the companies impose on subscribers using the new and improved cradle telephones. The investigation will be in charge of W. H. Hammond, chief accountant, and Howard Matthews, chief engineer of the commission.

It is probable, according to Commissioner J. Paul Kuhn, that the investigation will have progressed sufficiently by May 10, when the commission resumes hearings in Chicago, to set a date for a public hearing on the question of reducing or abolishing the surcharge. Companies involved are the Illinois Bell, serving a majority of the counties in the state; Southwestern Bell, serving a few downstate counties around St. Louis, and the Belvidere Telephone company, an independent concern operating in Boone county.

While none of the three companies has as yet indicated what attitude it will take towards a proposed reduction or abolition of the surcharge, it was assumed that the Illinois Bell, at least, would resist any effort in that direction. The company has approximately 136,000 cradle instruments in service in Chicago alone, bringing in an income of $408,000 a year above that on the regular desk instruments.

Perusal of the commerce commission's order of January, 1928, allowing the 25 cent surcharge, shows that Illinois Bell challenged the commission's power to issue any orders or hold any hearings on the question of charges on cradle phones. The company had announced a 50 cent monthly surcharge on cradle phones and contended that the commission had no authority to hold a hearing on that rate, "because the said rate did not set forth any change in rates, but rather set forth a rate for a new class of service."

TRICKED BY SON OUT OF MILLION, MOTHER CHARGES

Mrs. Porter Testifies in Fight for Estate.

Mrs. Frances Lee Porter, 4043 Lake Park avenue, testified in Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan's court yesterday against her son, Washington Porter, II., former diplomatic secretary, whom she says, tricked her into assigning almost $1,000,000 worth of securities and property to him. She is the complainant in a suit to set aside the title conveyances.

Garbed in the fashion of another century, Mrs. Porter, who is 72 years old, explained that her late husband, Washington Porter, wealthy real estate operator, left her a life estate in several loop buildings, a strong box of valuable stocks and bonds, and life interest in her home, where she still lives with her son. She spoke in a strong voice and although she remained on the witness stand for several hours she showed no signs of fatigue.

Calls Son Capable.

Her husband's will was probated soon after his death in 1924, she stated, and soon afterward her son began to take over the management of her affairs.

"He was such a good boy, so smart and capable that I relied on everything he did," she said. "When he asked me to sign papers I usually did so without examining them."

Last August, she continued, she went to her bank to pay a $100,000 loan and recover collateral stocks with which it had been secured. She learned from the bank officials that her son had sold the collateral, paid the loan and placed to his own credit the $30,000 from the proceeds.

Mrs. Porter said she then had the records examined and found that parcels of valuable property at Wacker drive and Franklin street, a number of lots in West Madison street, and at Oakwood boulevard near Lake Park avenue, and her own home had been transferred to her son through quit claim deeds which bore her own signature. She testified she also found that her 3,000 shares of Diamond Match company stock and other valuable stocks were transferred to her son's name.

Ordered Out of House.

"When I confronted my son with these facts," the mother testified, "and demanded an explanation, he said to me, 'This is my house. You get out of here.' Then I began my suit and my attorneys got an injunction against the Continental Illinois bank, the stock companies several brokers, and my son, to preserve the estate."

Mrs. Porter was not cross-examined by Attorney Edward Johnson, who represents her son. He asked a recess as she finished her story. An hour later when court reconvened Attorney Johnson and Mrs. Porter's counsel, Francis J. Dammann, asked a continuance until May 10 to consider a settlement. The request was granted.

WOMAN FINED IN EVANSTON.

Mrs. Cecilia Moyer, 29 years old, 815 Dobson street, Evanston, paid a fine of $1 yesterday for leaving her automobile in a no parking zone. When she insisted that there was no sign in Fountain square, Evanston, Lieut. Frank Weideling walked there with her to point it out to her.

Given Dinner

Friends and associates of Lorado Taft, noted Chicago sculptor, gave him a dinner last night in honor of his 72d birthday anniversary which he celebrated yesterday. The party was given in the Midway studios, 6016 Ingleside avenue, where he works. More than 56 persons attended, among them one of his daughters, Mrs. Paul Douglas. Mrs. Taft and two other daughters are in the east.

PAGEANT WILL MARK MILITARY BALL TONIGHT

Plans were completed yesterday for the army and navy inaugural ball to be held tonight in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Col. T. A. Siqueland, chairman of the George Washington bicentennial commission in charge of arrangements, pointed out that the ball was the only official celebration of the 143d anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington. Tableaux will be presented showing incidents in the life of Washington, chief among them being a true reproduction of the inauguration of Washington with Fritz Leiber, the Shakespearean actor, impersonating Washington and delivering the first inaugural address.

Prominent Chicagoans will take part in the tableaux. The pageant will be followed by a grand march led by the Black Horse troup band and guests of honor, including city and state officials and high ranking officers of the army and navy. The march will be followed by dancing and a supper.

BOYS IN FRATS SINGING A SONG OF DEPRESSION

Blame Overproduction of U. of C. Dormitories.

They sing the "Mortgage Payment Blues" these days instead of the old familiar college tunes when one of the brothers begins to strum the banjo in a fraternity house at the University of Chicago.

The depression, flattening pocketbooks of parents and alumni members, has afflicted the Chicago fraternities as it has those at other institutions throughout the country. In addition, the problem of overproduction has cropped up at Chicago.

Some of the authorities hold that there has been an overproduction of fraternities. There are twenty-five active chapters on the campus. The fraternities think the overproduction may have been in the university owned student dormitories. In addition to the old dormitories, the university has just completed a new men's quadrangle with quarters for 390 students.

Plea for Moratorium.

Next fall the "deferred rushing" plan for fraternities is scheduled to go into effect. Under its provisions fraternities may not pledge freshmen as members until they have been on the campus six months. Some fraternity men hold that university authorities were not unmindful of the fact that the freshmen will help fill the new domitories.

The Greek council, an organization of fraternity alumni bodies, has petitioned Dr. George A. Works, dean of students, for a one year moratorium on the deferred rushing plan. The Interfraternity council, an undergraduate organization, was circulating a similar petition yesterday.

Investment of $2,500,000.

J. Alton Lauren, chairman of the alumni group, pointed out that the fraternity houses on the campus represent an investment of about $2,500,000 and are mortgaged for 30 per cent of their value.

One chapter, Delta Sigma Phi, becomes inactive this year. Another, Phi Pi Phi, abandoned its house, its members moving into university dormitories. Rates in the new men's quadrangle are as low as $148 to $160 a quarter for board and room.

REVEAL PARKING BAN URGED BY INSURANCE MEN

Boost in Rate Threatened Because of Thefts.

BY HAL FOUST.

Leslie Sorenson, city traffic expert, and Robert Nau, traffic engineer for the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday told the details of the plans to ban all night parking expected to take effect in a week or two. They also related that it was the National Board of Insurance Underwriters and not the Chicago Public Garage Operators' association that interested the city administration in clearing the streets of standing automobiles at night.

David ("Cockeyed Mulligan") Ablin, minor hoodlum, politician, and organizer for the garage operators, has been credited with using influence to get the police to force automobile owners to rent garage space. This would increase the cost of car ownership approximately $200 a year to the 200,000 or 250,000 who have been leaving their machines all night at the curb in front of their homes.

Threaten Rate Increase.

"The insurance board," said Mr. Sorenson, "early this year said there would have to be another increase in automobile theft insurance rates unless the number of stolen cars is reduced. Col. Sprague, comissioner of public works, appointed a committee to determine how the auto losses might be cut.

"On the committee were Dr. Miller McClintoc of the Harvard university bureau of traffic research, Capt. Mathew Zimmer of police stolen car detail, Mr. Nau, and myself. We took three districts, one on the north, one on the south and one on the west side, as subjects for our study. One district was bounded by 63d and 67th streets and Stony Island and Woodlawn avenues; another by Ainslie street, Montrose avenue, Sheridan road, and the lake, and the third by Lake and Madison streets and Long and Parkside avenues.

"Policemen made a careful canvass of the automobiles parked overnight in these districts. Owners were visited and told that by all night parking they were exposing their property to theft, raising insurance rates, interfering with the fire department, and offering hiding places to stickup men. We weren't able to locate many of the owners, but of those seen approximately 90 per cent said they would be glad to keep their automobiles off the streets.

Auto Thefts Reduced.

"Thereafter parking in these districts at night was reduced. Also there was a decrease in automobile thefts. Possibly this was due to the activity of the police in these districts, but the committee believed a reduction in the number of parked cars was also responsible. So a plan was evolved to enforce the all night parking ban.

"Two policemen in each police district would be assigned to the work. They would be able to cover every street in their territories at least once a month.

"On first discovering a car parked between 2 and 6 a. m. the police would place a sticker on the automobile, asking the owner to keep the machine off the street at night and giving him reasons why he should do so. The police would make a record of this car.

Owners to Face Court.

"On finding a car out the second time a court summons would be issued and the owner would have to pay a nominal fine in the Traffic court. If the car was found on the street a third time a truck would tow it to a municipal pound. To recover his property the owner would have to pay $2, which would cover the towing fee and a storage charge, which would be his entire penalty.

"This is the plan submitted by Col. Sprague's committee. Police Commissioner Allman may make some changes before opening his enforcement campaign."

VICTIMS IDENTIFY M'GEOGHEGAN AS BANK ROBBER

Danny McGeoghegan, 35 years old, south side beer leader who was arrested in a north side flat early yesterday, was identified as one of five bandits who robbed the State Bank of Clearing of $60,000 on Dec. 6, 1930, police revealed last night. He was also questioned by Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker about his knowledge of the slaying a month ago of Charles O'Donnell, brother of Spike O'Donnell.

Mrs. Vera Stewart, 32 years old, and Leonard Patrick, 18 years old, the latter wanted on a charge of murder, were seized with him in a flat at 630½ Arlington place. Patrick was named by a coroner's jury as the slayer of Herman Glick, who was shot in front of his home at 1319 South Sawyer avenue on April 4. Glick, who was a friend of four youths sent to prison for the murder of Policeman James Caplis, named Patrick as his assailant in a dying statement.

According to Mrs. Stewart, she knew McGeoghegan only as Dan Kelly and was ignorant that he was a gangster. She added that they expected to be married as soon as he could get a divorce from his present wife.

MAYOR APPOINTS TWO ATTORNEYS TO SCHOOL BOARD

Ernest Buehler and O. J. Taylor Named.

viding for expert advice on a school operating plan costing less than the $90,000,000 budget.

At this meeting also it had been planned to elect Joseph Burkhardt secretary of the board, at the telegraphic request of a former mayor. That plan will start a battle, it is expected, as soon as the new trustees take their seats.

Opposition to Economy Plan.

It is expected that the old trustees will oppose a reduction in the $90,000,000 budget. It is said to be the opinion of the board's law department that it is legally impossible to cut appropriations already made. That is the reason for the bill in the general assembly granting the board power to reduce its budget; and it is understood that Mayor Cermak's friends will attempt to revive that bill in Springfield next week.

Other lawyers are said to hold that the school board has the power to reduce its budget. With the advent of the two new trustees, the old crowd will probably call for a formal opinion on the point. It is rumored that the trustees appointed by a former mayor will rely upon that opinion to prevent a reduction in appropriations and a consequent cut in taxes.

Elect President Soon.

The lines for and against economy must be drawn quickly and sharply, because the election of a president of the board is only two weeks away. Last week it was reported that a group of the trustees, headed by Joseph P. Savage, favored Trustee James Hemingway, chairman of the old board's finance committee. More recently the name of Trustee McJunkin has been mentioned for the honor, but his resolution of last Wednesday probably has not enhanced his chances. Mayor Cermak said yesterday he had no candidate in mind.

Woman Shot by Bandits Is in a Critical Condition

Mrs. Stella Michniewicz, 33 years old, 2104 South Washtenaw avenue, who was shot by one of four robbers yesterday in her husband's paint and hardware store, at that address, was in a critical condition in St. Anthony's hospital, it was reported last night. Her husband, Frank, was forced to enter the living quarters in the rear when his wife suddenly appeared. Apparently made panicky by her appearance, one of the bandits fired. The bullet struck her in the head. The robbers fled without loot.

Found Dead in His Auto from Carbon Monoxide

John R. Lang, 41 years old, of 6357 Clyde avenue, an insurance man, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in his automobile at 49th street and East End avenue early this morning. All the windows of the car were closed and the fumes were generated inside through the heater. Hyde Park police said they believed that Lang ended his own life. His death was discovered by Policeman Louis Des Jardins. Lang was a district agent for an insurance company with offices at 2100 East 71st street.

The value is self-evident.

SHUT OFF ATTACK ON $15,000,000 CITY ECONOMIES

Aldermen Will Vote on Measures Wednesday.

Two retrenchment ordinances, embodying Mayor Cermak's plan for cutting the 1932 city budget $15,457,740 below the 1931 appropriations, were ordered deferred and published yesterday by the city council.

The delay was agreed upon Thursday, when the measure were approved unanimously by the finance committee, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], who opposed the retrenchment plan, made two unsuccessful attempts to speak on the subject. He first arose to speak after the ordinances had been ordered published, and was ruled out of order. Again he turned his remarks to retrenchment after arising to speak on a routine matter, a driveway permit in his ward, but was again ruled out of order by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], who was presiding in Mayor Cermak's place.

To Be Passed Next Week.

The ordinances will come up for passage at the next council meeting, Wednesday.

Mayor Cermak's appointment of William H. Bled as a library trustee to succeed Leopold Saltiel was approved.

The council adopted a resolution recommending passage of the proposed new bond issue of $20,000,000 for unemployment relief by the legislature, but not until several aldermen had criticized the manner in which the present $18,750,000 relief fund is being disbursed under the direction of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

Would Help Home Owners.

Ald. John Toman [23d] introduced a resolution requiring the finance committee to hold hearings on the petition of any unemployed home owner who is threatened with loss of his property through inability to pay taxes, and to recommend measures to the council for preventing such occurrences. It was referred to the finance committee.

Another resolution, by Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th], urged citizens to clean up the city before the national party conventions open here in June, that Chicago may be presented to the convention delegates "as a clean, peaceful, and enterprising city." It was passed.

Provides Jobs

The spring moving rush began throughout Chicago yesterday and is expected to continue at peak activity today, tomorrow, and Monday. Moving concerns employed many extra helpers to assist on their trucks in the annual spring migration of Chicagoans.

The volume of moving this spring remained undetermined yesterday. Real estate agents said they were renewing more leases than last year, and that the volume of moving was lower than last spring. Moving concerns said the volume of moving is lower than last year, but that more furniture is being placed in storage. The Illinois Bell Telephone company has had approximately the same number of requests for changes in telephones as last spring. The Peoples Gas company has had 2,000 more requests for changes in service this month than the same month last spring, or an increase of 4.7 per cent.

$2,512,139 CLAIMS PENDING AGAINST ESTATE OF AMES

Thirteen claims totaling $2,512,139 are now pending in the Probate court against the estate of the late Knowlton L. Ames, chairman of the board of the Booth Fisheries company, it was disclosed by Mitchell C. Robin, probate clerk, yesterday, when two large claims were filed. Yesterday's claimants were the Chase National bank of New York, which filed for $1,752,340, and the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, which filed for $200,000.

Mr. Ames' estate was estimated at $50,000 when his will was admitted to probate recently. He left $1,000,000 insurance trust which provided for his family. Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. recently held the trust inviolate and beyond the reach of creditors.

Both the bank claims against the estate were in the nature of protective measures on guarantees of bond issues which Mr. Ames had given. One of the other claims against the estate is that of the Farnum-Winter company, brokers, which filed for a $360,065 debt on an open account which Mr. Ames had with the company. The defunct Gurnett & Co., Boston brokers, have a $350,000 suit against the estate pending in the court of Superior Judge Walter Steffen. The brokers charge that the debt was contracted during the operation of a pool in certain stocks during the 1929 market cash.

Warden Hill Accepts Job as Head of U. S. Prison

Henry C. Hill, warden of Joliet penitentiary, announced yesterday that he would go to Lewisburg, Pa., on July 1 to take charge of a new federal prison there. Warden Hill, who has been at Joliet for three years, made the announcement following his return from Washington, where he conferred with government officials. His successor has not been named. Col. Frank D. Whipp, superintendent of prisons, will take charge of Joliet prison temporarily with the departure of Warden Hill.

LINCOLN WIDOW NOT PENNILESS, REMOVAL OF RECORDS REVEAL

Springfield, Ill., April 29.—[Special.]—Removal of certain court records from the Sangamon County court to the state historical library here this week served to clear up a persistent historical error. It concerns the financial condition of Mary Todd Lincoln, widow of Abraham Lincoln, who died some seventeen years after her husband.

It is one of the traditions concerning Mrs. Lincoln that she was left penniless and that she suffered from poverty after the death of President Lincoln.

Records of the probate court in Sangamon county, which were moved to the historical library for the convenience of public inspection, show that Mrs. Lincoln's estate was invoiced at $77,555 at the time of her death. She possessed $72,000 in 4 per cent federal gold bonds, personal effects valued at $5,000, and currency of $555. Accrued interest on the bonds boosted the value of the estate to $84,035. Robert T. Lincoln, the son, was administrator of the estate, and he furnished bond of $180,000. No debts or other claims against the estate appear in the records.

Photostatic copies of the papers are made for the court, while the original documents go to the library, where the probate records of Mr. Lincoln's estate have long rested.

TRIES SUICIDE AND IS HURT BY GAS EXPLOSION

James Epperson's attempted suicide by gas ended in an explosion early this morning and sent him to the Alexian Brothers' hospital in a critical condition from gas and burns.

During the morning Epperson, who is 30 years old and who came from St. Louis recently, moved his bed mattress into the kitchen of his apartment at 3606 North Racine avenue. Then he turned on five gas burners.

The room filled with fumes. Suddenly an explosion shook the building. Firemen under Chief A. G. Brandt of the 13th battalion found Epperson unconscious in the gas filled room. Damage was estimated at $1,000. It is believed the blast occurred when the accumulated fumes were set off by a pilot light on the range.

NEW JERSEY GIRL TO WED SON OF H. B. FIRESTONE

New York, April 29.—(AP)—The engagement of Miss Polly Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Curtis of South Orange, N. J., and Brookfield, Conn., to Leonard K. Firestone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Firestone of Akron, O., was announced tonight at a dinner given by the parents of the bride elect.

Miss Curtis, a granddaughter of the late William E. Curtis of Washington, was a debutante of 1928 and is a member of the Junior League of the Oranges. She was educated in this country and Italy.

Mr. Firestone was graduated from Princeton university in 1931 and since has been connected with the Firestone Tire and Rubber company.

Husband Ends His Life on Rails After Beating Wife

About 9 o'clock last night Mortagi Stebelman, 62 years old, a salesman, and his wife, Metlea, 58, engaged in a domestic tiff in their home at 7940 Paxton avenue. Police arrived to find the wife beaten and took her to the South Shore hospital. Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning Stebelman's body was found on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks where they cross South Chicago avenue. He had lain crosswise on the rails and a passing train had severed his head and feet.

PERSONALTY TAX 31.8% PAID; ONLY TWO DAYS REMAIN

Collections on 1930 Levy Far Behind 1929.

With the deadline for the payment of 1930 personal property taxes only two days away, collections yesterday amounted to only $17,631,899, which is 31.8 per cent of the total personalty levy of $55,492,275.

Tomorrow, May 1, is the penalty date for personal property taxes, but since the day is a holiday payments will be accepted until Monday evening by County Treasurer McDonough without penalty. This is the first year that the penalty of 1 per cent a month on delinquent personal property taxes has been assessed, under an act passed by the legislature in 1931. The recent action of the legislature in postponing the deadline on 1930 real estate taxes did not affect the personalty tax.

Despite the new penalty provisions, personalty tax collections this year are far below the total collected last year under the 1929 levy. July 10 was the delinquency date last year, although no penalty was assessed for delinquent personal property taxes. On that date $24,625,505 had been paid. This was 54 per cent of the 1929 personalty levy of $45,501,207, as compared with the 31.8 which has been collected to date on the larger 1930 levy. About 2 per cent has been paid since that date.

The approaching penalty date on personalty taxes was reflected yesterday in payments of $591,428, the largest single day's collections this year in that classification. Real estate tax payments were only $299,029 during the day.

Western Electric Pays.

On the personalty payments yesterday, completing payment of its personal property tax bill of about half a million dollars.

While 31.8 per cent of the personalty taxes have been paid, these have come from only 8.5 per cent of the taxpayers listed on the personal property books. There were 279,274 personal property items in the 1930 levy, and of these 255,442, or 91.5 per cent, are still unpaid.

MOTORIST DIES AS TRAIN HITS HIS AUTOMOBILE

Bjorn G. Oberg, 66 years old, was killed yesterday when his automobile was struck by a Rock Island passenger train at the Central avenue crossing on the outskirts of Oak Forest. Oberg, a commercial photographer at 9 South Clinton street, was carrying a camera in his car. His son, Gunnar, told police that his father was on the trip to take pictures of subdivision homes for sale. Oberg lived with his son and daughter, Rosalie, 25 years old, at 4365 Lake Park avenue.

This death brought the 1932 Cook county toll to 354. There were no other fatalities recorded yesterday.

Miss Helen Leineke, 19 years old; Miss Irene Kroeger, 13 years old, and Hiram Hollingsworth, 19 years old, all of Wheaton, were injured when the car in which they were passengers collided with another machine at Addison street and Cicero avenue. They were taken to the Belmont hospital.

WOMEN VOTERS WANT COUNTRY TO JOIN LEAGUE

Feminine Politicians Fail, Member Says.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 29.—Just before adjournment of its tenth convention here the National League of Women Voters this afternoon voted to lend its active support to membership of the United States in the league of nations. The measure, introduced by Mrs. A. J. McGuire of St. Paul, was passed with practically no argument and with only three dissenting votes.

The League of Women Voters thus becomes the first large feminine organization, it is believed, to go on record as actively endorsing the league of nations. It has studied the subject for years.

Earlier in the day Miss Marguerite Wells of Minneapolis coolly admitted from the rostrum that women in politics have been failures up to this immediate point. Her arraignment, of course, was of women generally and not of the league she addressed.

Racing through its order of business forty minutes behind schedule, the convention crowded into its final two hours, debate and action on the major issues to come before the gathering. It was inevitable that the most pertinent—Miss Gertrude Ely's proposal for an emergency program to insure action by the league in the economic crisis—had to be deferred.

Committee Reports Today.

Because the committee appointed to draw up such a program found the time inadequate to report its findings to the convention proper, Miss Ely requested that an emergency advisory committee be directed to make its report to the national council at its post-convention meeting here tomorrow, the council then to acquaint the state leagues with those items selected from the organization program for concentrated action.

These items will be grouped under the four divisions suggested by the author of the proposal as unemployment; public finance [particularly in relation to securing efficient administration and safeguarding public welfare]; urgent international measures, and pre-election responsibilities.

Miss Wells spoke in the capacity of chairman of the standing committee on pre-election activities in launching her shaft against the enfranchised feminine world.

Fail to Make Progress.

"The committee believes," she said, "that it may be under obligation at this time to express its agreement with opinions frequently repeated during the last few years, that women are not making progress in finding for themselves places of influence in the parties and in the usual political organizations; that they are not receiving the expected consideration due them from political leaders, and that recognition of them as candidates either for elective or appointive offices is not increasing.

"We call these facts to the attention of the convention at this time, that it may have them in mind in making its plans for pre-election activities."

Further recognition by the convention of the "unprecedented emergency situation," as it was designated by Miss Ely, was evident in the plan submitted by Edward S. Robinson of the Institute of Human Relations at Yale. Prof. Robinson proposed that the league coöperate with him in using the period prior to the November elections in compiling a scientific survey of the voter's motives. The league voted to assist him.

First Study of Kind.

This study would be the first of its kind ever attempted in this country, and was recommended enthusiastically to the convention by the committee of which Miss Wells is chairman.

A budget of $113,500 for the year was adopted late in the afternoon with a modicum of discussion. The amount is $25,000 less than that of the previous twelve months. Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, president of the organization, added to the discussion the information that all salaries have been cut.

Miss Sherwin was returned to office for her fifth term of two years, it was found when the result of the voting during the past two days was announced.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle of Washington, D. C., was elected vice president of the league, and Mrs. John Hewitt Rosenstell of Freeport, regional director of the Chicago area, was returned to that office.

BABY CLAIMED BY MOTHER IN COURT TODAY

The red haired 14 months old baby, Joan, sought by her mother, Agnes McConnell of Detroit, will be brought into the court of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch this morning by Assistant City Prosecutor Samuel E. Epstein, her recently acquired bachelor foster father. Mr. Epstein was served with a writ of habeas corpus yesterday commanding him to bring the baby into court today. Through her attorneys, Joseph A. Kolb and Chester E. Lewis, the mother claims that she left the baby in a nurse's care while she was in Detroit and in the nurse's absence the landlady at 5818 South Park way called Epstein saying the baby was ill. He came and took the baby, according to her story, without her consent, and later legally adopted it without her knowledge.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

REDUCTION BY ROOT AND BRANCH.

Economy in Washington will not mean much until it means root and branch. There are necessitous functions of the federal government. In these the administration may be improvident for various political reasons, but the work is essential. It is reserved exclusively to the federal government. No state is permitted to undertake it and none is prepared to do so.

The services reserved exclusively for the federal government are self-evident. They are incorporated in the army and navy departments, in the treasury, postoffice, and department of state. They must be maintained, although they must guard their expenditures. The state department is guilty of extravagant nonsense, as revealed in Mr. Stimson's request for a half million dollars to cover the cost of American participation at the arms conference. If a negotiator had an allowance for three meals a day and a room there would be fewer conferences interesting to American diplomacy. Swiss villas make a bull market for international whoopee.

In another class are the assumed services of the federal government. They have nothing to do with the original ideas of the American Union. They have been undertaken because congress has been the line of least resistance for what Cromwell called pragmatical fellows. It is the instinct of politics to create jobs. When this instinct is stimulated by enthusiastic or self-interested groups the consequence is an extension of federal government into fields which properly were closed to it.

In the departments, bureaus, and boards thus established there has been the growth of the socialistic or communistic features of the American nation which have so changed its character. It is not the business of the United States to build hard roads for states, to provide maternity care, buy wheat or cotton, procure water for cities, supervise education or child welfare, supply seed or fertilizer, restrict earnings, impose punitive taxes, regulate personal habit, and care for the indigent.

In days of abundant revenue social ideas backed by special zeal but unsupported by any structural purpose of the American Union weasel their way into the appropriation bills. Each opening is expanded by subsequent appropriations and new government policies are soon found in full swing. Then it is next to impossible to get rid of any of them. All resist separation from the body to which they have attached themselves.

Even if revenue had continued to come in without stint the prevalence of these activities would have been disturbing to Americans who cannot see without regret the revolutionary changes to which an unconscious nation submits. Now that revenue has vanished it is disastrous to support these alien elements in the federal government. True economy would not clip at their twigs, but would take them out, root and branch, stripping the government at Washington down to its primitive size and restricting it to its elemental functions.

THE IRISH OATH TO THE KING.

De Valera was checked temporarily in the Free State parliament when labor, at the opening of debate of the bill to repudiate the oath to the British crown, protested that the domestic economic situation was a more important issue. He lost the vote on the question of devoting the dail's time exclusively to the oath until a decision was reached.

The president of the Free State, speaking for his bill, said that if the Irish cannot abolish the oath without thereby voting themselves out of the British empire they are then legally rated as less than the people of the dominions who are not denied the privilege of remaining in the association on their own terms.

With the exception of South Africa, the British dominions have less justification for the abrogation of the oath and less right to the privileges of autonomy than the Free State. They have never fought for their independence. They have been nourished under the British flag. When England was truculent, aggressive and holding tight, Canada, for instance, resisted attempts to make it independent. Its bone and sinew came from American colonists who refused to accept a government without the British king. Religion kept the French-Canadians from joining the English colonies to the south. Loyalty to monarchy kept the English in Canada from joining, and the American loyalists who would not live without the king moved into Canada by the thousands during the American revolution and after its success.

The Irish of the present Free State fought the Normans after the Saxons of England had submitted. In century after century they arose against the English power at every opportunity. They have been ruled, but they never submitted except when resistance was impossible. They opposed the swords of the Plantagenets, the pikes of Cromwell and the bayonets of William of Orange. Their desire for release from feudal forms of overlordship has not been born with the new amiability of Great Britain. An oath of personal fealty to a British king might be congenial to Canadian sentiment as it has been traditional in Canadian history, but remain distasteful to a Free State Irishman. His case is different.

BELATED FORESIGHT IN RAILROAD REGULATION.

The house of representatives has made it rather plain that this is not a moment at which broad and sound considerations are likely to get very far in national legislation. About the best we can expect is that no irretrievable mistakes will be made under the pressure and confusion of emergencies and that some useful measures will be adopted to meet urgent needs.

Nevertheless, there are developments which promise, if not immediate benefits, at least an approach which may reach them in more favorable circumstances. One of these is the declaration in the latest report of the interstate commerce commission that as railroad revenue must inevitably fall below normal in times of depression, since railroad traffic reflects business conditions very closely, the railroads properly may be permitted to rise above normal in times of prosperity.

This is a rather tardy common sense and would have saved the railroads and the country a good deal of unnecessary misfortune had it influenced the judgment of the commission from the beginning. But better late than never. The trouble with the commission as a defender of the public interest is that it was created at a time when evils in unrestrained competition for traffic obscured the interest of the public as well as railroad investors in a constructive policy of regulation. The commission got set in an attitude of negation and acted under pressure of the public hostility which shortsighted and inconsiderate railroad tactics had blown into angry flame. Politicians thrived by baiting the railroads and shipping interests allowed their sense of injustice or of immediate advantage to obscure their eventual interest in the maintenance of transportation efficiency and progress. Both the railroads and the public contributed to bringing about the situation in which rail transport now finds itself, a situation injurious to both.

This truth has been long in arriving in public opinion and longer in the commission's policy. But certainly if the commission is to continue to struggle with the impossible task of fixing the rate structure of all the nation's railroads, to say nothing of water and motor traffic, as lately urged, there must be recognition by the commission and the public of the principle at last discovered and the replacement of obstructive by constructive policy. The alternative is the ruin of the railroads as private enterprise and the establishment on the wreckage of complete political control and bureaucratic management.

But, though the present commission has finally discovered a principle of rate regulation which should have controlled regulation from its beginning, its declaration does not give much support to its proposal that the regulation of interstate bus lines and truck carriers be added to its responsibilities. The fact remains that not only the commission's want of sound policy but also the complexity of the task of fixing rates for the railroads of a vast continent have retarded the development and nearly ruined the railroads. To add to the impossible task of rate making for the railroads that of regulating buses and motor trucks would increase the inefficiency of railroad regulation and extend its mischief to the new agencies of transport. The cure of the evils of regulation is not more regulation, but less. Wiser policies may ameliorate present conditions, but, politics notwithstanding, there is no substantial remedy but a radical relief of the railroads from the strangling network of restraints which passes for regulation.

CHICAGO'S EXCEPTIONAL MAYOR.

Mayor Cermak is one of the few public officials in the United States who have made any honest attempt to adjust government costs to possibilities of revenue. His plan for reductions in the city of Chicago pay rolls required political courage to accept the facts and take the consequences for the public good. This attitude is exceptional. That it should be exceptional is a calamity in itself, but one look at tax spenders elsewhere in the country will prove how unusual it is.

Washington is a spectacle to make the citizen sick with alarm. It shows only a profligate abandon in its indifference to the state of the nation. Congress behaves as an intruder living upon a country which it is the intent to destroy. The bureaucracy repels every attempt to drive it away from the public funds which now represent the last drain upon the nation's resources. With few exceptions the country over the tax spender's determination is that the last penny shall be his. In this extremity the American people might very well get along without government. It is very doubtful that they can get along with it and survive.

THE KREUGER REPORT.

[Dallas News.]

Emerson's well grounded assertion that every great institution is the lengthening shadow of a single man acquires a bitter reverse interpretation in the disclosures of misrepresentation on the balance sheets of the great Kreuger & Toll company. The suicide of Ivar Kreuger is seen as the easiest way out for an intolerable condition, willfully created, which must involve in losses many investors. These were willing to gamble on the acumen of a great financier, but did not regard staking faith in his integrity as taking a chance.

The ramifications of the two principal Kreuger concerns are world-wide. Within the week arrangements have been made to protect the interests of American holders of securities of both Kreuger & Toll and of International Match corporation; American issues of Kreuger & Toll alone represent a par value of $47,596,500; International Match has two issues in this country approximating 96 million dollars. How far the questionable balance sheets affect the character of the security only the future can determine.

As in the Bank of Kentucky case, still in the courts and involving responsibility of directors for business caution, the Kreuger debacle calls attention to the need of sound audit practice in business. The same condition was necessarily emphasized in the trial of Lord Kylsant in London over misrepresentation to investors in the case of the Royal Mail line. There probably is in these and similar cases of industrial and business leaders less of real criminal intent than a belief that deception would help the business turn the corner and make money for the deceived. Presumably there is no criminal intent on the bank clerk's part when he embezzles today in the all too erroneous conviction that he can replace tomorrow.

Sound auditing does not permit an incorrect balance sheet; it is the only real safeguard of the investor.

GOV. RITCHIE OF MARYLAND is said to be highly pleased over a campaign song for him written by some of his admirers in Baltimore. It's called "America Awake" and is sung to the navy tune "Anchors Aweigh," if you really feel that you must sing, only please don't do it where we can hear you.

"Ritchie of Maryland, true Democrat,
Father of states' rights will put a feather in your hat,
Ritchie of Maryland means victory, ay."

If the nomination of Mr. Ritchie means we'll have to listen to that horrible song then we are reluctantly, sadly, but firmly compelled to withdraw our support from Mr. Ritchie and hand it to Harry Byrd of Virginia. Ah, well may Gov. Ritchie exclaim: "I can protect myself against my enemies, but God save me from my poets!"

OPEN YOUR DOOR.

I hear you
Sighing over drouth,
Babbling about futility.
Open your door—open your door!
Feel the warm breath of the wind
Blowing from the south.

Open your door!
Feel the sweet drops
Coming from yonder cloud,
See your garden there;
Green tips bursting through,
Tulips in bud,
Lilacs purpling for you,
See beyond . . . the fields
Waiting the plowing,
Waiting the seeding.

Open your door!
Spring is promising,
Spring is creating.
Open your door and talk not to me
Of last year's drouth
Nor of futility.

WOMEN! BAH!

Sir: Etymologists to the contrary, the word woman was coined not only as a substantive but as a warning, its original form being "whoa! man." Later, some pundit who couldn't get a laugh out of woman removed the "ha," thereby reducing the word to its present size.

VEGETABLE MILK.

If for any reason a baby cannot digest milk the mother has a choice between substitutes. One is vegetable milk.

Dr. Dorothy E. Lane of San Francisco gives the following directions for making vegetable milk. The necessary ingredients are: Unbleached almonds, peanuts, whole wheat flour [genuine], shorts, soy bean flour, cornstarch, sugar, salt, and several vegetables such as celery, chard, carrots, string beans, and lettuce. This list of vegetables might be extended considerably, although she specifies that plums, prunes, cranberries, and spinach are not to be used.

Method of Making.

Unbleached almonds are ground to make an almond meal. Unroasted peanuts are also ground to a flour or near that.

Three level tablespoonfuls [¾ ounce] almond flour is added to ½ tablespoon of peanut flour. These are mixed. To this mixture is added ½ tablespoon of whole wheat flour, ½ tablespoon shorts, 1 tablespoon soy bean flour, and ½ tablespoon cornstarch. These are mixed well.

The vegetable juice purée or extract—whatever one wishes to call it—is made as follows:

The vegetables chosen are washed thoroughly. They are ground raw in a meat grinder and mixed well. They are then covered with water and set in a refrigerator and left overnight, or for several hours. In the morning the juice is extracted twice, the first time cold. After that water is added to the vegetables and they are brought to a boil. The second extraction is that with the hot water.

A little of the cold vegetable water is added to the mixed flours and the whole is well mixed. Then the remainder of the vegetable extract is added and the mixture of flours and vegetable juice is boiled for three minutes. It is then rubbed through a fine purée sieve to get rid of the fiber and coarser material. One tablespoonful of sugar is added. Dr. Lane used dextromaltose and increases the quantity slightly if the baby is a boy. [Boys seem to be in need of more sugar than girls; that is, in babyhood. In adolescence it may be the other way.] To the mixture a little salt is added.

Not counting the hours in which the vegetables steep in water in the ice box this vegetable milk can be prepared in one-half hour.

The young baby on mother's milk is gradually changed over to vegetable milk. A very little is given the first day, more the second, and more day by day. At three months of age the use of mother's milk is wholly discontinued and the baby is living on vegetable milk, fruit juice, and one of the fish liver oils. After a short while crackers are added to the diet.

1. No one knows the cause. Some appear to have been born that way, some to have too little adrenal solution, prolapsed organs, or starch indigestion. Some appear to be without the ability to get excited. Part of this is effect and part cause. No one has an answer to your question.
2. Many wear supporters; others avoid starches and sugars in their diet. Some train their capacities for enthusiasm and excitement.

FACTS ABOUT SPLEEN.

Mrs. M. G. writes:

1. What is the spleen?
2. What work does it do?
3. Can it be injured and how?

REPLY.

1. The spleen is a large organ located in the abdomen under the ribs, on the left side of the body. It lies in a position on the left side corresponding to that of the liver on the right side. In the carcass of lower animals it is called the milt.
2. It is a part of the blood vessel system and acts as a reservoir for blood. This causes it to swell and shrink accordingly as the blood is principally in the internal organs or in the skin. It also has to do with changing the blood in particulars that are not well known.
3. It can. It can be fractured by blows or falls. Certain diseases, such as typhoid fever, pneumonia, and malaria cause it to swell after a fashion that suggests that the spleen is being punished. In leucemia the spleen is enormously enlarged.

PERMANENT PAVING SOON.

Chicago, April 24.—[Friend of the People.]—Glenwood avenue had a sewer put in last fall and was left unpaved. The street has been in very bad condition for the last eight years and now is shocking. Parkways are all torn up, and every time a vehicle goes by a cloud of dust comes into the premises. Even by washing windows twice a week they still appear like a chicken coop. Anything that can be done to alleviate this condition will be appreciated. L. K. R.

As the writer states, a sewer was installed in Glenwood avenue last fall, and pending necessary settlement of restored excavated material a temporary roadway of stone was put in. Permanent restoration of pavement will be made by the contractor within a short time. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1895

LONDON, March 11.—A dispatch from Peking says the Chinese government, through United States Ministers Charles Denby and Edwin Dun, has agreed upon the points in the peace conference regarding the indspendence of Corea, the cession of territory, and a money indemnity to be agreed upon by the envoys. It is expected the agreement will be signed at an early date.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A cable report that a Japanese squadron of sixteen warships has descended on the island of Formosa is believed at the Japanese legation here to indicate the opening of a spring campaign in warmer southern latitudes.

TIENTSIN, March 16.—Viceroy Li Hung Chang, China's peace envoy to Japan, left Taku last night for Japan. It is reported here that the Japanese are rapidly repulsing the Chinese generals, Sung and Ju.

TOKIO, March 17.—The Japanese government already knows what credentials have been given by the Chinese government to Li Hung Chang and these credentials are correct in form.

YOKOHAMA, March 17.—It is officially announced that Prince Komatsu has been ordered to the front as commander in chief of the expedition which it is intended will march on Peking.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 30, 1904.

LONDON.—With Vice Admiral Togo's formidable fleet again before Port Arthur and Vice Admiral Kamimura with another powerful fleet at Vladivostok, important naval events are expected. Viceroy Alexieff reported that Japanese ships were sighted six miles off Port Arthur on the night of April 28 and that on the next morning ten Japanese cruisers and six torpedo boats were seen in Usuri bay, adjacent to Vladivostok.

ST. PETERSBURG.—One hundred thousand persons witnessed the arrival here of the survivors of the Variag and Korietz. A vast crowd of cheering men was stretched along the Nevsky from the railroad depot to the palace square. Grand Duke Alexis as high admiral received the heroes. The crews of the Variag and Korietz were mustered on the platform, each man wearing a St. George's cross. They also were greeted as they passed the winter palace by the emperor and the empress, who came out on the balcony.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. George Benedict Carpenter today will be elected president of the Chicago Woman's club. She is the only nominee, although she has never been an officer of the club.

MENTONE, France.—Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal, is stated on good authority to have developed symptoms of cerebral affection and a consultation of physicians has been held. Mr. Kruger is extremely weak and constant care is necessary.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 30, 1916.

LONDON.—Peter Pearce, "president of the Irish republic," has surrendered to the royal British troops in Dublin and James Connolly, "vice president and commander in chief" of the army, has been killed, according to a report made public by the British official press bureau. Dispatches from Ireland indicate that the revolution is rapidly approaching an end. At last accounts the rebels were trapped in the center of Dublin by a powerful cordon of government troops. Fires are still raging.

CHICAGO.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt brought 1,500 Illinois and Chicago lawyers to their feet in wild cheering at the Illinois Bar association banquet at the Hotel La Salle when he demanded universal service in the United States, modeled on the Swiss and Australian systems. The demonstration came after he had been urging for an hour the gospel of "genuine Americanism," with no hyphen. "Unite and prepare!" was his war cry to the nation.

EL PASO, Tex.—The first conference between Gens. Scott and Funston, representing the United States, and Gen. Obregon, with several aids as Carranza envoys, ended after a two hours' debate without any visible tangible results. None of those present at the conference would divulge what transpired behind the locked doors in the Juarez custom house. A new factor is believed to have been injected into the conference by receipt of fresh reports that Villa is dead. Mexican Consul Garcia said that Col. Carlos Carranza had telegraphed him that he had been unable to find Villa's body, but that he had established beyond dispute that the bandit leader was dead.

LONDON.—The British garrison, numbering 10,000, at Cut-El-Amara, Mesopotamia, 105 miles southeast of Bagdad, has surrendered to the Turks after 143 days' siege. The forces surrendered were composed of 2,700 British and 6,700 Indian troops. A Turkish report places the number of British prisoners at 13,300 men, including Gen. Townshend, commander of the garrison. The official announcement says that Gen. Townshend destroyed his guns and munitions before surrendering. The garrison was near starvation.

WARD COMMITTEEMEN.

Chicago, April 26.—In the old days, when Lorimer, Pease, and Herts dominated the Republican party in Cook county, which was before the advent of direct primaries, such a thing as a ward committeeman not being a legal, bona fide resident of the ward he represented in this body was unheard of.

At that time every ward committeeman of every ward lived and had his domicile in the ward he represented; but today that rule is frowned on, disrespected and disobeyed.

B. W. Snow continued to live in the 5th ward while representing the 6th ward in this body, against the emphatic protests of his constituents, who finally deposed him from office. Edward J. Brundage represented the old 23d ward in this body while living in Evanston or Wilmette. The late Charles V. Barrett represented the 21st ward on this body up to the time of his death, while having his domicile in the old 46th ward. And now Brother George, while living almost at the extreme limits of the south side, miles away from the 21st ward, represents it on the Republican county central committee, and is even said to be a candidate for chairman of that body.

They talk of "crooked politics" and denounce the methods of "ward heelers." Who is to blame for this condition except the leaders themselves, who set the example of dishonesty by allowing "nonresidents" to represent wards in which they do not live?

Either a ward committeeman should be a legal, bona fide resident of the ward he represents on the county central committee, or the leaders should give the rank and file to understand that fraud and dishonesty in all political activity will be the paramount work of the future. SQUARE DEAL.

PAYMENT IN FULL.

Davenport, Ia., April 21.—I was reading Senator Capper's suggestion to congress that two and one-half billion dollars be issued for the purpose of paying the soldiers' bonus. Of course, this is linked up with the idea that this increase of currency will be of benefit to industry in general, but the principal idea is the payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Now it occurs to me that any payment made to soldiers in the future should be considered a payment in full and some such arrangement should be made in making the payment Senator Capper has in mind. It would result in limiting additional payment that a soldier could get.

There is no question in my mind that the soldiers have organized themselves for the purpose of raiding the U. S. treasury periodically and that just as soon as they get their two and one-half billion dollars another movement will be started. If this were the end, it would not be so bad, but unless some curb is put on the ambitions of our soldiers they are going to break this government. BUSINESS MAN.

AN UNFORTUNATE OMISSION.

Chicago, April 25.—You have a picture of the new Broadway Limited leaving the Union station, with Jackie Cooper cutting the ribbons, but why don't you publish the names of these two men, engineer and conductor, who pilot this wonderful train? E. O.

THE MOONEY CASE.

Park Ridge, Ill., April 25.—In connection with the Mooney case so ably outlined in your issue of even date, three questions occur to me which some one more intimate with this cause célèbre, may be able to answer. They are:

1. In March, 1918, why did the Supreme court of California hold that it was without power to review the question of perjury alleged after the trial?
2. Why was the result of the investigation conducted by the United States director general kept secret and a demand for disclosure of his activities denied?
3. Why did the governor of California commute Mooney's sentence to life imprisonment but deny his application for pardon if Mooney was so absolutely guilty?

I am not a pacifist, not a radical [in the accepted sense of the word], and not identified with any labor organization, but just one of the many interested in the whys and wherefores of things, their relations and their effects. From past experience I find it necessary to make this last statement to offset the penchant so many illogical persons have of jumping to conclusions and crushing me with the rejoinder that [1] I am a radical; [2] I should go back where I came from; [3] that I do not love my Uncle Sammy; [4] that I am not a good old 100 per center and [5] that if I know of a better 'ole, like Bairnsfather's Bill, I should go to it. DREYFUS.

A GREAT NAME.

Chicago, April 26.—The clique that insisted upon dishonoring the name of Father Damen by murdering the historical associations that clung about the name of Robey street has had its way. The North Western railroad did the best it could to drive out the charm of tradition from the territory through which it runs when it changed the name of the Ravenswood station to Wilson avenue, and made other changes in old station names. The boosters did away with the fine old street name of Cass. And now come the organizers and petitioners with their drive to have the important part of Clark street called Broadway. Let us trust that we have a council and a mayor that will not permit this violence to be done to the memory of George Rogers Clark. Who is responsible, anyhow, for the naming of a Chicago street Broadway? The name never did belong here, and if any more street names must be changed, let this be the first one to go. SAMUEL L. ROBERTSON.

AT THE BOTTOM.

Vincennes, Ind., April 26.—Your cartoon in today's TRIBUNE, "The Real Bear Raider," smells like sour mash.

Why all this hullabaloo when industry, transportation and finance are seeking their true levels and put the blame on congress? Unless you help to do something for agriculture you are coming down to the bottomless pit where the farmer is and riding congress will get you nowhere.

The way out of your troubles is to start the upward movement at the bottom, whence comes all basic wealth. What in the world have you to holler about when corn sells for 20 cents, wheat for 45 cents, cotton for 5 cents, and tobacco for 6 cents? That is your trouble, not congress. JOHN NAPIER DYER.

FRENCH ELECTION CAMPAIGN ENDS; VOTE TOMORROW

Tardieu and Herriot Make Their Final Pleas.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 29.—The first half of the French electoral campaign wound up tonight when leaders of the two great opposing blocs, Premier Andre Tardieu and former Premier Edouard Herriot, issued their final appeals to the country.

ANDRE TARDIEU. [P. Thompson Photo]

From the tenor of these appeals—above all, from their omissions—it appears that the plebiscite from which Geneva and the world is expecting some clear cut answers to the European puzzle will be just another French election. At least that answer will not be found in Sunday's ballot, barring an unforeseen tidal wave to the right or to the left.

Minority Vote Is Balance.

If the French people have any reply to give to the international fixers who want to know how far they can go, that reply will be determined in the eight days elapsing between the first and second ballots. For it is then that Herriot's great radical Socialist party—which some see as the ultimate victor in the elections—will decide which way to throw the minority vote it will roll up in those districts where it cannot hope to win a seat for itself. The political orientation of Europe for the next few critical years may depend on what party the French radicals choose to support as a second bet.

No indication of this choice was contained in the speeches of Herriot. The cagy radical leader resolutely refused to say whether he will ally himself with the group immediately on his left—Socialists who are openly campaigning against the treaty of Versailles—or the vast coalition on his right, which upholds the traditional French doctrine of the inviolability of signatures.

Regarding debts, Herriot approves the report of the Basel experts, who voted to maintain the principle of the Young plan, but to allow Germany generous facilities for payments and a limited downward revision. "Collaboration" with the United States in this is necessary, Herriot thinks.

Would Pass Buck to United States.

The former premier would also like to pass the buck to the United States on disarmament and the Versailles territorial puzzle.

"Our American friends who are always so ready to give us good advice must see things as they are," Herriot says. "If the Versailles peace treaty goes limping along it is because in refusing to participate in a security treaty they have cut off one of its legs."

The real feature of these elections is that the radical party does not dare to go to the country with its real program which is sympathetic to the German clamor for revision of the treaties—and at least leaves the door open to possible negotiations.

Premier Tardieu is expected to emerge from the two elections as the strongest single factor in French politics, but the present Nationalist majority probably will be diminished. The radical Socialists may increase their strength at the expense of both the left and center, but may have to compromise with the Tardieu group if they want to share in his power.

Expect Socialists to Lose.

Political experts predict that the Communists will gain slightly; that the Socialists will lose heavily, and that the extreme right will lose a few seats to the center.

If these predictions are confirmed by developments, France's next government will be a coalition of moderate Nationalists and moderate radicals, probably headed by Tardieu, with Herriot as foreign minister.

All cabinet members and most of the opposition chiefs are believed to be certain of reëlection. No change in the foreign policy is expected to result.

STIMSON TO HEAR LEAGUE ARGUE ON JAP WAR TODAY

'Big Shots' of Arms Parley Begin to Quit Geneva.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, April 29.—The great powers got together today and agreed in principle that their conversations, the breakdown of which means the virtual breakdown of the disarmament conference, ought to be revived.

Actual adjournment, as proposed by Prime Minister MacDonald of England, was decided against. But in bringing forth the statement that the conversations, which were interrupted when Premier Tardieu of France developed a sore throat, "should be resumed at the earliest possible moment," the delegates admitted that the conference has broken down until further notice.

It was suggested that "this resumption ought to take place within a fortnight," but what assurance there is for this is unknown.

Exodus of Envoys Begins.

The exodus of statesmen already has begun. Chancellor Bruening of Germany left this morning. MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon of England plan to leave tomorrow. American Secretary of State Stimson is planning to leave Sunday after the league of nations assembly meeting tomorrow, which will discuss the question nearest his heart—the Sino-Japanese war.

The assembly will hear the report of the committee of nineteen, which was prepared today. The report seriously amends the draft prepared by Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, so as to mention the points at which the Japanese balked.

Swanson Defends U. S. Navy.

Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia today made a thumping defense before the naval commission of the disarmament conference of the American stand that neither its battleships nor the London or Washington treaties can be tampered with.

The senator had been listening for three days to arguments against capital ships from the Italians, French, Germans, Spaniards, and others. The American delegation, when it arrived at Geneva, had made it clear that these treaties were not to be touched. The senator had been hearing that battleships are highly offensive.

"The United States," Swanson said, "is unequivocally opposed to classification of the battleship as a specifically offensive weapon. Battleships are our chief line of defense against a foreign aggressor."

British Admiral Aids Him.

Vice Admiral Alfred Pound of the British navy, who is not always on the senator's side, rushed to his help by saying that battleships are more precious than rubies, and are not offensive, as is well known, they could not batter down land fortifications in order to effect an invasion, he said.

The senator warned the commission that care must be taken to conserve the existing methods of defense, since changes are bound to mean additional expense. The battleship is far more effective and cheaper than fortification of the coast of the United States, he said. Nor could the American navy be regarded as aggressive, since America possesses no army that could be quickly transported.

"The United States regards herself as the special guardian in peace and war of the Panama canal as an international highway and her navy is wholly defensive," he said. "The United States adheres to the Kellogg pact, too. The American fleet, if completed, would equal any, but it does not claim superiority."

SANDINO'S CHIEF AID AND 9 OTHERS SLAIN IN BATTLE

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 29.—Forty-five National Guardsmen, commanded by Lieut. John Hamas of the United States Marine corps, whose home is in Philadelphia, Sergt. John A. Burn of Burgaw, N. C., and Roy E. Vogel of Stockton, Cal., made a surprise attack on April 25 on the main camp of Augusto Sandino, Nigaraguan rebel commander. The camp consisted of thirty-five shacks, occupied by 250 well armed insurgents, and was located near Apali, five miles from the Honduras border.

The Guardsmen killed ten of Gen. Sandino's men, including Florencio Silva, Sandino's chief aid, and wounded many others. The camp was destroyed. The fight lasted three hours.

RIGA, Latvia, April 29.—Unemployment is rapidly increasing in Russia, where, according to reports received by the Baltic governments, there is well over a million jobless. The soviets hitherto have boasted that they had no unemployment problem.

Although the soviet press has not mentioned the recent shutting down of factories at Moscow and other industrial centers, this action is confirmed by American engineers passing through Riga. These engineers say that a fortnight ago all industrial enterprises in the Ural district, including Magnitnaya, were ordered immediately to cut their personnel 25 per cent because of the impossibility of the government to provide food for the workers.

Communists Blame Workers.

Further confirmation of industrial difficulties was contained in the speech of Commissar J. E. Rudzutak before the ninth Soviet Trade Union congress in Moscow, where more than 1,000 delegates celebrated the "industrial achievements of the past year."

Rudzutak, in an all night speech, blamed the food shortage on the workers' failure to provide manufactured goods for peasants. He also accused government organizations of profiteering and boosting prices because of the shortage of land, making large profits which they represent as the result of efficient management.

The commissar, in explaining the peasants' failure to provide food products for the urban population, blamed the local soviets, who, he said, force a peasant bringing a pint of cream to Moscow market to pay a tax of one ruble (the ruble at par equals 50 cents, but in foreign exchanges varies from 3 to 6 cents). Similar high taxes are imposed on the sale of meats, vegetables, milk, and eggs.

Says Supply Is Plentiful.

Admitting that the present rations of the workers do not include butter, eggs, or milk, and only occasionally meat, Rudzutak hinted that somewhere in Russia there is a plentiful supply of these articles and he urged the congress to pass a resolution demanding more efficiency from the government supply organizations and a promise to complete their share of the industrial program and supply goods to the peasants, who will then supply the food.

Other orators said that the trade union movement in Russia had increased almost a third since the inauguration of the 5 year plan. There now are 16,000,000 persons in the movement, all of whom hold ration cards entitling them to more food and clothing than the remainder of the population.

The drafting of 5,000,000 additional workers to industries from the villages, according to the orators, placed on the government the immense burden of feeding, clothing, and providing them with living quarters.

Mrs. Alma Miller, who shot Deputy Sheriff Frank Rollins in the hand when he sought to serve a writ in her home at 1238 West 74th place, was arraigned before Judge John J. Rooney in Felony court yesterday and obtained a continuance until May 4. Mrs. Miller said she thought Rollins was a burglar.

AUSTRIA GOES ON HOMEMADE DIET; IMPORTS BARRED

Decree Puts Embargo on Foreign Goods.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, April 29.—The six million persons living in this country will have to do without corsets, bricks, bananas, nuts, pineapples, oysters, champagne and a few other products such as auto tires beginning tomorrow.

Unable to borrow further and drifting to financial ruin because imports are twice as much as exports, the Austrian government tonight decided that the people will have to live on what they produce. This means a return to simple life, for 66 foreign luxuries are barred.

Imports Require Permit.

The law, effective tomorrow, prevents the importation of 66 items without permission of the government, and this really amounts to an absolute embargo of most products.

California fruit growers will be hit to the extent of $2,000,000 annually, American canned fruit producers $2,000,000 and American cattle shippers will lose $4,000,000.

The latest restriction practically cuts Austria off from the outside world for an already high tariff and strict currency restrictions have practically killed trade.

The finance ministry pointed out that Austria last year spent $53,000,000 for the kind of imports banned today. Included are livestock, poultry, milk, wine, sugar, fish, tea, coffee, cocoa, cotton, perfumes, fruit, rubber, radios, furniture and automobiles.

Last Desperate Move.

Today's action is regarded here as one of the last desperate moves to avert a collapse. Since the peace treaties cut it up and then forced it to live independently, Austria has never been able to make both ends meet.

Talks to Alumni

Ralph Cooper Hutchinson, president of Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa., yesterday met Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, at the Chicago campus. The two men are the youngest college presidents in the United States. Dr. Hutchinson is 34 years old and Dr. Hutchins is 33 years old. Dr. Hutchinson last night addressed alumni of Washington and Jefferson college at a dinner in the University club.

RELIEF GROUP SEEKS JOBS FOR FAMILY HEADS

"Persons who can employ a man or a woman a day or a week or permanently," the Illinois emergency relief commission announced yesterday, "are asked to telephone the special work division, Franklin 9272, and ask for the superintendent, Dr. Martin Hayes Bickham. He will send an individual who can do the task, some one who is endeavoring to 'keep his chin up.'

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set, by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Merrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. In Roland's keeping are valuable jewels, donated to Sir Henry to be sold for charity. Roland is forced to steal them for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is assigned the task of collecting ransom from Lord Whiddon, whose wife is held captive, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands. Roland follows Connie and finds the Whisperer's hideout. He sees Sir Henry leaving and is faced with the staggering truth that the Whisperer is none other than Sir Henry himself. Prowling through the house, Roland becomes locked in the room used to imprison the captives. The Whisperer has selected the young daughter of Renbold Harner, minister of development in Australia, who is in London with special credit from his government to place orders for British made farm machinery. Connie calls on Miss Harner and arranges to give her a permanent wave.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

TWO PRISONERS

Miss Harner looked at the photographs, then frowned.

"But this isn't the right thing at all!" she protested in a broad Australian accent. "Why, you said you were going to give me a Ranee wave."

At this Connie allowed herself to look troubled.

"I'm very sorry," she faltered. "I thought—I was distinctly under the impression—that you would not have the Ranee. Of course, naturally, it's all the same to me, but——" a skillful laughed conveyed a world of apology. "You see, I haven't brought the right tools. I'm sure you're forming a very poor opinion of London methods, Miss Harner."

"I'm afraid I'm giving you an awful lot of trouble. You see, I can't think how I came to make such a silly mistake. If it is to be the Ranee I simply must ask you to come round to my studio."

"That's easy," said the girl. "I'm not allowed to go out alone. But I guess if you've got a duchess on your staff daddy won't mind this time. What time can I get back?"

"My car is in the yard. Say ten minutes—an hour in the studio—another ten minutes back. Within an hour and a half at the outside."

"Then I hope you're a brave girl, Miss Harner, because you are in the hands of the Whisperer."

"That's all right. The meeting won't be over before then. Let's let them get in first, shall we?"

With childish curiosity she stood in the half open door and watched the deputation of manufacturers, headed by Sir Henry Glazeborough, file into the sitting room of the suite, to be welcomed by the colonial minister.

"Now we're safe! Come along!" said Miss Harner, tripping eagerly into the meshes of the Whisperer.

"Tell me what you think of London," said Connie.

"I've not seen it yet. I shan't see anything until daddy's through with his business, because he won't have time to take me around, and he won't let me go alone. He's sort of scared of London. I can look after myself."

It was pathetically easy to amuse this self-confident colonial girl. It would take more than ten minutes to reach the house in St. John's Wood, but Connie kept the conversation going until the car slowed and the horn sounded and the doors of the garage rolled open.

"Say, this is a funny place for a business. Now in Australia——"

"Then I hope you're a brave girl, Miss Harner, because you are in the hands of the Whisperer. This hair stuff is all nonsense." The garage doors clanged behind them. "Don't scream. Don't resist and nothing will happen to you. Make a fuss and you will be killed. If you've really read about the Whisperer you'll know that's true."

Number Four had slipped from the driver's seat. He had donned a mask and now stood by the open door, a revolver pointed at the girl.

"All right!" she said. Her voice faltered, but her spirit was resolute. "I've been in a holdup in Australia and nothing happened."

"Nothing will happen now," said Connie. "Just keep still, please. I'm going to put a pair of spectacles on you. You won't be able to see anything."

Connie adjusted the spectacles, then helped the girl out of the car. Number Four took her by one arm and from behind the car stepped another masked man, who took her on the other side.

Connie remained in the car while they led the girl away—into the house—into the room that the Whisperer kept for his prisoners.

It is a curious thing, but it often happens that when very big business is to be done a very great deal of time is wasted.

For something like forty minutes the half dozen distinguished manufacturers talked of anything but their business. They talked of cricket until Sir Henry Glazeborough decided that it was time to come to the matter in hand.

"I think I may say," he boomed, and waited until every one had stopped talking. "I think I may say, Mr. Harner, on behalf of the gentlemen I have had the pleasure of introducing to you—I think I may say that we are beginning to understand each other. I think I may say in all sincerity that this is one of the proudest moments of my life. And I think I may say—ah——"

Mr. Harner glanced at it, saw that it was marked "urgent" and that it was in his daughter's handwriting. For a moment he looked confused, then, with a murmured apology, tore the envelope and read.

"My God! Gentlemen! Sir Henry Glazeborough! I've been in London for less than twenty-four hours and my daughter has been taken out of this suite and captured by the Whisperer."

The others were amazed, but Sir Henry Glazeborough was overcome.

"O, Mr. Harner! O, my dear sir! O!"

Events happened very quickly after that, and every one of them in accordance with the Whisperer's precedent. The little box arrived in its bag. Some one opened the bag for him, and Mr. Harner read the directions. They were the same directions and they ended with the statement: "I shall speak to you at eleven o'clock." It was then eight minutes to eleven.

Mr. Harner turned to his secretary.

"Ring up Scotland Yard!" he ordered.

"Are you aware, my dear Mr. Harner, that I myself was a victim three days ago?"

Mr. Harner made no answer. He glared on the company as if he blamed them as representatives of law and order in England. No one had anything to say. There was an unnatural silence in the room which was presently broken by Mr. Harner.

"Gentlemen, you are aware that I am here as the official representative of my government. You are men of influence and I ask you to do what you can for me. Apart from my personal feelings you will naturally realize that this outrage will stir up a rather—dangerous—opinion in Australia."

"We can do nothing. As a nation we have been doing everything we can do for months past."

It was one minute to eleven. Mr. Harner put on the headphones.

Half a minute later he tore them off.

"I will tell you what that man has said," he cried. "He said: 'Go to the Bank of England and draw one hundred thousand pounds.' As you well know, if I do that, the bank will honor my check. But is not my money. I am not ashamed to confess than my own personal property I have less than five thousand pounds in the world. I cannot draw this money, which belongs to my government. What are you going to do about it, gentlemen?"

"Let us take the box for you, sir." It was Detective Sergeant Hendricks who spoke. "If you are quite sure that you don't intend to pay the ransom, you'd better let us carry on. We may catch his messenger—and that's the most we can hope for."

"Stop! Stop! I beg." Sir Henry Glazeborough was on his feet. "Mr. Harner, this has been tried before in one form and another, and invariably it has been followed—believe me, I hesitate to harrow your feelings—invariably it has been followed by the death of the captive."

Mr. Harner sank into a chair. Then he stood up without a tremor.

"Whatever the consequences to me or mine, I will not rob my country."

Some half an hour before Mr. Harner had received the significant note from his daughter, Roland Blatch had been struggling back to consciousness.

Consciousness began with a dream—that a man's voice was talking to him—telling him to take his time, that there was no need to hurry and he could write what he liked. The voice was loud—so loud that presently he knew it was not a dream at all.

"No that is not necessary," the voice was saying. "You can say that you have not been hurt nor threatened with violence—which is true—and add that you are a prisoner and cannot escape—which is also true."

BOOKS

'Modern Hero' by Bromfield Novel with 'It'

Offers Everything You Expect from Books.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Modern Hero," by Louis Bromfield. [Stokes.] Published on Thursday.

THERE is no question about it. Books as well as people have "It." Many wholly estimable, extremely exemplary volumes, with social poise and of importance in the literary world, are as lacking in "It" as a débutante with last season's "line" or a matron with no conversation except what the baby said this morning. While other volumes which just grew, like Topsy, and have neither background nor future, but only a gay, present wit, simply exude "It."

LOUIS BROMFIELD.

Occasionally a book with all of the traditions and the roots floats into our ken with "It," worn like a perfect dark red carnation on its perfectly fitting dinner jacket. And on such occasions the old cymbals quite naturally leap from their dust and almost automatically beat themselves.

Such a book is "A Modern Hero." Louis Bromfield has written good and popular books in the past (not always the same thing, even in Mr. Bromfield's case). But this time he has written a better and a more popular book than he ever wrote before. "A Modern Hero" is everything that anybody could ask of a book. It grabs your interest in the first paragraph and you never have a relaxed moment until the last gives you its surprising message. As much as any book I have read for years it keeps your eyes glued to its pages, no matter how the wind howls without or the children or unwelcome callers or the dog howl within. Given a choice of an evening with this modern hero and a good many of the heroes of your daily life, you would certainly pass up the alluring gentlemen of the flesh and concentrate on Mr. Bromfield's hero of the spirit.

Not that the hero himself is such a hero! The title is used ironically, for of just such clay are a good many of the modern gods made, gold plated, and worshiped. He has an irresistible attraction to women, and it is through that allure that fortune comes his way. But, oddly enough, it is not the hero but the heroines of the book which you will never forget. There is Madame Azais, the one armed circus performer, who had once been the toast of Europe, and who had borne the son of a rich Jew out of love. That son is the "Modern Hero," who starts life as Pierre Radier, and, when the time is ripe, changes his name to Paul Rader. All of the early life of the boy is spent in a carnival company and the rich warp and woof of the nomad life is set down in Louis Bromfield's most telling prose.

Then there is Joanna, who is one of the rich, earth rooted creatures who know that their destiny is the soil and who fulfills her destiny with a strange happiness. Joanna, the only woman whom Pierre ever loved, he meets, seduces, and wanly offers to marry when she is to become the mother of his child, but she, knowing him for what he is, a sort of male orchidlike creature, living as a parasite on other growths, with no roots of his own, refuses to marry him, marries a gentle farmer, to whom she tells the whole story, and together they bring up Pierre's child as their own.

And there is Leah, a lush, golden creature, who has lived monogamously with three men to whom she was not married, after rushing in horror from an ancient German baron, to whom she was married, and who, in her late forties, for the first time in her life falls in love with Pierre. The story of her ageing passion is set down with exquisite poignancy.

Hazel, the daughter of a middle west capitalist, marries the newly converted Pierre (now Paul), and of all the women in his life proves the only one he really hates.

And at the end the brittle Mrs. Benson, who brings Paul no happiness, but a great urgency.

Ironically the only real love which Paul ever knew and acknowledged as such was the love which his child (and Joanna's) awoke in him. After everything else of happiness had failed him he saw the future with himself and Peter one against the world. And then fate stepped in.

The story of the rise of this "modern hero" is told with a much greater skill than Mr. Bromfield—for all his past success—has ever shown.

Capt. Thomas Tells of Noted Desert Trip

"Arabia Felix" Excellent Travel Volume.

BY AL CHASE.

IN "Arabia Felix" [Scribners], easily the outstanding travel volume of the season—in fact, of many seasons—Capt. Bertram Thomas tells graphically of his six hundred mile journey across the Rub' al Khali of South Arabia, called "the greatest feat of land exploration of the present century." This "empty quarter" of Arabia is said to be the last large blank space on the world's map and had never been visited by a white man.

CAPT. THOMAS.

Capt. Thomas' quietly written account of this perilous camel back trek across these uncharted desert sands, accompanied only by Arabs and garbed as one, is as compelling and picturesque a travel tale as ever we read. It has all the thrills that authentic adventure, well told, always possesses. It unquestionably will rank with the world's great exploration epics.

In addition to having the alluring thrills that accompany a journey into the unknown, it is rich in Arab tales, reminiscent of Boccaccio, and is packed with scientific information of this mysterious desert country and its bizarre tribes and their fantastic customs.

The author, who spent thirteen years in Arabia, has a marvelous knowledge of Arab ways and dialects; was acclimatized to that country's wearing weather and had a tremendous social and political prestige from his position of sultan's wazir, or minister of the council of the state of Oman.

For six years he planned this daring dash across the unknown desert. When at last he did start secrecy was imperative, for to disclose his plans would be to invite hostility among the constantly warring tribes of the interior and, "the news would spread abroad, as all news spreads in illiterate Arabia, with the speed of the telegraph and unauthorized accretions that would not disgrace a London evening paper."

Another factor which worked for the success of the desert journey from the Arabian sea to the Persian gulf was an unprecedented suspension of blood feuds between the usually warring Arab tribes of these sandy wastes.

So the Thomas caravan had no battles with hostile Arabs, but the reader's interest never lags, for in addition to the author's colorful account of his desert voyage he weaves in countless Arabian tales that only one with his knowledge of the local dialects would be able to interpret.

Even Thomas was amazed at the ability of the desert Arabs to read tracks in the sands. "In comparison the fingerprint methods of the west seem a slow, laborious, technical process," he writes.

"The sands are a public diary, that even he who runs may read, for all living creatures go unshod. Each of my companions not only knew at a glance the footmarks of every camel and man of my caravan, but claimed to know those of his absent tribe and not a few of his enemies. No bird may alight, no wild beast or insect pass but needs must leave its history in the sands."

Capt. T. E. Lawrence, whose name also is linked with Arabia, in a foreword calls the exploit of Capt. Thomas "the finest thing in Arabian exploration."

"As he tells it, the achievement may read easy, because he is a master of every desert art," writes Lawrence. "Here once more is the compleat Arabian traveler enshrined."

FICTION.

Three Go Back, by J. Leslie Mitchell [Bobbs Merrill]. Three intelligent moderns go back—by accident—25,000 years, and they find life very good!

The Memoirs of Jacques Casanova, translated by Arthur Machen [Boni], with illustrations by Rockwell Kent, is a new edition of this famous classic.

Where the Cobra Sings, by Cosmo Forbes [Macaulay], tells the story of a man fascinated by the east and its women.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

The Du Barry, by Karl von Schumacher [Harcourt Brace], is another record of the glowing career of a cook's lovely daughter who became informal queen of France.

Martha Berry, by Tracy Byers [Putnams], is the life story of a Georgia woman who made human reclamation her life work.

Monsieur Thiers, by John M. S. Allison [Norton], symbolizes, throughout the hero's varied career in the 19th century, the democratic movement.

Sir Billy Howe, by Bellamy Partridge [Longmans], attempts an explanation of the fumblings of this leader of the British forces in the revolution.

I Would Live It Again, by Julia B. Foraker [Harpers], is a book of the delightfully indiscreet reminiscences of one of Washington's most famous hostesses.

ABOUT PLACES.

Banana Gold, by Carleton Beals [Lippincott], does for Central America what the author did so magnificently for its neighbor in "Mexican Maze."

Russia's Decisive Year, by Ellery Walter [Putnams], is by the only foreign newspaper man permitted to visit Siberia unescorted by an official interpreter.

Japan and America, by Henry W. Taft [Macmillan], is the record of a journey and a political survey.

NON-FICTION.

Recovery; The Second Effort, by Sir Arthur Salter [Century], suggests intelligent means of looking ahead. The author has been director of the economic section of the league of nations.

Japan Speaks, by K. K. Kawakami [Macmillan], explains the present Sino-Japanese crisis from the point of view of the Japanese.

Lives, by Gustav Eckstein (author of "Noguchi") [Harpers], tells of the private lives of some of the creatures in the author's laboratory—and such fascinating lives!

The Idea of Progress, by J. B. Bury [Macmillan], is an inquiry into its origin and growth.

Brooks Finds Emerson Proof of Chief Theory

Example of Author Writing to Please Self.

BY JOHN ERSKINE.

"Life of Emerson," by Van Wyck Brooks. [Dutton.]

VAN WYCK BROOKS is a critic whom we respect, even when we do not agree with him. He has scholarship and taste, and he also has ideas. One particular idea he stresses so often that we now associate it with him—an idea which he confessedly derives from Emerson and Whitman—that an artist can best express his time by expressing himself, that the writer who really expresses himself must necessarily express the moment and the place in which he has grown up, that the writer who makes concessions to his environment, who yields consciously to the will of his fellows, to that extent nullifies his talent and buries himself.

We could hardly quarrel with this idea, and though it sounds simple, it is profound, as any one knows who has written a book. By taking thought you cannot express your times, as you cannot add to your stature. If you write a book in which your fellows find themselves expressed, the result is a kind of miracle. It came about because you were unconsciously at one with your audience, but you have no formula for being at one with them, and you probably thought you were writing to please yourself.

On the other hand, many an author who writes sincerely to please himself, without consideration of his audience, succeeds in pleasing only the one person he wrote for. To be sincere and at the same time significant, is not easy.

Mr. Brooks stated his point of view effectively in "The Ordeal of Mark Twain," a volume which still provokes discussion. He believes that Mark Twain was potentially a greater genius than his works would indicate, and that he was diverted from his true development as realist and satirist by the pressure of public opinion, which preferred his audacious fun, his sentimentality, his gift for pleasant yarn spinning. Had Mark Twain lived in an environment which appreciated his true destiny, he would, according to Mr. Brooks, have achieved that destiny.

Some of us are inclined to doubt whether Mark Twain missed his destiny after all, whether the career as satirist and realist was Mark Twain's ideal or Van Wyck Brooks'. But though we may quarrel about the illustration, the central idea gives us occasion to reflect.

In this "Life of Emerson," Mr. Brooks shows us the idea working happily. As time goes on Emerson seems to have expressed his age more adequately than any other American author. The most individual of individualists, he seems now to have understood best our society, in its faults as well as its strong points. He describes our temperament better than we could, and we accept the portrait as true. Though his life was quiet, retired, in some respects apparently timid, he understood the principle of power, and he sympathized with those energetic developments in our life, with the accelerations of movement and of production, which science has brought about, but which cultured people usually deplore.

The excellence of this book will be most apparent to those who know the earlier biographies. Here there are no new facts, no startling revaluations of Emerson's conduct or of his writings, but there is a new emphasis on the art of being sincere as Emerson practiced it. Instead of portraying Emerson merely as a product of Puritanism or as a rebel against it, Van Wyck Brooks makes him the example of those who in any age have succeeded in leading their own lives.

If you represent your own day, you must be to some extent a radical, for no day is like any other. The question is, to what extent? "Whoso would be a man," said Emerson, "must be a nonconformist." Yet Emerson's life was graceful and gentle, free from quarrels and bitterness. With him the art of sincerity was so perfect that he differed from his fellows only in those points in which there was an essential disagreement, and he was glad to agree with them where he could, or where the matter at stake was too petty to discuss.

British Editor's Son Writes First Book; It's Story of "Peak"

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Loyal readers of the novels of Allen Monkhouse, who until lately has been literary editor of the Manchester Guardian, and whose last book bore the title, "Farewell, Manchester," must have observed that he has never attempted to describe life in London. That is because Manchester is a whole world away from London, and because Mr. Monkhouse belongs to Lancashire and Cheshire and not to the south of England. Actually, he lives in Cheshire; and from his home one can wander among the hills that border Derbyshire, that district known to the world [at least through one of Sir Walter Scott's romances] as "The Peak." It is a lovely part of England.

DR. CRONIN.

Now Mr. Monkhouse's elder son, Patrick, has been induced to write his first book, and as he is not yet a novelist, Patrick has produced "On Foot in the Peak." This is topography de luxe. And it is a work the authenticity of which cannot be questioned. The author knows the Peak district at first hand. He has been familiar with it all his life. And as he is a very accomplished writer, the book he has written should be of great interest. While he was at Oxford university Patrick Monkhouse was one of those who carried on the literary tradition of Oxford, and since leaving the university he has taken his place as one of the torch bearers of the Manchester Guardian. He is young, exceptionally intelligent, progressive, and wise. I see in "On Foot in the Peak" the beginning of a distinguished literary career.

A novelist whose first book caused something like a sensation last year—Dr. Cronin, the author of "Hatter's Castle"—has published here his second book, "Three Loves." It is a very long novel, as was "Hatter's Castle," and whereas Dr. Cronin's first book was the grim product of a northern district, his second has been produced in softer surroundings. It is decidedly less grimly impressive than "Hatter's Castle."

"What makes my small daughter come to the table hungry, and immediately lose her appetite?"

"Shall I feed the children between meals when they won't eat at meal time?"

These and a score of other questions from troubled mothers come up each week to be answered. And while many of them are handled best by experts in child training, there are some which do seem to belong first and foremost to the realm of the cook —or shall we say, the cook-mother?

First of all—just as a reminder, since we slip up at times—here is a brief list of certain foods which should be supplied in the daily diet of the young child:

1 quart of milk.
2 vegetables—one leafy and one root.
2 fruits—one cooked and one citrous. [Tomato juice may replace the citrous fruit.]
1 cooked, whole grain cereal.
Potato.

But proper foods are only half the story. For if the health giving carrots and spinach are offered small customers on unattractive dishes, if the methods of cooking have not left them firm when they should be firm, tender when they should be chewy and easily digested, and especially if some not too well liked food is piled in alarming servings on children's plates —then appetites are bound to lag and bad eating habits to form.

While it is unwise to make sweeping statements concerning the feeding of pre-schoolers, we usually encounter fewer pitfalls if we plan for just three meals a day, served at 7:30, 12:30, and 4:30, with a small lunch of tomato juice, or milk and crackers, or dry toasted bread served either in the middle of the morning or of the afternoon. Irregular feeding is bound to upset small digestive tracts, and foods which prove distasteful at dinner will be refused if the child is sure of satisfying his hunger with cookies and refrigerator raids before the next meal is due.

Bedtime, too, has a great deal to do with the food habits of the pre-schooler, for the tired child will not have the appetite of the rested child. Sleep from 7 to 7, with a nap or quiet hour from 1 to 2:30 will give the average youngster of pre-school age sufficient rest.

Only a few of the foods adults enjoy must be forbidden to children—and these primarily because they are more difficult to digest or are so highly seasoned as to destroy the appetite for necessary and more wholesome foods. For the young child, corn and cucumbers should be avoided because of the coarse fiber of the kernel and seed. Pork and other extremely fatty meats frequently cause digestive disturbances. Eggs—one a day—will agree with the average child, and supply an excellent protein source. They are best soft cooked or poached, but never fried. Or for a change, scramble them over water or bake them. Just before serving, sprinkle with grated cheese.

Cheese, by the way, is best served uncooked and shredded to young children. Mild cream or cottage cheese are most easily digested.

Only such vegetables as can be shredded or finely chopped should be given raw, for children under 4, in particular, find chewing a pretty arduous and tiring task, and frequently digestive disturbances result from chunks of raw food slipping down, washed along by drinks of milk or water. Also, the cooking of fruits and vegetables removes any difficulty which may arise from eating foods which are under or over ripe.

And now would you like an especially scrumptious luncheon menu guaranteed to tempt the appetites of the youngest members by its good looks, and, with a few additions, to satisfy the whole family's noontime hunger? Then here it is:

A LUNCHEON FOR RUNABOUTS.

Eggs Marguerite on Toast
Cabbage and Carot Salad [finely shredded]
Cooked Dressing
Chocolate Blanc Mange
Milk

EGGS MARGUERITE.
[For six.]
6 eggs, separated.
6 slices toast.
Salt pepper, paprika, and butter.

Beat the whites of the eggs until very stiff and arrange spoonfuls on each slice of toast in the form of a nest with a deep hole in the center. Slip one whole egg yolk from a wet saucer into each nest. Sprinkle lightly with salt, pepper, and paprika and dot with butter. Place the marguerites on a tray or baking sheet and set on a high oven rack under a low flame. When the whites are delicately browned and the yolks partially set, remove and serve at once.

Arturo Toscanini and Gatti-Casazza Become Reconciled

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—A dramatic event in the world of music took place after the performance last evening led by Arturo Toscanini of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony." This was the reconciliation, after bitter enmity and a silence of seventeen years, of Toscanini and his one-time collaborator, Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general director of the Metropolitan Opera company.

The break between Toscanini and Gatti-Casazzi occurred in 1915, when the former, a conductor at the Metropolitan Opera house, resigned his post. There had been a furious quarrel. Since that time these men, who had worked side by side for seventeen years at La Scala in Milan and at the Metropolitan, had followed different ways.

At the reconciliation both wept.

Red Is Danger Signal for the Dyed Coiffure

Any Other Shade Easier to Achieve.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The rumor is that the platinum blond epidemic is to be succeeded by a strawberry blond outbreak. Down on your knees, sisters, I beg, so this threatened depression won't be added to our already overburdened shoulders!

I may be gone a bit peculiar on the subject of dyed red heads. But personally, I am convinced that nine out of ten of them are awful. If they'd go honest strawberry it wouldn't be so bad, or raspberry, or gooseberry, even. But that color that is neither red nor purple but a combination of both with heavy purple leanings is nothing short of assault and battery on these old eyes of mine. How in the name of beauty any woman cannot see herself as others see her, with the glow of purple grape overshadowing her face, is beyond me!

Whatever may have been said against the platinumed lady, at least there have been silvery blonds with us and there have been stunning white haired women and sometimes the platinum blond, if young and fresh of skin and eye, was adequately picturesque. But this creature of the purple red has no inspiration from the initiative point, and, if you ask me, darned little reason for picking out an orange or a purple tone any way you look at it.

Surely, there are red shades earned by the dye pot that are not offensive. Some of them are very effective indeed. But what I am concerned about is the recklessness that seems to possess women on red hair bent. They seem to go completely haywire and color blind, and grossly callous about their effect on other people.

Not that I expect by this outburst to discourage the red epidemic! But couldn't I please plead with women to consider the fact that no other false coloring needs quite the same, long premeditation as red does. Also, that no other false coloring needs quite the same expert, original professional handling and upkeep. Again, that no other false coloring requires so consistently a complimentary coloring of skin and eye to go with it.

When I see those orange-pinks and purple crowns that pass for red locks I will say I give the professional hairdresser the benefit of the doubt. I'm sure they must be home brewn mixtures prepared and applied in a dark room. No conscientious hairdresser would turn them out of his shop. I repeat that hair can be touched up red by hairdressers, skilled and necessarily not inexpensive, but I also repeat that a lady should go on a long period of prayer and fasting before she takes the red plunge.

Others may not feel so violently on the subject, and, after all, it's a gal's own hair—but pray, sisters, pray all the samee, won't you?

Gigli Quits Metropolitan Opera to Avoid Pay Cut

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—Beniamino Gigli, Italian tenor, has severed his connections with the Metropolitan Opera association rather than take a reduction in salary in accordance with the company's retrenchment policy, it was revealed today. Mr. Gigli's contract, which had three years to run, has been broken by mutual consent. Gigli declined to make any comment. Opera officials are still confronted with the question of whether Rosa Ponselle, soprano, will accept a salary reduction.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Are you keeping an eye on that Mr. Warren William? Do! Then, in the near future, when he's made good in in a big way you can preen your feathers and say, "I told you so!" [In case you're wondering who he reminds you of, it's John Barrymore.]

Mr. William has the title rôle in this yarn about a shrewd and conscienceless criminal lawyer, "mouthpiece" of gangland. He is brilliant, resourceful, unethical. Thugs cry for him, juries cry with him, and prosecuting attorneys cry about him.

But it was not always so. Once upon a time he had been an assistant district attorney, whose convictions were many, and who, to his certain knowledge, had sent one innocent boy to death.

It is this tragedy which brings about Vincent Day's resignation as an arm of the law and starts him on the oiled, downhill road of infamy and success.

For a long, long time things go his own way. Clients, money and acquittals are plenty. His office routine moves smoothly under the direction of a competent young woman manager—competently played by Aline MacMahon. "Hickey" is hard talking, hard acting, but salt of the earth. She is his buffer against an insistent world, and the one who hunts him up and brings him to after his occasional thoroughgoing sprees.

And then—a little dove of a typist joins the lawyer's office staff. A really good girl! And Day didn't believe they grew that way any more. She's from Kentucky and engaged to a home town boy, busily trying to make good in the Big Town. So much for romance—here.

This picture is said to have been based, it is reported, as was William Powell's "For the Defense," on incidents in the life of the late William J. Fallon.

Mr. William gives a poseless and electric performance. He absolutely dominates the action and makes his most exaggerated deeds perfectly believable. Note especially the poison swallowing stunt for the benefit of one of his juries. A surprise awaits you here.

Sidney Fox is sweet and earnest as the little southern working girl Day loves but cannot have. But ladies' laurels go to Miss MacMahon. She's immense!

Other supporting players qualify. Direction is excellent, as are photography, sets and sound.

Betty Compson is the stage attraction. She acts as a sort of mistress of ceremonies, introducing impersonators of various Hollywood stars. She herself does a Marlene Dietrich, singing the song the latter put over to such effect in "Morocco." "Falling in Love Again" is the name of it. Miss Compson plays her violin, dances, chats—all with charm and poise.

"THE SIBERIAN PATROL."

Produced by Amkino.
Presented at the Punch and Judy theater.

"The Siberian Patrol," the Punch and Judy's propaganda for the week, is notable only for its rarely beautiful scenery and effective photography—some of the most effective I've ever seen—and for its types. The story is so hard to follow that watching it unreel is more of a task than a pleasure. True, the subtitles are in English but they are crude and not very enlightening.

Much more interesting than the feature is a long, American made news reel concentrating on the Chinese-Japanese warfare. This is most informative as to picture material, and the terse, illuminating descriptions by the unseen lecturer give you a remarkably clear idea of all that has been happening during the ghastly conflict.

[What a relief to listen to an announcer who doesn't try to be clever or facetious, but just says simply and intelligently what he has to say!]

Florence Baker, Daughter of N. Y. Banker, Engaged

New York, April 29.—(AP)—The engagement of Miss Florence T. Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, to T. Suffern Tailer Jr., a sophomore at Princeton university, was announced today. The marriage will be in June. Miss Baker is a member of one of New York's wealthiest families. Her father is chairman of the board of the First National bank, succeeding his late father, George F. Baker Sr., who was reputed to be one of the half dozen wealthiest men in the world. Tailer is a grandson of Alexander Brown of Baltimore and Edward N. Tailer of New York.

Mrs. Jane Anderton to Become Bride in France Today

JUAN LES PINS, France, April 29.—The marriage of Mrs. Jane Wright Anderton of Chicago, widow of Charles Anderton Jr., and J. Earling Fitch of Milwaukee will take place at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in All Saints' church, D'Antibes.

Stephen Wright, the bride's brother, is acting as best man and her sister, Marion Wright, will be maid of honor. The bride will be given away at the church by her father. In the civil ceremony at the city hall witnesses for the bride will be her sister, Mrs. Alexander Stoller, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Stephen Wright. For the bridegroom witnesses will be Jean le Royer and Dick Breitenstein.

The bride will wear a brown dress with flowered chiffon, a brown hat, no jewels, and will have red roses for flowers.

The couple will leave for a wedding cruise on the Mediterranean, then returning to Mrs. Anderton's villa here before sailing to America in July. The bride's mother, Mrs. William Van Doren Wright, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Frederick C. Thwaits, will witness the ceremony.

New Fashions in Accessories Offer Thrills

Joy Awaits the Shopper Who Seeks Them.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Just when you think there can't possibly be anything new around the town somebody you know bobs up disconcertingly with some new spring fashion fancy. One comforting thing about Chicago shops is that there are always plenty of new and unusual things to shop for. You can shop every day and still get a big thrill the next day over the things you probably missed the day before!

New costume accessories breeze into town with startling regularity, costume jewelry especially. Thirty inch necklaces, a new longer length, are new and practically designed for the fashionable high necklined dresses. The newest color contrasts are gay and more than often gaudy, three and four different colors being interlaced together in some extremely effective color combinations. New beveled bracelets of a new lightweight composition go into the dotted detours around the fashionable wrists.

Handbags simply stun you with their versatility. Bag shoppers are almost embarrassed with the supply; even the most persnickity collector rather hesitates about delivering the usual complaints about the dearth of "something different." High hits of the new collections are the cravat bags sponsored by Chanel. These are long and narrow in an envelope style covered with white dotted silk exactly the same as the silk used for masculine cravats. However, your choice is restricted as to color, as they are only available in navy blue and brown. Other silk bags in smart new fabrics are the knife plaited pin dot silks also designed by Chanel, but these go in for variety in color and shape and size. They are permanently plaited and fully guaranteed against unplaiting. The linings are all of chalk white silk faille. They are ideal complements for your silk suits and dresses.

And the guiding genius that gently tempts the handkerchief collector has been busy again. You'll linger around the new 'kerchief collections most of the morning. After you fall for new colors and buy new sizes and decide to shop for other things, you'll find the new horoscope affairs and you're trapped again. With these birth month 'kerchiefs you can find out four of your finest virtues—the zodiacal sign that governs your birthday—with none of your faults or weaknesses divulged. They are printed linen squares of information that colorfully proclaim to an interested audience the month you made your entrance, but not the year.

Do you remember the fringed napkins that your grandmother used when she served sponge cake and syllybub for Sunday supper? The newest handkerchiefs look exactly like them. They are made of sheer linen with demure old fashioned fringed edges that will charm the most sophisticated shopper. Some are accompanied by smart scarfs fringed to match and you will find them in squares of solid color or two color combinations in striped effects.

Tea to Open Art Show at Ropp School

Project Is Sponsored by Mrs. Aldis.

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHICAGOANS are to see the fruit of another of the projects of the versatile Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis, the lady who is responsible for so many local artistic enterprises. Mr. and Mrs. Aldis and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ropp are sending out invitations to a tea to open the spring exhibition of the Hubert Ropp school of art next Friday afternoon at 100 East Chicago avenue.

Behind this announcement is the short history of the art classes which Mrs. Aldis started last summer on the Aldis compound in Lake Forest. A number of Lake Foresters joined the classes and in a few weeks a fund of hitherto unknown talent was revealed. In the fall the school was moved into town and since then the students have been working assiduously at daily classes in painting and sculpture. The results of the winter's labor will be seen on Friday afternoon.

Hostesses at the tea tables will include Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mrs. Philip B. Maher, Mrs. Randolph S. Simpson, Mrs. William Hurry Jr., Miss Harriet Clifford, Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke, and Miss Eleanor Holden. All of these "pourers" will have either paintings or sculpture on exhibition. Other exhibitors include Miss Elinor Farwell, Mrs. William P. Martin, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin, and Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman.

Children to Show Work.

The juvenile department of the school is also to have a show of its own works. Among the budding artists are little Loraine Logan, whose grandfather, Frank G. Logan, vice president of the Art Institute and donor of thousands of dollars in prizes to artists, will probably be as thrilled with her work as he has been with any of the masters he owns; the John R. Winterbothams' young son, Johnny, who seems to have inherited his share of the Winterbothams' artistic gifts; Mary and Annie Laurie Ryerson, daughters of the Joseph T. Ryersons; Diana Hill, oldest of the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill; George R. Nichols III., the younger son of Mrs. George R. Nichols; Kay Goodman, Mrs. James M. Hopkins' younger daughter, and Roger and David Baldwin, sons of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rosecrans Baldwin.

This is to be a busy week-end, with all sorts of interesting things happening in town and in the suburbs. Any one who wanted to take in everything would have to rush madly and even then I doubt if it could be done. The Army and Navy inaugural ball in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel is the largest affair on the calendar for tonight, and no doubt a large crowd will attend it.

Madonna Center Benefit Tonight.

The ninth annual dinner dance for the benefit of Madonna center is to be given tonight in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman and no doubt many of those who plan to attend the Army and Navy ball later, will dine and start their dancing at the Madonna center party.

Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., Miss Marie Plamondon, Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, Mrs. Joseph Wallace Cremin, Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Mrs. Legler Armour, Mrs. Julius T. Benedict, Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy and Miss Mary Agnes Amberg are on the committee in charge of the affair.

Frank R. Stenson is chairman of the floor committee which includes among its members James E. Baggot Jr., Louis W. Corboy, Farren MacMahon, Charles A. Plamondon Jr. and Dr. Richard J. Tivnen.

Miss Ruth Crossett, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark Crossett of 1200 Lake Shore drive, will become the bride of Edward S. French of Chicago, son of Mrs. Joseph O. Eaton of Cleveland, this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the residence of her parents, Dean Duncan Browne of St. James's cathedral will read the service in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends.

Miss Betty Crossett is to be her sister's only attendant and Winsor French will act as best man for his brother.

Among the out-of-town relatives who have come for the ceremony are the bride's sister, Miss Carolyn Crossett, who is a student at the Shipley school at Bryn Mawr, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. James A. Rankin of Pasadena; the bridegroom's mother and stepfather, his sisters, Mrs. Daniel Dewey and the Misses Martha and Anne Eaton, and Mr. Dewey.

Reception for Oliver Pichers.

Many Chicagoans will motor north to Glencoe this afternoon to attend the reception Mrs. Oliver S. Picher is giving from 4 to 7 o'clock at her beautiful Sheridan road house for her son and his bride, Lieut. and Mrs. Oliver S. Picher, who arrived a few days ago to spend a month with Mrs. Picher. They are on their way from Honolulu, where they were married in November and where Lieut. Picher, who is with the United States flying corps, has been stationed for several years, to Langfield field, Va.

This is Mrs. Picher's first visit to her husband's family, although she has many friends here, having visited here as Marian Lewis. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lewis of Honolulu. Assisting this afternoon will be Mrs. Picher's daughter, Mrs. Joseph D. Purcell Jr., Mrs. Harold Peters, Mrs. Oliver Morton Knode, Mrs. Frederick H. Scott, Mrs. Allen Withers, Mrs. Samuel Thomas, and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish.

Sydney Heap is giving a swimming party tonight in the pool of the old Woman's Athletic club (now a club for young business women) for Miss Margaret James, who leaves next Thursday to sail on the Olympic Friday for England. Miss James, daugh-

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

What Makes Them Laugh in Hollywood

Baiting Jolson Is Favorite Sport on Lots.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 29.—They get a lot of fun out of baiting Al Jolson [when they can think fast enough] at the United Artists lot where Jolson is waiting to start his next film.

A group of visitors, including Ray Impelletiere, 6 foot 7½ inch pugilist from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., High school, was looking things over on the lot today and Harold Lloyd and Jolson stood up to have their photos taken alongside the high school Carnera.

Bob Perry, manager of the 265 pound youth, was telling Lloyd and Jolson what a prominent young fellow his charge was. Impelletiere, who seemed a most modest youth, kept plucking his manager's sleeve to shush him.

"He runs 100 yards in 12 seconds. He played end and was one of the fastest men on the football team. He won his athletic letter for four years. He was the smartest athlete Poughkeepsie High had. There's not a thing he didn't do better than any one else."

Jolson began to look restive as the attention continued to focus on the youth. Noticing this, Harry Brand, of Producer Joe Schenck's staff, butted in to tell Harold Lloyd: "But I'll bet Jolson can outsing him."

Brand's crack broke up the party, but as the group adjourned to a lunch room Impelletierre said solemnly: "You know, the truth is that my mother was a professional singer and I used to sing in choruses——"

"Well, why didn't you say so?" the whole group challenged. "Now we'll have to run all the way back to Jolson's suite to tell him he can't even outsing you."

Joe Reddy of Harold Lloyd's staff was also in the party. Joe added to the collection of laughs when, looking at the big youth's brogans, he said seriously: "At last somebody to fill Garbo's shoes."

Three high school movie buds were up in Superior court today to have their film contracts legalized as California courts demand in the cases of persons under 21 years. They are June Vlasek, 17, of Minneapolis; Vivian Reid, 17, of Pittsburgh, and Janet Chandler, 19, of Pine Bluff, Ark., who made pictures as a child with the old Vitagraph company. All three girls have $75 a week contracts with Fox.

Ben Turpin has been added to the cast of laugh enticers who are to play with Jack Oakie and W. C. Fields in Paramount's comedy based on the Olympic games.

Harold Lloyd would like to purchase from MGM the film rights to the Clarence Budington Kelland magazine serial, "Footlights," which MGM recently acquired for Buster Keaton but later discarded as not quite fitting Keaton's style of comedy.

Fine Arts Guild Sponsors Musical Tea Tomorrow

The Fine Arts Guild of Chicago will hold a musical program and tea tomorrow afternoon at Longwood academy at 95th and Throop streets. Giuseppe Cavadore of the Chicago Civic and Ravinia Opera companies, Hazel Senborn of the Boston Opera company, and Baroness Violet Wenner, harpist, will be the guest artists.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE WORLD WANTS WICKER

WALT, YOU CERTAINLY GOT YOUR HEALTH BACK WITH A VENGEANCE. I HOPE YOU'RE READY TO WADE IN.
I'M RARIN' TO GO, MR. WICKER.
STOCKS OF MERCHANDISE ARE DEPLETED ALL OVER THE WORLD. WE MUST BE READY TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE GREAT EXPANSION WHICH MUST COME. WE MUST DEVISE A HUNDRED NEW USES FOR WICKER WARE.
PRECISELY MY VIEW.
WE MUST MAKE WICKER ASH TRAYS, WICKER FILING CABINETS, CARPET BEATERS, DOOR MATS, BOOK ENDS, RADIO CABINETS, AUTOMOBILE TOPS. THE COUNTRY HAS BECOME WICKER-UNCONSCIOUS. WE MUST REMEDY THAT. ECONOMIZE TO THE BONE WITHOUT FIRING ANYBODY OR CUTTING WAGES. THERE'S YOUR PROBLEM. GO AHEAD.
O.K. NOW I FEEL AS IF I WAS BACK IN HARNESS AGAIN.

Youngster of 4 Is Frightened by Every Dog

Trouble Dates from Scare Two Years Ago.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "My granddaughter is 4 years old, a normal active child of a nervous temperament. She is calm and not easily excited except in the proximity of a dog, when she will run to whomever is with her in considerable agitation and attempt to hide on the other side. When with her I take her hand, explaining that the dog will not hurt her and generally the dog does not even notice her. My daughter insists when with her that she maintain her position and walk by the dog.

"It appears to me that her excitment in the presence of a dog is increasing. I assume that this trouble dates from an incident that occurred when she was about 2 years old. When visiting, a small dog jumped on her in play and startled her.

"Have you a booklet or leaflet covering this subject, as I do not know what course to pursue?"

Answer: I am sorry I have no leaflet on this subject. Undoubtedly the fear of dogs was instilled in your little granddaughter by the incident mentioned, and such early impressions are very deep. They are also usual. Small children are terrified by the forceful unbalancing caused by a leaping dog. The only ways to erase these impressions are:

First, by patience and understanding at each encounter, as you say—not by forcing, as it seems her mother believes.

And second, by a campaign as we might call it, to associate dogs in general with something pleasant and so gradually get her to overcome her fears of just one dog. There are various ways of doing this. Show her pictures of dogs, many of them doing interesting things. Have some dog books around and read her stories of dogs.

And the best "eraser" would be a puppy of her own, now that she is old enough to learn how to treat a young animal.

Demonstrate Organ Made from Neon Tubes of Small Size

Cincinnati, O., April 29.—(AP)—An "organ" without pipes, reeds or bellows was demonstrated today by Winston E. Kock, 23 year old student engineer at the University of Cincinnati.

The organ is an arrangement of Neon tubes—small editions of those used in advertising signs—in electrical circuits. Beyond the keyboard, itself the usual console, the instrument consists only of the tubes, resistances and condensers. Each key controls a tube, and in combination they produce the tremolo effects, the brilliance and color of the pipe organ.

The instrument is Kock's work toward a degree in electrical engineering. Prof. A. M. Wilson, head of the university's engineering department, said the student "has developed a new idea that represents something really worth while."

Project Is Sponsored by Mrs. Aldis.

ter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James, is undecided about the date for her marriage to Charles Clarence Smith of London, but she thinks it will take place about the end of July.

Two Clubs Will Open Tomorow.

Shore Acres, all cleaned and renovated for the season, is being opened tomorrow, and Onwentsia, too, will be open after today, although the members won't be able to make much use of the clubhouse, for the restaurant will not be ready for service until May 28. The first large affair planned to take place at Shore Acres is the buffet luncheon the Solomon A. Smiths will give a week from tomorrow at the club for their daughter, Mrs. George S. Chappell Jr. [Caroline Smith], a recent bride, and Miss Barbara Neff, who is to be wedded to Solomon B. Smith two weeks from today.

The board of directors of the Woman's Symphony orchestra will hold a benefit card party this evening at the Drake hotel.

Out in Lake Forest today the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. are to have a rummage sale at the Y. W. headquarters on Market square with Mrs. Woodbury S. Ober in charge.

The Scribblers elected Mrs. Graham Aldis as president at their annual meeting held Thursday night at Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed's, 2430 Lake View avenue. Other officers named are Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, secretary; Miss Peggy Hambleton, treasurer, and Mrs. Shreve Badger and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, directors.

Winter Club Gives 2 Plays.

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the presentation of two plays by the dramatic club of the Winter club in Lake Forest last night. "Our Aunt from California," by M. D. Barmen, and "The Night of the Entertainment," by Anne Wynne, were given. This was the first time the club had charged any admission for its plays, but it was decided this year that a charge would be made to cover the cost of the costumes.

Taking part were the children of numerous Lake Forest families, including Helen Mary Bryan, Mary Gardner, Caryl Harrison, Priscilla Curtis, who played two rôles, filling in for Helen Dick, who was ill; Bee Rogers, Ann Winston, Sophia Turnbull, Barbarar Blossom, Edith Cowles, Barbara Buchanan, Edith Farwell, Betty Keith, Sylvia Peter, Mardo Pattou, Phyllis Peter, Grace Shumway, and Byrd Littlefield, who took Nancy Brice's place because of Nancy's illness. Barbara Mechem also had to drop out of the cast because of illness, but Miss Persis Baker, the director, managed to distribute Barbara's lines among others in the play, so that no one had to fill in for her.

Most of the Chicagoans who go to Maryland every spring for the hunt cup race are staying at home this year and won't see Sea Soldier run today. So far as we've been able to find out, the Austin H. Niblacks and the Benjamin Leslie Behrs are the only members of the group of Sea Soldier's owners who will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Niblack departed on Thursday for Baltimore and the Behrs and their daughter, Edith, have been staying at the Maryland Hunt club for several weeks. Col. Noble Brandon Judah had planned to make the trip, but was detained by business. Several others who had intended to accompany Mr. and Mrs. Niblack changed their plans at the last minute.

Rawsons Will Stay in Town.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson, who find Chicago as pleasant a summer resort as any more rustic spot, are planning to spend the warm weather months in their large sunny apartment overlooking Lincoln park and the lake at 1550 State parkway. Their yacht, on which they cruised in Florida waters for several weeks this winter, will not be brought north this summer.

The correspondent at the Virginia Hot Springs writes that Mr. and Mrs. David M. Yates have joined the large Chicago colony there, which includes Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, Mrs. J. Wendell Clark, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin D. Cahn. Mrs. Allen Reed and Mrs. Gustav I. Tolson of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Clark were at the Virginia spa this week also.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement A. Nance announce the birth of a son on April 24 at the Passavant hospital. The baby has been named Willis Orville Nance II. for his paternal grandfather.

Tomorrow night Arts club members and their guests will be entertained by three one-act plays by the Playwrights' theater, the plays to be produced under the direction of Helen Walton and staged by the Andre Ament associates.

Some of those who have made reservations for the performance which will start at 9 o'clock are Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Mrs. Sidney Gorham, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Wallace Wakem, Mme. Rene Weiller, Mrs. Lobdell Atwater, Mrs. Harold C. Bodman, Mrs. Nicholas de Teresa and Miss Marie Rozet.

"Queens of France" by Thornton Wilder: M. Cahusac, the lawyer—Gerald A. Frank; Mlle. Marie Cressaux, the cocotte—Betty Field [Mrs. Henry]; Mme. Pugeot, the bourgeoise—Phyllis Horton [Mrs. Horace]; Mamselle Pointevin, the school mistress—Mildred Jaklon [Mrs. Proehl]; an old woman—Mrs. Alice Francis.

"The Imbecile" by Luigi Pirandello: Luca Fazio—Abbott Ross; Leopoldo Paroni, an editor—Harold Simonds; a salesman—Clifford Manthorn; Rosa—Anita Baker; 1st reporter—Marshall Kruse; 2d reporter—Roger White; 3d reporter——Charles Goodmanson; 4th reporter—John Beloy.

"The Cow" by Jean Sartene: Monsieur Brugnot—Dunlap Clark; Nini, his daughter—Margret Schreiner [Jane Willett was to play this part but her illness necessitated a change being made yesterday]; Monsieur Octave, an artist—Deering Davis; Emile, a young farmer—Howard Cox.

At Pingpong Meet

This picture of Mrs. Edward L. Hasler of Lake Forest was taken as she watched her daughter, Constance, play in the ping-pong tournament held at the Durand Art institute for the benefit of Druce Lake camp. Mrs. Hasler and Miss Hasler have just returned from a visit to California.

City Starts Observance of Music Week Tomorrow

National Music week will be observed in Chicago, beginning tomorrow. Churches, schools, clubs and other organizations have been asked to have special programs. The Chicago committee, which has headquarters in the Stevens hotel, is headed by Mrs. Louis E. Yager.

Home for Friendless Reports Increase in Aid to Children

More needy children were provided for last year than in any previous year, according to the annual report issued last night by the Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5059 Vincennes avenue.

Parental desertion, involving mothers, and parental unfitness were principal factors in the increase. Cases received from the Juvenile court rose from 157 to 244. Other increases and their causes, as tabulated by Miss Helen Younggren, are: Death of mother, from 43 cases to 68; unfit parents, 50 to 79; desertion by both parents, 4 to 10; stranded children, awaiting removal to other cities, 2 to 14.

The Chicago Home for the Friendless is administered by a group of six officers and a board of managers. Mrs. Elizabeth Littler is superintendent. Arthur H. Gilbert is president.

Scandinavian Consuls Discuss Unit Language

Scandinavian consular officials and others met last night at a gathering of the Scandinavian club, in Noyes hall, University of Chicago. G. B. Anderson, Swedish vice consul, was the principal speaker. He said that Norwegians, Swedes, and Danes should describe themselves as Scandinavians, and urged all to learn the three languages for a more common understanding. Among the guests present were Swedish Consul C. Lindquist, Norwegian Consul Olaf Bernts, Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett, and Col. Siqueland.

Pioneer School to Greet Old Pupils Today

Kashmir Shawl Features Costumes for Tea.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Wound in a romantic Kashmir shawl—judged by many as a museum piece—one of the students at the Kenwood-Loring school will pour tea this afternoon for the group of prominent Chicagoans invited to return and chat of kindergarten days at the old south side institution. All of the student hostesses are to appear in old fashioned dresses—bustles, hoops, and puffs—but, as Miss Stella Loring, the principal, remarked yesterday, the shawl will make one of the most attractive costumes, certainly the most precious.

"Each year we have a May tea for the graduates," she went on to explain, "but this time, appropos of the approaching Century of Progress and the George Washington bicentennial, we are supplementing it with an exhibit of former fashions and other old pieces still in the possession of the early Chicago families."

"Many of these," she continued, "have been found in the families of former students, since Kenwood-Loring is the oldest private school, exclusive of convents, in the city. Eames MacVeagh, George Lorimer, and Oliver Herford all went to kindergarten here and Annie May Swift Henry, Janet Ayer Fairbank, and Mildred Murphy Hurley are among the alumnæ."

As a matter of fact, it isn't necessary for Miss Loring to go beyond her own family to assemble quite a collection, for with her aunts and cousins she has a number of pieces that belonged to her grandfather, Dr. Charles Volney Dyer, who settled in Chicago in the thirties and became a noted abolitionist. There are the Kashmir shawl, the table Dr. Dyer used when stationed as post physician at Fort Dearborn, also the first photographs made of Michael Angelo's paintings in the Sistine chapel by a Mr. Braun and sent as a gift to Dr. Dyer.

"But a good many of the mementos of pre-civil war days owned by my grandfather were swept away by the fire," Miss Loring went on. "He lived at that time at Rush and Ohio streets and was, of course, burned out. Fortunately, however, a few things were rescued by rolling them in rugs and then burying the rolls in the celery patch. I'm particularly glad we have the old Kashmir shawl, for Grandfather Dyer purchased it from the Compagnie des Indes in 1862 when he went as a judge to the International court in Liberia."

And what a handsome shawl it is! The value lies in three features—first, it is made with a white background, which lists it as rare, since the greater number of Kashmir shawls have red or black backgrounds; in the second place, it is woven of the finest "pashm," or "pashmina," the very soft underwool of the Tibetan goat; and most important of all, it represents an industry now practically extinct.

There is magic in the name Kashmir—as in Samarkand, Peshawar, or Peking there is a hidden lure. It is a vale of color, with flat roofed houses abloom with irises, purple and white. It is tucked away in the lower Himalaya, north of the Indian Punjab. Without a doubt this setting is responsible for the aura of romance that has surrounded the shawls made by its people for almost 400 years.

In their heyday—when Napoleon presented several to Josephine as a gift—these Kashmir masterpieces kept 16,000 looms humming and more than 25,000 men and women at work. They have always been characterized by the elaboration of their design, in which the "cone" or "mango" pattern is the prominent feature—also by the glowing harmony, the brilliance, the depth, and enduring qualities of the colors.

When Victoria was proclaimed empress of India a number of Kashmir shawls were presented as tribute to the English crown. In fact, it is told that this gift gave impetus to an industry that presented the Kashmir in its more modern version—the Paisley. Whether or not familiar with the handsome old Kashmir shawls, there are few who have not owned or seen a Paisley.

In pattern it is a copy of the Kashmir, but the materials are products of Scotland rather than of the Tibetan goat. From the little town of Paisley that grew up around the abbey of Paisley this more recent shawl took its name.

During the latter half of the nineteenth century the shawl industry in Kashmir suffered a great decline, due in part to the Franco-German war, but more especially to the famine of 1877 that scattered the old time weavers. Today a few Kashmir workers, still with memories of the famous industry, are using the same "pashm" to embroider the coarse felts of Chinese Turkestan tribes—covers marketed as rugs by both Europeans and Americans.

Museum Presents Exhibit of 8 Passenger Pigeons

An exhibit of eight passenger pigeons, an extinct species, was announced yesterday at the Field Museum of Natural History. In the May issue of the museum's bulletin, Rudyerd Boulton, assistant curator of birds, said that the pigeons, which flew over the Chicago regions by the millions in the last century, were killed for food by early settlers and later used for fattening hogs.

Manners of a Hill Billy Can Cause Divorce

Wife Grows Frantic with Vulgar Mate.

BY DORIS BLAKE

In the statistical bulletins issued annually on divorce, incompatibility, drunkenness, infidelity, in-laws and such major difficulties are presented among the prime causes. But social behavior as applied to the niceties of etiquette never appear in the list of causes. Yet, there is reason to believe that a woman of refinement can more easily forgive a lapse in moral behavior than she can forgive a continued irritating breach of etiquette at table. Nor does it have to be so gross a table offense as eating pie with the knife. Neither do the etiquette breaches that drive women mad have to be table performances alone. So seemingly minor an incident as failure to arise when a woman guest enters the room may send the good woman into a state of panic.

If you were to look into those countless numbers of incompatibility cases registered annually in divorce records, you would find that it is the small, irritating habits that get on feminine nerves; more often than not these habits are of etiquette nature. Certain personal habits may contribute the same sort of disastrous effect on fastidious sensibilities, too.

It's the last thing in the world that occurs to the erring mate as the reason for his offensiveness. The woman may have told him time and again that his habit is irritating or his social behavior in need of training. But men being what they are in their contempt for the proprieties, they cannot imagine how an overstuffed mouth necessitating high, wide and vulgar chewing could inspire a woman to calling up her lawyer and talking alimony terms with him.

But if the women are like that, that's the way they are, men. And you're not going to convert them into adoring mates until you learn how those sensibilities of theirs can be affronted with your social lapses. Above everything else, that woman in whom you have invested your name wants to be proud of you. She wants to be proud of you when she is dining, and visiting alone with you, and when guests are present. That idea that you may be nursing as a small boy hangover that it is he-mannish to belittle the rules of etiquette simply does not hold water today, however the rough diamond may have served in sturdier, pioneer days.

It is a fact that men born of humble background and bent on big success never overlook etiquette as a progressive bet.

Welsh Choir Wins Applause with Concert

Excellent Program Marks Seventh Season.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Full toned, fleetly paced, highly expert in the art of singing, the Chicago Welsh Male choir gave a concert signalizing its seventh season at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of Dr. Daniel Protheroe. Whether a particular number happened to be the massed singing of the choir or the solo singing of that notable among baritones, John Charles Thomas, there was a stir in every moment.

Mr. Thomas is on the last lap of about as busy a season as a singer may expect at any time or under any conditions. Between eighty and ninety appearances in concert and opera plus some forty more over the radio are his assignments for the current musical year if the reported figures are correct. Yet to hear him last night one might have sworn that the month was September and not April and that he had come on after a six months' vacation. A voice as sturdy and fresh and full of thrills as his, a flexible ease in songs like his, an ability to project several languages like his are some of the signs of a great artist, and he has these and several more.

Much of what Mr. Thomas did in his solos the choir did in its group numbers. A first performance of a new work by Dr. Protheroe, a setting of Longfellow's "The Minstrels," turned out to be a composition of much solidity, though not in the least of stolidity, cleverly written as to its technical vocal aspects, and loudly applauded, as it deserved to be. It was followed by a choral arrangement of the well known "Songs My Mother Taught Me." A group of Welsh songs, always a feature of these programs, appeared later.

A good part of the song recital program by Alexander Corado, bass-baritone, at Kimball hall last night, was in German, and some of the songs in this language, though not all, were by Chicago composers. Among them were works by Alexander Sebald, Albert Noelte, Frederick Stock, and Radie Britain, and one might also include one by Richard Hageman as an ex-resident of the city. Others were by Schubert and Brahms. Mr. Corado has a voice of first rate quality and he understands its use, though he is hampered a bit as a public singer by a tendency to group together too many songs of uncontrastingly solemn mood. At the same time, he sings them excellently.

Cagney Is Willing to Make 3 Free Movies for Release

Hollywood, Cal., April 29.—[Special.]—James Cagney, motion picture star, who has been suspended by the Warner Brothers studio because of his strike against appearing in more films until his $1,400 a week salary is raised, today disclosed that he had made an offer to the company to "work in three more pictures without a cent of salary, if in return the company would cancel the remainder of my five year contract."

The studio refused to accept Cagney's offer.

Another studio offered Warners $150,000 to take over Cagney's contract, but this offer also was refused.

New York, April 29.—(AP)—Josef von Sternberg, the movie director, who is currently embroiled with the Paramount studios as to whether he, or they, shall have the last word in a picture starring Marlene Dietrich, left today for the west coast. He entrained on the 20th Century Limited and will leave Chicago for Los Angeles tomorrow aboard the Chief.

Mrs. G. V. McIntyre Renamed Head of Big Sisters Group

Mrs. George V. McIntyre, wife of Judge McIntyre of the Municipal court, was unanimously reelected president of the Big Sisters at the fifteenth annual meeting of the charity organization in the Blackstone hotel yesterday. She has headed the Big Sisters for fourteen years.

The organization last year served more than 40,000 meals to needy school children. In addition hundreds of other services were performed, including the giving of school scholarships. The Big Sisters will hold a tag day Monday.

Bird Paintings by Karl Plath on Exhibition

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A stunning group of bird paintings by Karl Plath goes on exhibition today in the Knoedler galleries, 622 South Michigan avenue. Karl Plath's work has been seen before, at the Art institute and in other shows, but not until now, that I can remember, has he been given a one man exhibit.

In view of the extraordinary brilliancy of his present performance this seems strange. Perhaps it is just a repetition of the old tale of a prophet being without honor in his own country.

Whatever has kept the solid gorgeousness of Karl Plath's painting in group form from us up to now may be dismissed. Faced with his superb paintings of exotic and colorful birds nothing is of value except the satisfying fact that here are some twenty canvases, picturesque, decorative, and manifesting an exquisite and trained technique. None but a craftsman and a man of much practice could, for example, have painted the soft plumage of the "Pink Cockatoo."

Many of these birds live in Mr. Plath's aviary. He has a passion for birds and feeds it by the presence of curious feathered creatures, tropical in origin, most of them, in quarters especially prepared for them in his own house. His aviary is his studio and we need not question the veracity of his brush; fact, with birds, being often stranger than fiction. We could not imagine some of the grotesqueries with which, nature adorns certain birds. Consider the "Rhinoceros Hornbills" and the decorative splash of the "Malay Hornbills."

Among the little birds, like flames, are the "Weaver Birds," delicate and lovely in their brightness. More brilliant and more flamelike are the "Paradisea." Of the tenderest blue are the "Blue Macaws," and their portrait is one of the most entrancing.

Pert and picturesque is the painting of the "Quetzel," a distinguished little rascal who is also found portrayed on the stamps of Guatemala. The "Red Macaws" is another superb canvas and the "Great Pelicans" is magnificent. In fact, there is something of beauty and fascination in all these pictures. One visit leaves you restless for another.

The exhibition will continue to May 14 and is very well worth seeing. It is one of the finest of the May shows.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover went to the Chevy Chase club this afternoon to witness the tennis games for the Davis cup. She had with her as guests Mrs. Henry Clay Folger of New York, who came for the opening of the Shakespeare library given by her late husband; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wells; Mrs. Stark McMullin and Miss Goss, Mrs. Hoover's secretaries; Capt. and Mrs. Russell Train, and Col. Campbell Hodges, military aide to the President.

The President received the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and his guest, John Walter, one of the owners of the London Times, at noon today at the White House.

President and Mrs. Hoover will make their first week-end visit to their camp on the Rapidan, leaving tomorrow. They will have a number of guests with them over Sunday. Among them will be the attorney general and Mrs. Mitchell, the secretary of the interior and Mrs. Wilbur, Mr. Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, the undersecretary of the treasury and Mrs. Ballantine, the assistant secretary of the treasury, Ferry K. Heath; the assistant secretary of the navy and Mrs. Jahncke, Dr. R. A. Millikan of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Newton, Capt. and Mrs. Joel T. Boone, and Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President.

The Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debuchi gave a large reception this afternoon at the embassy in celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the Japanese emperor. They were assisted by the wives of the members of the embassy staff.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann received this afternoon with Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson at the latter's country home, Hollin Hall, in Virginia, whose gardens are among those listed as open for inspection, on the tour of Virginia gardens. Many people have motored from various parts of the country to view these ancient gardens, among them Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, who stopped in Washington and were entertained at luncheon at the White House on Wednesday.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Need Confirmation Clothes.

There are two children in the neighborhood who are to be confirmed next Tuesday, and they haven't the necessary clothes to wear on this eventful occasion. They have no way of getting them as their mothers are widows and have had very little work. One of the children, a girl, needs a white dress and petticoat, size 12, white slippers, size 13½, and white stockings. The other, a boy, needs a dark blue suit, size 10.

MRS. J. D.

Perhaps your daughter has a white dress and shoes she has outgrown which this girl may have and if your son has an outgrown suit in fairly good condition it will solve this anxious mother's problem at this time.

Mirande Suit Designed to Retain Chic Through a Twelve Hour Shift

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Not many styles are good for a twelve hour shift. The practical clothes that step out so sure and proud in the early morning usually look pretty wilted and sad when you wear them at the cocktail hour, and the dressy frock is like unto an electric light bulb at sunrise.

The girl who goes to business has to wear her clothes to work and up until evening just the same, so that her special problem must be solved. Paris has helped the solution this season by making silk suits that are simple enough to be one with the spring morning and dainty enough to look quite right at the end of the afternoon. They are real "twelve-hour-a-day" styles, and if you work you'll want to have one of these ensembles.

The Mirande suit ensemble, sketched today, is the type of outfit that Paris suggests for the long shift. The jacket and skirt are made of blue crinkly crêpe that is not quite so dark as navy. The blue is tested under sun and electric light to make sure that it holds its life in both lights. This is important in choosing color that can be worn long hours, and you should always do it.

The jacket of this suit has no collar, has raglan sleeves that make a small shoulder yoke, has rounded corners at the closing on the hipline, and is held in at the waistline by a dotted georgette belt in red, blue, and beige. This belt is twisted in front and attached on two rings. The blouse is made of the same georgette, with short sleeves and ties in front which can be worn outside the jacket and under the belt. The bag is made of the same printed crêpe.

Three more White Sox players were traded last night, making a total of seven transferred in three deals within the last week.

Smead Jolley and Johnny Watwood, outfielders, and Benny Tate, a catcher, were sent to the Boston Red Sox in a straight trade for Catcher Charles Berry. John Rothrock, Boston outfielder, was purchased by the White Sox at the waiver price of $7,500.

Berry and Rothrock will report to the Sox immediately and Jolley, Watwood and Tate will be in Boston in time to participate in the opening game of the Philadelphia series on Sunday.

Trading of these players, particularly Jolley and Watwood, is further evidence of the White Sox's determination to get the defensive strength so badly lacking in recent years. Berry especially is expected to make the south side team more formidable.

Jolley Is Slugger.

Although not a consistent hitter, Berry has been rated a slugger in the American league for four years. He is a dependable catcher and was sought for this reason, more than for his hitting, Secretary Harry Grabiner said. He has been Boston's first string catcher for two years and is one of the three best back stops in the league.

He is a Lafayette college product, where he played end with Frank Grube, whom he will supplant as the Sox regular catcher.

Jolley, who has been the slugging star of the Sox during his two seasons with the team, joined the club at the start of 1930 campaign, coming from San Francisco in the Pacific Coast league, where he batted well over .350 for five years. With the Sox he batted .313 in 1930 and an even .300 last year.

Regarded as one of the most dangerous hitters in the major leagues, Jolley was converted into a catcher at the start of the spring training season because of his weak defensive ability in the outfield. Since the opening of the American league race, however, he has played in the outfield.

Watwood Good Hitter.

Watwood, another good hitter, but weak defensively, has batted .296 for three seasons with the White Sox. For a short time in 1930, he played first base, but has been used in the outfield this year. Boston plans on using him at first base.

Tate joined the club in the middle of the 1930 race in the trade that sent Arthur Shires, first baseman, to Washington. He batted .312 for that season, but slumped to .267 last year.

More trades are in the making, Grabiner said last night. While the three trades closed with the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland Indians and Boston have provided the Sox with an infield rated as a .300 combination and added some defensive strength to the outfield and the catching department, there is still a glaring need for combined slugging and fielding stars in the outfield.

The Cleveland deal in which Bill Cissell, an infielder, and Jim Moore, a pitcher, were traded for Johnny Hodapp and Bob Seeds, gave offensive strength to the infield and defensive strength to the outfield. The St. Louis trade, the best of the three, bolstered the infield immeasurably with the acquisition of Ralph Kress for Pitcher Irving Hadley and Outfielder Bruce Campbell.

SOX LOSE AGAIN, 7-5

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., April 29.—The rotating White Sox this afternoon sloughed off another one to make it nine defeats in ten games during their period of metamorphosis. This day's blistering at the hands of the Cleveland Indians was 7 to 5, a tabulation which was arrived at after the Sox had led, 5 to 3, at the end of the sixth inning.

Today's setback cannot be blamed on anything but pitching misfortune. For a change the team played errorless ball.

The Sox made 11 hits and most of them were timely and impressive. But Faber was not at his best in the sec-

DERBY ELIGIBLES CLASH TODAY AT CHURCHILL DOWNS

$5,000 Clark Handicap Is Also on Card.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 29.—Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, opened informally this afternoon as a prelude to the formal start of its 58th annual spring meeting tomorrow. This prelude was a day of racing for charity with Louisville's community chest the beneficiary. Returns were estimated at about $35,000.

Under the stimulus of a half holiday declared by Mayor William Harrison and advance sale of tickets distributed by various civic organizations, about 12,000 were drawn to a card of seven races, not attractive compared to that which will appear in the Clark handicap, tomorrow's stake feature, and not attractive compared to the seven Derby possibilities among the overnight entries. There was also the deterrent of intermitten showers.

Estimates Based on Ticket Sales.

Estimates of $35,000 profit for the community chest—official figures will not be available until the private ticket sale is checked—are based on a ticket sale of $20,000. Prices were $1 for grandstand, $2 for clubhouse, and $3 for boxes. The other $15,000 was from concessions and estimated mutuel handle of $150,000, of which the take now is 10 per cent. The volume of betting, while below that of last year's official opening day, was up to expectations, considering the business situation in general.

While this program was a feature of local interest, those far from Louisville will be concerned in a move in the sixth race on tomorrow's card in which Burning Blaze, Chicago owned colt, will appear under silks in what probably will be his only tightening up contest before the big $50,000 event on May 7. This big fellow, owned by the Nash brothers, is now regarded as the outstanding representative of the west against an eastern invasion, whose number and individuals will be determined in some measure by results at eastern tracks tomorrow.

Burning Blaze Wins Support.

Although it now looks as if ten nominations now training at local tracks might go to the post Derby day, Burning Blaze has jumped into a position of equal future book choice with Top Flight, the Whitney filly which was 2 year old champion.

Prominence of the chestnut son of Big Blaze is the more pronounced because of well defined rumors that Liberty Limited of the Three D's stable of Texas is now in the doubtful class because of a training mishap. Previously Liberty Limited was gaining new friends by his work.

Opposed to Burning Blaze tomorrow, if all go to the post, will be six other Derby eligibles, although several are eligibles more by the fact they were nominated and nominations remain eligible rather than by any actual chance of their owners paying a $500 starting fee to send them after the big money. Among those still considered is the Chicago owned Cathop, a bay colt by Supremus, which carries the colors of R. M. Eastman, whose Mike Hall was a favorite of Chicago turf patrons.

There Are Others.

Others are the Knebiekamp and Morris Adobe Post, whose stock slumped in a recent defeat; Bay Angon, Rowdy Boy, also entered in the Clark handicap, from the Three D stable; Sazerac, and Crystal Prince.

The distance, six and one-half furlongs, does not give a line on route going ability, but at least will show the growth of these colts during the winter to onlookers.

Entered for the Clark handicap, with $5,000 added, are Pittsburgher, Stock Market, Rowdy Boy, and Canfi as an entry; Lady Broadcast, Ridgeview, Joey Bibb, Spanish Play, and Cousin Jo.

AND THEN MICKEY WENT TO WORK

UNITED STATES BEATS CANADA IN DAVIS CUP SERIES

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—The United States took its first step toward the world's tennis championship today when Johnny Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Wilmer Allison, blond Texan, national doubles champions, scored the third and deciding victory in the American zone Davis cup competition on the Chevy Chase Country club courts.

Van Ryn and Allison defeated Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville, Canada's first two ranking players, with an attack that thrilled the gallery of 1,500, which included President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover. The scores were 6-2, 8-1, 6-2.

There will be two more matches tomorrow, but regardless of the outcome of the games, the United States team now can start preparations to meet Mexico's squad at New Orleans next month.

In tomorrow's two matches, Shields will meet Dr. Wright and Vines will face Rainville.

Drama? Yes Sir! Whenever Mickey Goes Down, It's Drama

BY ARCH WARD.

Most of the drama in the Walker-Levinsky match at Chicago Stadium last night was crowded into the first round. The King took Mickey by surprise when he dropped him with a wild left and right to the head. It was the third round before the Irishman regained his sea legs.

After the knockdown Walker looked at his corner to assure Jack Kearns he was all right. He is a gentleman of vast human sympathy and does not like to see his manager suffer.

This was one highly ballyhooed match that measured up to predictions. There were no dull rounds. The boys performed with such enthusiasm that they frequently forgot to quit fighting at the bell.

Levinsky repeatedly urged Walker to "Come on and fight." The gesture was somewhat amusing in view of Mickey's aggressiveness. He chased the King at least as far as Maxwell street and back trying to catch up with him.

The decision was not unanimous. Referee Purdy voted for Levinsky, but he was overruled by Judges Hintz and Osborne. This writer gave Levinsky two rounds, the first and second, while Walker won the third, fifth, sixth, seventh, and ninth. The others were even.

The turning point of the match came in the fifth round when Walker landed a terrific right over Levinsky's heart. That punch took the steam out of the King's attack.

After the second round Levinsky depended almost entirely on a right hand counter punch to the head. Walker scored with a left to the stomach, seemingly at will.

Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, announced last night Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, will fight Billy Petrolle in the west side arena May 20. Technicalities blocking the match were removed yesterday when the Cincinnati boxing commission lifted the suspension of Battalino for his part in an alleged fake fight with Freddy Miller last January. The action of the Cincinnati ring board automatically restored Battalino to good standing in all territory governed by the National Boxing association. The weight for the Chicago match will be 140 pounds.

The three members of the Illinois athletic commission took special precaution against fistic burglary. Fred Gardner was seated back of Walker's corner. George Getz viewed the goings on from Levinsky's corner, and Chairman John Clinnin sat next to the timekeeper.

There was no depression in the cheaper sections. Hundreds of fans were standing in the lower balcony. The upper shelf had been sold out two weeks in advance of the match.

The fans gave an old favorite, Bud Taylor, a hand when he entered the ring to second Sammy Slaughter in the latter's bout with Jack Moran. Slaughter, a Terre Haute Negro, recently whipped Dave Shade at Milwaukee; Taylor is Sammy's manager.

Judge Walter P. Steffen, football coach at Carnegie Tech, and Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, were at the ringside to see what the box fighters were doing about the rabbit punch. Neither detected any illegal use of the hands.

There was enough brutality in the Hererra-Collins and Slaughter-Moran fights to satisfy the most savage, unless their tastes ran toward pogroms.

Among the regular fight patrons in ringside seats were Senator T. J. Courtney, Carlos Ames, former president of the civil service commission; Judge Joseph Sabath, Judge Michael McKinley and Irving Altschuler, south side banker.

Gov. Olson of Minnesota, Joseph B. McDonough, county treasurer; Judge Francis Borelli, Judge Philip Finnegan, and Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, were other political figures at the ringside.

SALING, BROOKS BREAK DRAKE RELAY RECORDS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., April 29.—George Saling of Iowa and John Brooks, University of Chicago sophomore, monopolized the record breaking in the opening of the 23d annual Drake relays here this afternoon. It had been predicted that Saling, captain of the Hawkeye track team, would crack the 120 yard high hurdle mark, but Brooks came here virtually unknown to compete in the broad jump.

Brooks, a Negro, who represented Hyde Park High school, before entering Chicago, led the ten qualifiers in the broad jump with a remarkable effort of 24 feet 8⅝ inches. He surpassed the seven year old record of Dehart Hubbard of Michigan, another of his race, which was set at 24 feet 2⅝ inches.

Hoosiers Set Record.

Brooks' mark today is the more remarkable, for he accomplished what Edward Gordon of Iowa failed to do in three years of competition. Gordon, a Negro from Froebel High school, Gary, Ind., who was graduated from Iowa last year, frequently has jumped more than 25 feet. He holds the 1931 Big Ten championship and the record for the Kansas relays, but the Drake mark always evaded him.

Harry Brocksmith of Indiana, who holds the Big Ten indoor two mile and one mile championships, led the Hoosiers to a new intercollegiate record in the medley relay. The Hoosiers were timed in 10 minutes 19 1-10 seconds, with Brocksmith running the mile in 4 minutes 17 seconds. Brocksmith's run in reality set the championship time and more, it stamped him definitely as one of America's greatest milers.

The former intercollegiate record was set by Yale 17 years ago at 10 minutes 20 seconds. Of course, the Hoosiers' time broke the Drake relays record set last year by Iowa State. The medley relay is composed of a 440 yards, 880, three-quarters and one mile combination.

Ranks with Best.

The lithe Brooks romped down to the takeoff and gradually brought his mark to the 24 foot distance and then beyond. His final leap today is enough, probably, to win the finals tomorrow, for which ten athletes are

THEY'RE OFF AT PENN RELAYS, BUT ONLY IN A WALK

Munger Wins Decathlon; Ohio State Takes 440.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., April 29.—It seemed as if most of the young men and kids on the eastern seaboard had bet their pants and shirts on some proposition and lost as the first half of the annual two day program of foot races and other such pranks known as the Penn relay carnival was run off today in balmy weather on the patchy sward of Franklin field.

The carnival went on and on from 10 o'clock in the morning until almost 6 p. m. in the presence of a slowly gathering crowd which reached a figure of maybe 10,000 by the time the more serious events of the day were arrived at along toward closing time.

The field swarmed at all times with athletes in an advanced state of undress, and those who weren't engaged in running around the cindered border of the yard were heaving long, wicked wooden needles known as javelins or the brass stovelid called the discus, or were just standing around watching others do so and awaiting their turns to do something.

There Was Some Comedy.

Somehow, out of the teeming confusion of limber young students, the ringmasters of the relay carnival, by a remarkable job of traffic management contrived to sort out various classes and subclasses of athletes and send them through a program of 38 separate events, including the steeplechase.

This was the comedy relief of the show. In the steeplechase the athletes have to hop over not only the customary running track hurdles but a stand of artificial brush, something like the hedges used in the Grand National and other suicide heats of the horse running business. On the far side of the hedge row the runners hit kersplash in a shallow concrete water tank and come up with their shoes all squashy and their legs moist. Then the black dust sticks to their shanks and they look very insanitary from that point on.

An Irishman Won.

The puddle jumping contest went to Joe McCluskey of Fordham university, New York, and an Indiana mudlark by the name of J. C. Watson was second. The distance was 3,000 meters, approximately one and seven-eighths miles, and McCluskey's time was 9 minutes 28 6-10 seconds. McCluskey had a hereditary advantage, coming from a long line of distinguished bog jumpers. They said he had web feet for it.

There was a little gossip about the failure of Henry Brocksmith, another Indiana athlete, to report with a supporting cast for work in the distance medley race, because it seemed that he had sent in his entry and Penn had advertised his appearance using the word positively. This was supposed to have lured lots of the customers into the plant and the theory was that these people were bitterly disappointed and pretty sore about his nonappearance.

The Class Stayed Home.

But your correspondent has an ear pretty well attuned to the squawk of the outraged customer and he did not hear any one howling for Henry Brocksmith of Indiana. In fact, there probably were not many people present who ever heard of Henry Brocksmith. Anyway, instead of coming to Penn, he went to the Drake relay meet at Des Moines, which was his privilege, and though the medley distance relay may have lost something by his change of mind, still it was a hot enough exhibition of footrunning.

The New York U. team won this one over a distance of 2½ miles in 10 minutes 21 6-10 seconds, with Penn second and Manhattan college third. Schleffer, Maloney, Barker, and the miler, Nordell, ran for New York U., and it was Barker, running a leg of three-quarters of a mile, who did the winning for New York U. He gained a lead of about 20 yards over Carl Coan of Penn.

The program was not as rich in competitive butter-fat as it had been

BY FRENCH LANE.

Our Kingfish, Mr. Levinsky of Maxwell street, dashing along toward a match for the world's heavyweight championship, reached the stretch on the trail where the traveling becomes rough and rocky last night, and before 19,995 spectators at the Chicago Stadium—most of them his well wishers—he was whipped but not disgraced by Mickey Walker.

After ten rounds of furious fighting, battling and slugging that had the crowd hysterical one minute and in a turmoil the next, Walker's arm was lifted as a signal of victory.

The judges, Livingston Osborne and Edward Hintz, awarded the verdict to the Toy Bulldog of Rumson, N. J., who once was the world's welterweight champion and who later wore the world's middleweight crown, but who now, at 31 years and nearly an old man of fistiana, is traveling around without a title of any sort. Referee Ed Purdy's score card had Levinsky as the winner.

Mickey Floored in First.

For drama, thrills and hysteria among the customers who dropped $73,892.82 into the counting room for their night's entertainment, this fight had all the others that have ever taken place in the huge arena on the west side crowded into the background. Levinsky and Walker each received 30 per cent of the net.

The fight was only a minute old when the Kingfish landed a terrific left and right to Walker's chin, which sent the Toy Bulldog sprawling. But he bounced right up before a count could be started. Although Walker had been hurt, he recovered completely and ripped into Levinsky with his old time ferocity until the third round was under way.

Then the Kingfish was brought face to face with the fact that he was up against an antagonist who did not know the word quit. He was stung on the chin so often by Walker's short left that his head began to wobble. And Walker, now going at full speed after being temporarily halted soon after the fight started, came back in the fourth round to score with a battering right to the heart that took lots more of the steam out of the game and willing Kingfish.

Row Over Referee Selection.

From then until the finish the Kingfish was beaten, not by a wide margin, mind you, but mauled around just enough to prove to the satisfaction of all the customers that Walker on this occasion, at least, was his master. There wasn't a dissenting voice from the excited spectators when the verdict was returned. But when the Kingfish jumped over the ropes throwing out kisses to all parts of the packed arena, and as he made his way to his dressing room, he got most of the cheers.

There had been a row about who was to referee the fight shortly before the principals entered the ring. Levinsky's handlers had objected to Dave Miller as the referee. The Walker forces said there would be no fight if the Illinois boxing commission picked Ed Purdy.

But the boxing commission did pick Purdy, and with $73,892.82 in the till, Walker did not back out of the fight. Old Dr. Kearns, who manages the Toy Bulldog, didn't want to see that money go back into the hands of the folks who had spent it. He wouldn't do it under any conditions, so the fight went on.

However, Dr. Kearns was very noisy along the press rows after the verdict had been returned with the two judges giving the decision to his Mickey Walker and Referee Purdy awarding it to Levinsky.

"I am going before the commission on Saturday and ask that Referee Purdy's decision be reversed," Kearns said.

Levinsky Hits Floor Too.

The crowd which had come to cheer the Kingfish whether he won or lost knew nothing about the squabble over the referee. They whooped it up for Kingfish noisily until the seventh round. Then Walker's right, which landed squarely on Levinsky's jaw, sent the Kingfish into the rosin dust.

The Kingfish was in such a fury he didn't even remain down for the count to start. He came up with the look of an infuriated bull in his eyes. He began tossing wild rights at Walker. Only about one in every six connected, and the ones that did land didn't seem to be doing any damage.

It was Levinsky's rally in the last round, during which he fought Mickey on fairly even terms, that got him all those cheers when he left the ring. He was still trying to land with his murderous right, which arched almost all the way up to the Stadium roofs when the fight ended.

Doktor Beats Calmes.

Dick Sisk of Chicago, weighing 139 pounds, scored a technical knockout over Ruby Goldstein of New York, 144, in the second round of a scheduled six rounder.

3 ENTRIES ADDED TO INAUGURAL AT AURORA MONDAY

No More and War Glow Will Start.

Three additional horses were named yesterday for the Inaugural handicap to be run at Aurora on Monday.

No More, C. E. Davidson's sprinter, was named after Cheers had been withdrawn. No More will run coupled with Hot Shot, another sprinter of note.

Scimitar, owned by J. D. Mikel of Bloomington, Ill., which ran third to Phar Lap in the Agua Caliente handicap, and War Glow were added to the entries. War Glow will be coupled with Scimitar as Mikel's entry.

Tannery, E. F. Pritchard's 5 year old son of Ballot, shipped here for the Inaugural, breezed five-eighths of a mile in 1:03 yesterday. He was hard held all the way.

Outbound, Herbert M. Wolf's color bearer, bred by John Hertz, turned in the best workout of all. He sped five-eighths of a mile in 1:01 2-5, going the half in 48 2-5.

The Inaugural handicap field probably will include Malola, Golden Prince, Genuine, Karl Eitel, and other stars. A 2 year old race on the opening day may bring such good juveniles as Miss Brilliant, Wise Ann and Sergeant Hill into action. Wise Ann won the Nursery stakes at Hialeah. Sergeant Hill is here fresh from a victory in Maryland and Miss Brilliant shattered a track record at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans the first time she scored a victory.

Fields will be limited to ten starters in nearly all of the opening day events, according to Racing Secretary Robert Shelley.

INDOOR POLO FINALS WILL BE PLAYED TONIGHT

The indoor polo season comes to a close tonight with the Meadowbrook Shamrocks of Milwaukee playing the 122d Field artillery of Chicago in the final game of Chicago's first annual low goal tournament for the trophy offered by Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth Corps area.

The championship game, which will be played at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, will be preceded by a military show staged by the Third district of the American Legion, and an exhibition polo match between Chicago's army champions, the 124th Field artillery trio, and the Cavalry Polo club of Cleveland, O., winners of the world's class C championship in 1931.

MAROONS BEAT JAPANESE, 5 TO 3, AS PAGE PITCHES

Rikkio's ninth inning rally against the University of Chicago fell short yesterday when Nakajima, "Babe Ruth" of Japan, grounded out with the bases full to give the Maroons a 5 to 3 decision.

The Rikkio team left last night for Columbus, where it will play Ohio State. The Maroons will face Wisconsin at Greenwood field today in a battle for first place in the Big Ten. Score:

North Central Defeats Armour Tech, 7 to 0

North Central	100	060	000	7	8	0

Batteries—Schum and Oesterle; Mayer and Jakus.

Know Your Derby Horses

BY FRENCH LANE.

Most of the mystery about this year's Kentucky Derby centers around Col. Edward R. Bradley of Idle Hour farm and Palm Beach, one of the three owners whose silks twice have been carried to Derby triumphs.

Two Bradley colorbearers are on the Derby scene at Churchill Downs. They are Burgoo King and Brother Joe.

On their 2 year old records, Burgoo King is much the better colt. Col. Bradley told his friends some time ago that if he wins the Derby on May 7, Brother Joe is the colt that will turn the trick. Yet just two days ago he announced that Burgoo King was the ace in his hand.

Then, to add to the mystery, there has been steady backing for Burgoo King and only a light play on Brother Joe. Bradley says he did not wager on Burgoo King but money showed up for the colt in large amounts. Such backing indicates somebody knows Burgoo King will run a powerful race in the Derby.

Burgoo King and Brother Joe came together at Lexington a few days ago. Brother Joe finished first and Burgoo King second. Laverne Fator, the Bradley contract rider, was aboard Burgoo King. It might have been that as long as Brother Joe could win, it wasn't necessary that Burgoo King should run his head off.

Both are Bradley homebreds, Burgoo King's daddy being the young Bradley sire, Bubbling Over, which won the Derby in a canter in 1926. Minawand, a daughter of Lonawand, is Burgoo King's mother. As a 2 year old, Burgoo King started 12 times. He won on four occasions and was forever coming from far back. His best race came in the Pimlico Futurity early in November when he landed third money, two lengths back of Top Flight and Tick On. He was rapidly overtaking the leaders.

Brother Joe, a son of Black Tony-Blossom Time, started but twice last year and was badly beaten each time. He has been to the post twice this spring. In his first start, Adobe Post, which has been declared out of the Derby, beat him. This was a short sprint race. Then he beat Burgoo King in a mile and seventy yards race. Since then Burgoo King has outworked him.

SMITTY—THE VOICE WITH THE SMILE WINS

IT'S BURGOO KING—PRIDE OF THE BLUE GRASS STATE

Col. E. R. Bradley has two more "B" horses ready for the Kentucky Derby. One is Brother Joe and the other Burgoo King. Folks bet on Bradley, and Bradley says he'll bank on Burgoo King. The Colonel has won two Derbies and seeks to establish precedent by winning a third. It's all up to Burgoo King—and Brother Joe.

BOSTON RED SOX GET TATE, JOLLEY, AND WATWOOD

Berry and Rothrock Come to Sox in Trade.

ond and seventh innings and a lot of nice batting work by the Comiskeys went to waste on this account.

Alumni Are Annoying.

For the second time this year two Sox alumni—Willie Kamm and Sarge Connally—were imposing factors in the thrashing of the Sox. The Sarge, in a relief role, got credit for the victory by holding the Sox runless in the three innings he worked. Kamm's part was a single with two out and two strikes on him to drive in the tying and the winning runs.

Red Kress played his first game for the Sox and looked fine at shortstop. Red drove in the run that gave the Sox a 4 to 3 lead in the fifth. The last Sox run was driven in by Bob Seeds in the sixth with his first safety for Chicago. Frank Grube drove in two tying runs with a double in the fourth inning and Smead Jolley's double accounted for the run the Sox got in the fi st inning.

They Should Have Made Two.

The Sox made one run in the first inning and would have acquired at least one more with a little more cautious base running. Seeds lined to Averill, but Selph singled to left and went to third on Blue's single to left center. Jolley smashed a double to left center, scoring Selph, but Blue was out, Averill to Montague to Myatt, in what seemed a reckless attempt to score.

The Indians grabbed a 3 to 1 lead in their end of the second. After Kress had thrown out Morgan, Vosmik beat out a bunt to Faber. Selph made a great diving stop of Kamm's smash over third, but could not beat Willie to first with the ball. Myatt bounced a double play ball between first and second, but it got past Blue and Hodapp and was registered a single, Vosmik scoring and Kamm stopping at second.

BRAVES TURN 12 HITS INTO 8 TO 3 WIN OVER GIANTS

Betts Steadies; Yields Only Six Safeties.

Boston, Mass., April 29.—[Special.]—The Boston Braves won an 8 to 3 victory over the New York Giants today after Huck Betts, veteran right hander from St. Paul, Minn., steadied following a bad start. The game was a delayed series opener.

BUCK BETTS.

The Giants obtained only six hits off Betts, three coming in the first inning. The Braves hit an even dozen off Schumacher and Luque. New York contributed five errors, bringing their season's total to 32.

PHILS ROUT DODGERS, 13 TO 6.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 29.—[Special.]—Chuck Klein had a perfect day at bat as he collected four hits and batted in six runs to lead the Phillies to a 13 to 6 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The rest of the Phils rapped three Dodgers' pitchers for 13 hits, including six doubles, a triple, and two home runs. The Dodgers totaled one more hit, but were unable to bunch them to force Ray Benge out.

Klein's best feat was a homer in the second which scored four runs in a seven run rally.

The Thrush at Dawn! A Sweet Alarm Clock

BY BOB BECKER.

If there is one bird which is guaranteed to give a fellow spring fever at this time of the year it is the species which sings at sunrise in our neighborhood and floods the shore line of Lake Michigan with its melodies. This bird is the brown thrasher or brown thrush. It is the mockingbird of the north. In fact, its song suggests so nearly the musical performances of the famous southern songster that early American bird students called it the "ferruginous mockingbird."

The brown thrasher, belonging to the early American school of songsters (B. C. . . . before crooners), checked into our neighborhood this week. We first heard the rich spring song of this bird at sunrise one morning. It is always such an event to hear this bird for the first time each spring that we arose and hustled to an open window to listen for a few seconds.

Although we couldn't see our "ferruginous mockingbird," it was safe to guess that he was perched in the top of a tree because the brown thrasher likes a lookout tower for his broadcasting. The voice of this songster is loud and clear. You can hear it a long distance. However, bird fans will point out that the thrasher hardly has the sweetness of tone which is characteristic of the wood thrush.

The bird fan who is just learning some of our most favored songsters should have little difficulty in identifying the thrasher because of its long beautiful tail. Of all our members of the Mimidae family we know of none that can boast of such a long bright brown tail as this fellow.

qualified. More than that, it marks him as favorite for the conference outdoor honors and as one of the leading competitors to represent the United States in the Olympic contests this summer at Los Angeles.

Saling, who was out of competition last year, has consistently been one of the Big Ten's best hurdlers. He won the Big Ten 70 yard indoor hurdle race last winter at Chicago, and today he clipped the barriers for the 120 yards in 14.6-10 seconds, knocking one-tenth off the mark established by Bob Hager of Iowa State last year. The hurdle record is another Drake mark which has evaded Lee Sentman of Illinois, who was graduated last year, and other stars.

Saling ran a perfect race and it it doubtful if he will do better tomorrow. He was favored by the perfect condition of the track and the weather which was more like a June day than late April.

Rhea Threatens Shot Mark.

Hugh Rhea of Nebraska, who set the meet shotput record last year, threatened his mark today. He tossed the 16 pound weight 50 feet ½ inch in comparison with his 1931 record of 50 feet 7.2 inches. Rhea leads the list of ten qualifiers for tomorrow's finals.

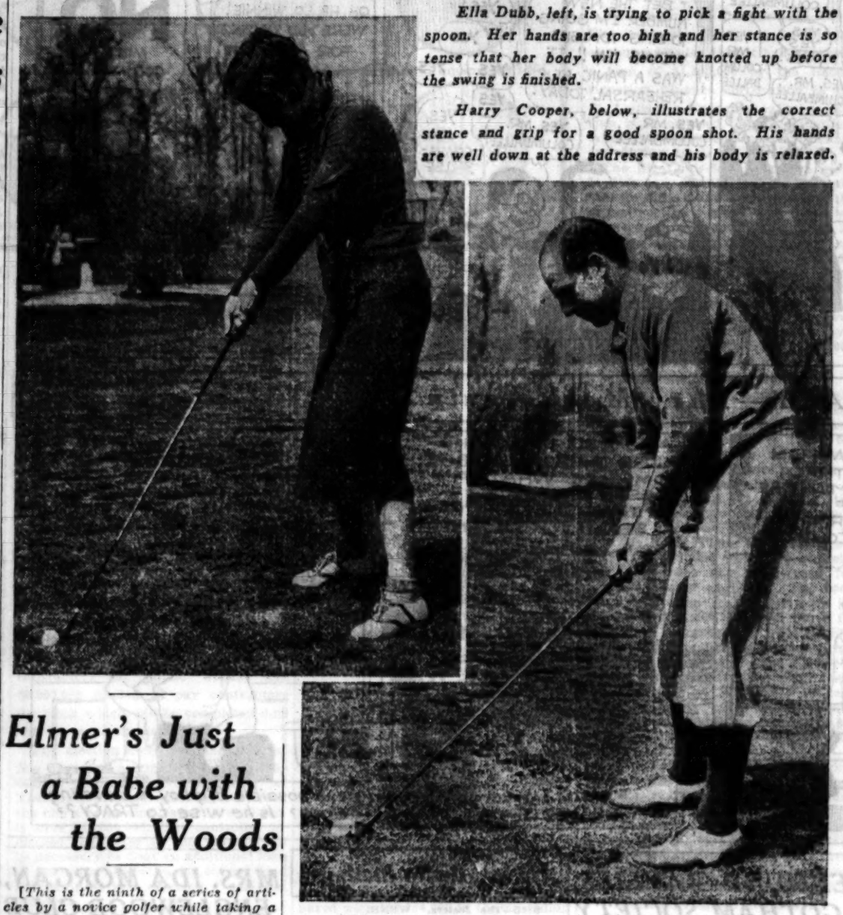
THE SPOON SHOT, RIGHT AND ELLA'S



Ella Dubb, left, is trying to pick a fight with the spoon. Her hands are too high and her stance is so tense that her body will become knotted up before the swing is finished.

Elmer's Just a Babe with the Woods

BY ELMER DUBB.

"ELMER, you can go into your Babe in the Woods number today," Harry Cooper said yesterday when I turned up at Glen Oak for my lesson. "I mean by woods the brassie and the spoon, and tomorrow we'll take a workout with that driver you've been so hot to use."

It was the first time during the course that I had taken a wooden club in hand, and when I stepped out on the practice tee for my first effort with one, I realized why Harry had started my lessons on the putting green rather than on the tee. Due to the knowledge gained during putting, chipping, pitching, and approaching I had more confidence when I first addressed the ball.

By this time Harry had hammered home such vital points as gripping the club firmly with the left hand, using the right as a guide; taking a stance that would insure comfort; distributing the weight evenly and shifting it naturally, and, above all, keeping my head anchored on the ball until that split second after the club has struck it.

It's the Rhythm and Not Muscle That Makes the Swing.

This inspired in me an assurance which enabled me to make my first brassie shot a pretty good one. The old urge to sock it a million miles proved disastrous on the next one, and I not only failed to get the ball anywhere, but dug up a cubic foot of Glen Oak's real estate.

"Get over trying to be one of those big, strong people, Elmer," Harry advised. "You don't have to go on the muscle this early. Just get the idea of the swing first, and the direction and hitting power can be worked in naturally later on."

I didn't try to murder the ball on the next few swings and not only profited in distance and direction, but the swing felt much smoother and I wasn't all knotted up around the shoulders at its completion.

My sister, Ella, came out again yesterday and by the time she had watched Harry demonstrate a few swings, she had decided that maybe after all he knew a little more about the game than she did. We were working with spoon shots when Harry found her committing another common error which he said wouldn't help her game especially. That happened when she didn't allow her arms to reach their full length in addressing the ball, and her stance consequently was too tense.

Ella Learns to Relax and Swing with Ease.

"Just take an easy stance, relaxing your body, and keep your hands down well, letting your arms drop almost as far as they will reach," Harry told her.

We spent the remainder of the lesson between the brassie and the spoon. Each has a slight loft on the clubface, but is not as pronounced as in the longer irons, and Harry told us we were at the point where the club was hitting the ball almost right between the eyes. There is still a downward cut at the ball as in the swing with the irons, but it has more of a tendency toward the full sweep that Harry hopes we'll get with the driver tomorrow.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—There is a unique organization which meets regularly for luncheon every Thursday at the Bismarck hotel in Chicago. It is called the Chicago Veterans Druggists' association, founded in 1898 by the late "Doc" Jamieson, known both in political and drug circles. Originally membership was limited to those who had been in the drug business prior to the Chicago fire in 1871.

As years went on qualification for membership was changed. Now the requirement is 25 years in trade, but as the active membership is only 30, any one of only 25 years' standing is a "baby." Others wishing to join become associate or honorary members until there is a vacancy. The Wake attended a luncheon recently as a guest. What surprised us was that the average attendance of active members was about 25 of the 30 roster.

At these meetings every one is addressed by his first name, often with the prefix Fratre, which is the keynote of the organization. Meetings are informal, and invariably revert back to times which most of us would not remember — before chain stores and "cutters." Another custom is the pinning with appropriate speeches and ceremony of a red carnation on the lapel of each member who has had a birthday in the preceding week.

Wilhelm Bodemann, recording secretary, was burned out in the fire of 1871. He had several loop locations before removing to Hyde Park. He retired about ten years ago, but a nephew conducts his former store in Hyde Park. This 86 year old member is active in all discussions. Another old-timer is the corresponding secretary, Eugene Von Herrmann, who still conducts a prescription pharmacy in a loop building where many doctors have offices. Leo Mrazk is president.

The Wake's presence at the luncheon is explained by the fact that many years ago we acted as Chicago correspondent for Merck's Report and the Pharmaceutical Era.

TRADES OFF HIS CHEST, FONSECA TO PLAY TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., April 29.—Manager Lew Fonseca will start himself in right field for the White Sox tomorrow, and plans to continue regularly.

"I've got a lot of trade details off my chest now," Fonseca said. "I'm going to get in there and give some of my new hitters a challenge."

Fonseca played part of the season opener and has not appeared since. He has explained that he wanted to devote all of his time to studying various aspirants before stepping into the lineup.

Golf Officials Leave to Pick Tourney Site

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

John McKinlay Jr. and Harry E. Radix, president and vice president of the Chicago District Golf association, respectively, and Harold Burnham and Walter Leininger of the association's tournament committee will leave this morning for downstate to choose a course for the Illinois state amateur and professional championships which will be decided during the week beginning June 13.

The problem of the scene of the tournament has narrowed down to two courses, those of the Illini Country club at Springfield and the Country club of Decatur, both of which will be inspected by the McKinlay quartet. The first Illinois state meet sponsored by the C. D. G. A. was held last year at Quincy. Warren Dawson of Green Valley won the amateur title, while Abe Espinosa of Medinah was the professional victor.

Two local clubs will start their tournament season today—Butterfield holding its annual spring stag, while Wilmette has more than 150 reservations for its opening day ceremonies. Several other clubs have made known the dates of their invitational tournaments. The Middlebrook Golf club will inaugurate its Gang's day Wednesday, and will continue each Wednesday thereafter throughout the season. Members are asked to bring guests.

Among the invitational tournaments already announced are the following: The C. D. G. A.'s first handicap event, May 18, at Calumet; Edgewood Valley-Hoo, June 15; Bob o' Link Hullabaloo, June 21-22; Illinois Stampede, July 15-16; Midlothian Pater-Filius [at North Shore], July 21; Knollwood Invitational and St. Charles Fox Chase, both on Aug. 3; Westmoreland Tam O' Shanter, Aug. 9; Ruth Lake Invitational, Aug. 11; North Shore Silver Tassel and Bunker Hill Frolic, both on Aug. 17; and Casa Del Mar Stag, Sept. 10.

Two important tournaments on which the dates previously had not been announced are the national intercollegiate meet at Hot Springs, Va., June 27-July 2, and the Lannin Memorial at New York, July 2, 3, and 4.

At least one local golfer has his game in shape for the coming season. He's T. D. Harvey of Evanston, who went over to the Vernon Country club the other day and shot himself a 71, one under par, the season's best score at Vernon. He collected birdies on the third and fourth holes, bagged an eagle on the 13th, and followed it up with birdies on the 15th, 16th, and 17th. Vernon's par and Harvey's card follow:

Par—Out	445	534	443—36
Harvey—Out	644	445	444—39
Par—In	443	534	454—36—72
Harvey—In	443	333	345—32—71

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY BOB FOTHERGILL.
[As Told to Edward Burns.]

Cleveland, O., April 29.—When I was 16 years old I weighed only 125 pounds, and while I was making some money in semi-pro games at that time, it did not seem to me that I was getting a balanced diet.

BOB FOTHERGILL.

I had heard that baseball managers and trainers in the big leagues were particularly eager to see that their players were well fed, and this understanding caused me to decide then and there that I would be a major league player.

In 1920 I had my first regular baseball engagement. I was with the Massillon, O., Agathons, in the Steel league, before being sent to the Bloomington club in the Three Eye league the same year. Although I still was light, I batted .322 for Bloomington, and the next year went up to Rochester, where I batted .338, though I still weighed only 160. In 1922 I played 42 games with Detroit and weighed only 171, but before I was sent back to Rochester to finish the season, I batted .322.

In 1923 I began my unbroken stay in the majors, and I wish to point out that the year I reached my maximum weight, due to the scientific feeding of which I had dreamed when I entered baseball as a career. I was barely nosed out for the American league batting championship.

In 1926, when I batted .367, I weighed 228. The year before I batted .353, though I hadn't got my full growth by three pounds, and I was two pounds underweight when I batted .359 in 1927. In my last full year in Detroit—1929—the hotels were serving much more nourishing food than they did in 1928, when I hit only .317 and as a consequence, I batted .350.

To boys who need building up through good food, I advise taking up a major league ball career.

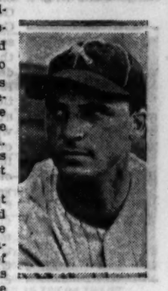
WEAVER WEAVES MAGIC; A'S LOSE TO SENATORS, 2-1

Rookie Pitcher Turns In Fourth Triumph.

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—Monte Weaver, Washington's young right handed pitching discovery, limited the Athletics to five hits today as the Senators defeated the league champions for the fifth time, 2 to 1. It was Weaver's fourth straight triumph.



MONTE WEAVER.

Weaver has not been defeated since he joined the Senators last season and three of his 1932 victories have been at the expense of the Macks. The Athletics, who have lost eight of their last nine starts, gave George Earnshaw perfect support and George pitched a creditable game, but the Senators' three double plays kept the losers helpless.

URGES MISSOURI RUM PLAN AFTER CALL ON HOOVER

Governor Plans to Urge Plank on G. O. P.

Washington, D. C., April 29.—[Special.]—Following a White House call, Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri today stated that the Missouri delegation to the Republican national convention at Chicago will work for adoption of a plank providing for the calling of a national convention to discuss repeal of the eighteenth amendment. He said that he believed the Missouri plan of meeting the wet and dry issue by calling a convention in accordance with the constitution marked the sanest approach to the prohibition question yet devised.

GOV. H. S. CAULFIELD. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Mr. Caulfield was one of several governors who took advantage of their presence in Washington for the White House dinner last night to call on President Hoover today. The group included Louis L. Emmerson, governor of Illinois, who discussed the Illinois political situation with the President; James Rolph Jr. of California; Fred B. Balzar, governor of Nevada, and George F. Shafer of North Dakota.

Will Try for Speed Record.

Gov. Rolph announced, following his talk with the President, that he will attempt a dawn to dusk flight from Washington to the coast tomorrow if the weather is favorable.

Gov. Balzar will fly with him and the first step is to be Cincinnati. Col. Roscoe Turner, world flyer, will pilot the plane.

While Gov. Caulfield was reticent regarding the subject of his conversation with the President, he did not hesitate to say that he felt that the people should have a right to a referendum on the prohibition question. He said that he felt the constitution was so rigid and that the convention idea represented the most practical way of dealing with the question of repealing the 18th amendment. Personally, Gov. Caulfield said he believed that prohibition regulation should be left to the states.

The Missouri Proposal.

"We recognize that one of the fundamental principles of constitutional government is that right of the people in a constitutional manner to change or alter that constitution or any laws made in pursuance thereof at any time.

"The Republican party having always believed in this principle and recognizing that wide differences of opinion exist among our people with reference to the 18th amendment and the enabling acts enacted thereunder we favor a national convention to be called as speedily as possible, in accordance with the federal constitution to deal with the whole subject, and we recommend that congress shall specifically in its call for such convention limit the powers of such convention to the subject above named."

Funeral Services Monday for Veteran Lake Captain

Funeral services for John Thorpe, 60 years old, veteran captain of the great lakes, will be held Monday in Milwaukee. He died suddenly Thursday night while visiting his son, Philip, at 5131 North Mansfield avenue. Mr. Thorpe, who lived at 2208 North 63d street, Wauwatosa, a Milwaukee suburb, was a master on the great lakes from 1903 until his retirement last year.

G. A. E. KOHLER, 68, ENGINEER AND INVENTOR, DEAD

G. A. Edward Kohler, 68 years old, engineer and manufacturer, died yesterday in his apartment at the Belden-Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West, after an illness of several months. Funeral services will be held Monday in the chapel of the Rosehill cemetery.

Mr. Kohler organized the firm of Kohler Brothers, electrical engineers, at 410 North Michigan avenue in 1891. He invented and manufactured devices for operating newspaper presses. He was a member of the Union League, Lake Shore Athletic, and Chicago Riding clubs. He was active in the work of the Chicago Crime commission and was a member of the Art institute, Field Museum of Natural History, and the Chicago Historical society.

Mr. Kohler was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1886 and married Mary Ward Everett in October, 1899. He is survived by the widow and two sons, Franklin W. and John Bowen Kohler, both of Chicago.

EX-CHICAGO WRITER KILLED IN HONOLULU; RUN OVER BY AUTO

HONOLULU, April 29.—(AP)—Charles Eugene Banks, 80, author and editor and old friend of Clarence Darrow, defense attorney in the Joseph Kahahawai lynching trial, met accidental death last night when run over by an automobile while lying asleep in a driveway near his home here. The death was a shock to Darrow, who had planned to pose with Banks for photographs today.

Banks was a charter member of the old Chicago Press club and had been employed go Press club and had been employed as dramatic critic here. He was born in Clinton county, Iowa, April 3, 1852. For two years, beginning in 1885, he was editor and proprietor of the American Commercial Traveler, Chicago, and later the Weekly Outlook, a literary publication at Davenport, Ia.

After serving for three years as literary editor of the Chicago Sunday American and Examiner he moved to Washington in 1907, becoming editor and publisher in Seattle of the Peace Pipe, a monthly magazine. Later he became dramatic editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. Moving to Hawaii in 1918 he assumed editorship of the Hilo Tribune-Herald and later came to Honolulu.

MESSENGER BOY USES PLANE FOR THIS MESSAGE

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—Western Union messengers have a good many odd tasks to do, but today was probably the first time one of them had to make an airplane trip to deliver a message.

Seventeen year old Charles Viterito of Newark flew down to Washington this morning with a message believed to be a bid on fumigation equipment for a field station of the department of agriculture, and flew back to Newark this afternoon.

Chicago Countess, Leader of Danish Socialists, Buried

COPENHAGEN, April 29.—Mme. Sylvia Mithjah Pio, Chicago born girl who became the leader of the Danish Socialist party which was founded by her father, was buried here today. Premier Stauning spoke at the funeral. Her father, Louis Pio, was banished from Denmark and found refuge in the United States. Mme. Pio quit the civil service department in the Chicago city hall to marry Count Eggert Knuth of Knuthenborg in 1903.

GOLCONDA FARMER DIES.

Golconda, Ill., April 29.—[Special.]—Burton Robbs, 80, prominent farmer of Eddyville community, died yesterday morning of paralysis. His widow and two sons survive.

EDMUND BAYLIES, GOTHAM SOCIETY LEADER, IS DEAD

New York, April 29.—[Special.]—Edmund Lincoln Baylies, a lawyer and one of the most prominent leaders of New York society in the last thirty years, died today at his home on East 62d street. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Baylies was conceded to have filled the shoes of Ward McAllister, who headed the list of the "400" at the end of the last century. His widow, the former Louisa Van Rensselaer, is a direct descendant of the original patroon of Rensselaerwyck, the vast territory comprising nearly all of the present counties of Albany and Rensselaer.

Mr. and Mrs. Baylies returned from Cannes on the French Riviera, where they had spent the winter, only two weeks ago. Mr. Baylies had been ailing since that time.

At the time of his death Mr. Baylies maintained a law office on Pine street in the financial district.

His great-great-grandfather, Benjamin Lincoln, received the sword of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown and later became secretary of war of the United States. In 1902 Mr. Baylies went to London as secretary of the special embassy which represented the United States at the coronation of King Edward VII.

MARY O'SHERIDAN, NATURALIST AND AUTHOR, IS DEAD

Miss Mary Grant O'Sheridan, 75 years old, writer and naturalist, died Thursday in an Elgin hospital, it was learned yesterday. She claimed kinship to Richard Brinsley Sheridan, author, and to Gen. Philip Sheridan, civil war hero.

Miss O'Sheridan was born near Madison, Wis., and in her childhood lived among the Indians. From those Indians she acquired a rich fund of legends and folk lore. Her outdoor life also gave her an extensive education on local flora and fauna. In maturity she became a student of the Gaelic peoples and language. Her Gaelic verses, "Lays and Ranns," won the commendation of the University of Edinburgh.

For many years Miss O'Sheridan served as a trustee of the University of Wisconsin. In 1904 she achieved distinction for her volumes for children, one of which, "Out in the Open," was set to music. The other volume was "Morchella, the Princess of the Mushroom Pavilion."

WOMAN TRIES TO END LIFE.

Mrs. Edith House, 29 years old, was revived after she tried to commit suicide yesterday by inhaling gas in her apartment in the Coronada hotel, 5213 Cornell avenue. Police believed her despondent over the illness of her husband in St. Paul.

COUNTESS WHO WON FAME AS EDUCATOR DIES

Countess Cipriani was born in Italy of an ancient Florentine family. Her father, Count Giuseppe Cipriani, and his brother, Leonetto, were important figures in the unification of Italy. Countess Cipriani came to America years ago to teach. She received her A. B. degree at the University of Chicago.

She held the chair of romance languages at Milwaukee Downer college, Carroll college, and Mount Morris college. The sole survivor is a sister, Countess Lisi Cipriani, prominent educator, author, and artist, who resides at 5461 Blackstone avenue, Chicago.

MRS. IDA MORGAN, ENGLEWOOD CLUB PRESIDENT, DIES

Mrs. Ida W. Morgan, president of the Englewood Woman's club, died yesterday of a heart attack at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Otto E. Lucius, 6801 Paxton avenue. Mrs. Morgan, who was 80 years old, was one of the organizers of the Washington and Jane Smith Old People's home at 11335 South Western avenue and aided in the founding of the People's Liberal church, 6500 Stewart avenue.

MRS. IDA W. MORGAN.

She was also one of the organizers, 38 years ago, of the Klio association for the welfare of working women. A cafeteria was established at that time at Monroe street and Michigan avenue, where working women were sold food at cost and urged to rest during the noon hour.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the funeral chapel at Normal boulevard and 63d place. Interment will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

TEN THOUSAND ATTEND LAST RITES FOR CICERO OFFICIAL

Long Funeral Procession Ties Up Traffic.

All Cicero was in mourning yesterday when funeral services for Frank Cuchna, newly elected town collector, were held. Mr. Cuchna was killed on the morning of April 25 when his automobile was struck by an elevated train at the Sixtieth court crossing in Cicero. The trains run on the surface at that point.

The Cicero village hall was closed. Most of the police and fire departments attended the funeral. Ten thousand persons were in and around St. Mary of the Mount church in Cicero during the services. Automobiles were jammed in the streets for more than seven and eight blocks around the church, according to the police.

Procession Is Three Miles Long.

After the services the funeral procession was formed. Four county motorcycle and four Cicero motorcycle policemen led the way. Then followed a parade of Cicero police and firemen. After them came hundreds of motor cars forming a cavalcade nearly three miles long.

The procession wound through Cicero, in 61st avenue to 22d street, east in 22d street to Austin boulevard, north in Austin boulevard to Wabansia avenue and west to Harlem avenue. There the procession turned north to St. Adalbert's cemetery on Milwaukee avenue in Niles.

Traffic Is Tied Up.

Traffic on all streets and boulevards crossing the route taken by the procession was stopped while the lengthy procession went by. Complaints were made by motorists forced to wait for a long period because the procession was not interrupted to let them through. The motorists declared that a hundred yards in some instances separated the automobiles in the procession.

Alexander Rankin, 84, Oak Park Builder, Dies

Alexander Rankin, 84 years old, a building contractor, died suddenly yesterday at his residence at 1136 Pleasant street, Oak Park. He was born in Prescott, Ont., Canada, and came to Chicago in 1893. For the last eighteen years he had lived in Oak Park. He was a Mason, a member of Circle lodge of Oak Park. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Monday in the chapel at 318 North Central avenue, Austin. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery. Surviving Mr. Rankin are two sons and two daughters.

STANDARD OIL OF CALIFORNIA JOINS TAX WAR

Urges Stockholders to Ask Reforms.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Another big corporation, the Standard Oil Company of California, has joined the campaign launched by American business and industry against excessive governmental expenditures and mounting taxation. President K. R. Kingsbury has addressed a letter to the stockholders urging them to exert political pressure to bring about reforms.

"The fiscal situation at Washington is such that it requires the immediate attention of every American taxpayer," he says. "We refer to the constantly increasing expenditures of the federal government. In the last five years the government's expenditures have increased from $1,964,000,000 to $3,195,100,000, or 63 per cent, according to the December estimate of the secretary of the treasury. The year 1927 was one of great industrial activity, with commodity prices and services considerably above those of today and the government's revenues were far greater.

New Tax Threat.

"Congress is now at work on a plan which threatens to provide huge additional taxes to be paid from the shrunken incomes of industries and individuals already handicapped. The higher the taxes upon industry the higher the cost of producing commodities. Higher prices to the public decrease sales, hamper industry, add to unemployment. The higher the taxes upon individuals the less will be their buying power.

"The country needs more buying power and lower costs to manufacturers. The nation needs a balanced budget and the budget can best be balanced by lowering governmental expenditures rather than by adding to the tax bill.

"This is a critical moment—one of the most critical in the history of our country. Members of congress should be made aware that there is a strong public opinion which demands lower cost of government. Therefore, we suggest that you can do a service for yourself and for the country by taking every possible step to impress upon your representatives in congress the necessity for decreased government expenditures. Your newspapers, your trade association, your chambers of commerce or any other groups with which you may have affiliation should be asked to do all within their power to take similar action."

Urges Large Cut.

A cut of 1¼ billion dollars in federal government costs is urged by W. S. Lee, president of the American Engineering council, in a letter sent to every member of congress and to his associates in numerous large public utility and industrial enterprises. Mr. Lee asserts that if this reduction is made at once, prosperity will begin to return. A similar letter, proposing a slash of a billion dollars has been addressed to members of congress and business friends by G. G. Allen, president of the Duke Power company.

"If it cost the taxpayers of the United States in 1927 about 1,231 million dollars less to operate this government (not including interest on our debts) than it does today, is it not time that we should all come to some reasonable, sensible decision?" Mr. Allen asks. "Merely by going back to the cost of government in that year the budget can be balanced approximately without any new or increased taxation whatever."

Time to Stop Taxing.

"It is time to stop hunting additional things to tax and cut a billion and a quarter out of expenses, thereby balancing the budget," Mr. Lee says. "If this were done there is no doubt that all scared [not hoarded] dollars would come into use and we would go ahead on the road to prosperity. We need action on the part of congress now which will bring about this condition rather than keep us in the frightened and chaotic state which exists today.

"It is time for the business interest of this country to back up a movement for a real cut in the cost of government—something entirely beyond the talk of 200 million dollars emanating from quarters in Washington. I mean a reduction tantamount to that the business interests are making in their own affairs. It is now time for employers of labor to speak out their minds in a way that congress will hear, because it is the jobs of the rank and file of this country that are being jeopardized by this outrageous mounting of government costs."

Chicagoan Cites Some "Nasty Letters."

Pledges of individual support for the Chicago Association of Commerce in its national campaign to reduce taxes through curtailment of expenditures continue to pour into the headquarters of the association. Letters received by George W. Rossetter, president of the association, indicate that members of congress are being inundated with demands from their constituents that taxes be cut at once and that the cost of government be reduced.

For instance, Jesse F. Matteson, head of an advertising agency, wrote Mr. Rossetter to say he is sending letters to all members of the house of representatives to whom he has not already written urging that they reduce expenditures and that they work for a simple system of taxation in the balancing of the budget. Mr. Matteson says he has received some "nasty letters back" and continues:

"Some of those babies don't seem to know their place. The quicker we put them in their place the more likelihood there will be of sensible legislation. During the last years these men have got the idea they are the bosses. We must show them that they are merely our employés and that they must do what we want them to do."

Another Appeal for Economy.

Costa A. Pandaleon, president of Pandaleon Brothers, importers and exporters, writes that, in accordance with Mr. Rossetter's recent suggestion that association members write direct to congress he has written a number of senators and representatives as follows:

"We are proud of our Association of Commerce and of its civic accomplishments. We want to voice here our whole hearted support to the task that they have assumed of forcing drastic cuts in all governmental expenditures. As a business firm we have had to do the same thing and we do not see why the government, which itself is a big business, should not follow the same course rather than to try to impose upon the people, already taxed to capacity, added burdens.

"We therefore most respectfully request that you use your influence in bringing about reduction on governmental expenditures before any additional taxes are imposed. We all realize that the budget must be balanced before any improvement in general business can begin to materialize."

Offers Own Experience.

D. F. Peck, president of the Hanchett Paper company, says he is writing to members of congress to tell them of his experience in balancing the budget of his company and the sacrifices made to do this. He then told the congressmen:

"I see only one way out—the discharge of several hundred thousand employés and the reduction of the compensation of the remaining by 25 per cent and the slashing of all appropriations. Even then you would only be doing what business has done and is doing.

"I believe you will agree with me that there must be a radical change, and immediately. I have talked with many and have come to the conclusion that the public is developing an ugly mood and a change will sweep this country more rapidly than a hurricane.

"A 10 per cent cut in wages and appropriations will not be sufficient. A deep cut must be made and it must be of a permanent nature."

California Packing Loses $4,877,595 Net for Year

California Packing corporation reported consolidated net loss for the year ended Feb. 29 of $4,877,595 after operating expenses, depreciation, proportion of Alaska Packers loss, and interest. This contrasts with net profit of $91,180 after all charges in the previous year, equal to 9 cents a share on 977,416 outstanding shares.

During the last fiscal year the company wrote off from surplus $4,000,000 obsolescence of capital assets, $273,661 for 6,000 shares of capital stock retired, and $977,416 for dividends paid. Thus surplus was reduced to $8,503,893 from $18,632,571 on Feb. 28, 1931.

New Refrigerator Is Made of Steel; Dealers to Meet

Samuel Molner, general manager of the Freeze King Refrigerator corporation, announces that the company is bringing out a new all steel model. Production has already started. Dealers from every part of the United States will attend a sales conference in the Stevens hotel May 23.

PHILADELPHIA MUST BORROW $15,000,000, CONTROLLER ASSERTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 29.—Philadelphia must borrow $15,000,000 within a short time to meet requirements of the next few months, according to Controller Hadley.

The borrowing may be a one year loan in the hope of getting more favorable credit conditions later in the year, the controller indicated. Near term requirements include $4,000,000 due to current fund from loan fund, advanced originally to take care of contractual obligations; $3,000,000 now owing to contractors on public works, and $8,000,000 needed to pay contractors for work which will be completed during the next six months.

The election court within the next few days will certify approval of $10,044,728 cancellation referendum at Tuesday's primary election, restoring the city's borrowing capacity to slightly over $15,000,000. The controller indicated that later in the year it will be necessary to float an additional loan of $15,000,000 to retire $15,000,000 land mandamuses now drawing 6 per cent interest.

May Delay Kentucky Issue.

New York, April 29.—(AP)—Municipal bonds houses, which have been asked to submit bids on a new issue of $13,500,000 bonds of the state of Kentucky, may recommend that the state withhold its proposed new offering for another month.

The proposed issue, it was said today, has already been approved by Kentucky's general assembly, but a question of legality has been raised. As a result, the state plans a test suit on which a decision is expected in three or f ur weeks. Bankers stated here that a better price could be obtained for the bonds if the legal question were cleared up before the offering.

Under Kentucky law the state can issue no bonds except to "repel invasion and suppress insurrection" unless special provision be made for refunding or paying other bonds previously issued. Bankers explained that this provision is in the state's constitution and steps are now being taken to determine if the proposed offering would be contrary to the constitutional provision.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC LOSS SHOWS DECLINE

New York, April 29.—(AP)—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company reports for the quarter ended March 31 a consolidated net loss of $1,320,148. This compares with a net loss of $2,885,945 for the first quarter of 1931.

Gross earnings for the period totaled $20,377,948, compared with $28,476,175 in 1931. Orders booked were $20,388,658, as against 30,100,410 in the 1931 period.

The company reports improvement in unfilled orders, which stood at $37,999,565 on March 31, as compared with $36,598,246 a year ago. Inventories were reduced to $37,511,827 on March 31 from $43,229,442 a year ago.

The statement declares that the company is "holding its own," pointing out that, while gross earnings have dropped about 28 per cent from those of the same three months in 1931, the net loss is 54 per cent less than for that period.

The company now has 54,158 registered stockholders, as compared with 49,332 a year ago.

A. & P. TEA CO. VOTES ITS USUAL EXTRA DIVIDEND

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company voted its usual extra dividend of 25c in addition to the regular quarterly of $1.50 on common. The regular quarterly of $1.75 on preferred was also declared.

The Southern Pipe Line declared a quarterly dividend of 35c. Formerly the stock was on a $2 annual basis.

The United States Playing Card company declared a quarterly dividend of 37½c. Three months ago 50c was paid.

Another cash disbursement of $1 a share has been declared by the Peerless Motor Car corporation, payable May 14 to stock of record May 9. This follows closely on the recent $3 per share cash dividend paid April 25.

British Match corporation declared a final dividend of 4 per cent less tax on the common stock, making a total payment for 1931 of 6 per cent, the same as was paid in 1930.

American Alcohol Earns $108,257 in First Quarter

American Commercial Alcohol corporation reported net profit for the March quarter of $108,257 after charges, depreciation and taxes, equal to 28 cents a share on 377,097 shares of $10 par outstanding at the close of the period, or 57 cents a share on the 188,548 shares, par $20, of new stock which will presently be outstanding when all the old stock has been exchanged.

In the first three months of 1931 net profit was $124,837, equal to 33 cents a share on the 377,544 outstanding shares.

UTILITY PLANS 30 MILLION ISSUE, 25 YEAR BONDS

Consolidated Gas Asks Official O. K.

New York, April 29.—(AP)—The most important piece of public utility financing for some time was scheduled for early announcement with the application of the Consolidated Gas company of New York to the public service commission today for authority to issue 30 million dollars of 5 per cent 25 year debentures. Proceeds of this issue are to be applied toward the liquidation of 22 million dollars notes payable, due to the National City bank, and an advance of $6,200,000 from a subsidiary.

The Westchester Lighting company, a subsidiary, has asked the authority of the commission to issue 150,000 shares of its common stock at $80 a share to realize 12 million dollars to pay for accumulated indebtedness. The stock will be acquired by Consolidated Gas.

New Offerings Decline.

New bond offerings in this district for the week totaled $6,483,000, compared with $60,984,000 in the preceding week and $18,371,500 in the corresponding week in 1931.

The bond market sank to new low levels for the year today. Only the United States government list maintained a comparatively steady tone in the face of discouraged liquidation of the corporate groups.

While the majority of United States treasuries and Liberties ended with fractional declines, Liberty 4th 4¼s (registered) reached a new high for the year and minor gains were held by Liberty 3½s and the regular 4th 4¼s.

Railway Bonds Weak.

Although a few of the low priced railroad bonds retained modest gains at the finish, the majority recorded losses. Frisco 4½s and 4s kept only ½ point of their early advances and the company's 5s sagged 5¼ points. Losses of 1 to 5 points were also registered by Allegheny corporation 5s, Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s, Chicago Great Western 4s, St. Paul general 4⅝s, Delaware and Hudson refunding 4s, Great Northern 5s, 7s, and 4¼s, Hudson and Manhattan 5s, Illinois Central 6½s, New York Central refunding 5s, most of the liens of Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, and Southern.

A few gains included Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, Chicago and Northwestern 4¾s, Rock Island refunding 4s, Denver and Rio Grande 5s, both Erie 5s, all the Missouri Pacifics, Nickel Plate 5½s and 6s, and Western Pacific 5s.

GERMANS TO IMPORT 100,000 TONS WHEAT UNDER REDUCED TAX

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, April 29.—One hundred thousand tons of wheat will be imported to Germany within the next two months as a result of a decree reducing until June 30 the import duty on wheat from 250 to 180 marks per ton and permitting mills to import within that period 15 per cent of the total amount of wheat they consumed between April 1 and June 30 in 1930. The amount to be imported would be larger if there were not over 70,000 tons of foreign wheat left over from last year's purchases by the government.

Fixes Sheet Steel Quota.

PARIS, April 29.—(AP)—A modification of the quota on sheet steel for automobile coaches for the second quarter of 1932 was published today in the official journal. The new regulation fixes the total that may be imported at 692.9 metric tons. Germany is allotted 388.9 metric tons, the United States 240, Great Britain 48, and all other countries 16.

Canada Places Embargo.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 29.—(AP)—An embargo on the importation of live stock, vegetables, and related products from California, Oregon, Nevada, and Arizona was announced today by the department of agriculture. The action was caused, it said, by reports of an outbreak of foot and mouth disease in California.

The order does not apply to fruits, but will go into effect at once against the shipment of vegetables, usually large at this time of year. A large part of these importations comes from California.

'FRISCO MUST CUT CAPITAL TO GET U. S. LOANS

I.C.C. Holds Railway Is Overcapitalized.

Washington, D. C., April 29.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission announced today that it had approved a loan of $1,800,000 by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the St. Louis-San Francisco railway. The loan is to be used to pay delinquent taxes and equipment trust obligations due during May.

The St. Louis-San Francisco early in February applied to the commission for a loan of $12,717,814 from the reconstruction corporation to cover its needs during 1932. Following its practice approving from time to time only loans to cover immediate needs, the commission on Feb. 24 approved a loan of $2,805,175. The loans run for three years. Security required by the commission for the first loan was $4,014,000 of the railroad company's bonds and for the second $3,679,000 of bonds.

Calls Road Overcapitalized.

In granting the St. Louis-San Francisco loan the commission said the company was "overcapitalized" and that the commission does "not believe that this carrier can operate successfully in the future without a reduction of its fixed charges."

The commission, in valuing the common carrier property of the road, fixed its worth at $288,383,902 as of Jan. 31, 1932. There are some properties not included which the commission held were not being used for common carrier purposes. The book value placed on the property by its officers is $421,304,029, with other investments aggregating $11,957,537. Against this as liabilities were $114,701,526 of capital stock, and $292,806,767 of unmatured funded debt, leaving a surplus of $13,795,736 in capitalizable assets over capital liabilities. Curent liabilities, exclusive of cash and material and supplies, were fixed at $13,800,000.

The report pointed out that by comparison with the commission valuation the road's capital liabilities were $119,124,391 in excess of assets.

"However," the report added, "we do not suggest that the sum of $288,383,902 necessarily represents the present value of the property or measures the amount of capitalizable assets."

Demands Capital Reduction.

"In all of these cases," it continues, "our conclusions were influenced by the fact that the applicant is overcapitalized. The same fact was in mind when we authorized the issue and pledge of certain securities upon the expressed condition that upon their final release from pledge and repledge under the authority of our orders and such subsequent orders as we might enter these securities should forthwith be canceled and destroyed.

"In addition to the condition of overcapitalization, the proportion of bonds to capital stock is excessive. We do not believe that this carrier can operate successfully in the future without a reduction of its fixed charges. Therefore, in connection with the approval of a further loan herein, we shall impose the condition that the applicant agree to submit for our approval prior to July 1, 1932, a plan which will result in such a reduction."

Loans for Other Roads.

The commission authorized the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway to borrow $595,500. This is the third loan to the Chicago and Eastern Illinois authorized by the commission under the Reconstruction Finance act. The road applied for a total of $7,196,436, and on Feb. 27 was authorized to borrow $3,629,500 and on March 15, $82,080. The money is to be used to pay taxes in Illinois and Indiana.

Money with which to meet May 1 interest payments on the general mortgage 5 per cent bonds of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois has been placed in hands of road's trustees, according to officials of the road. Semi-annual service on the 5s requires about $814,500.

Receivers for the Salt Lake and Utah railroad were authorized by the commission to borrow $200,000 for two years to pay current bills, meet maturing receivers' certificates and to supply current working capital. The security is to be receivers' certificates. The commission also approved a loan of $711,750 to the Central of Georgia.

Cotton Belt Can Refinance.

The commission issued a final order making it possible for the St. Louis Southwestern Railway company to complete financing of its loans due on June 1. The order closely followed an application by the Southern Pacific for permission to carry out a commission requirement that it unqualifiedly indorse a loan of 18 million dollars to the St. Louis Southwestern.

The company was authorized by the order to issue not to exceed $4,500,000 of promissory notes in payment of half of a series of bank loans due June 1. The issuance of promissory notes and pledging of security for other loans also was authorized.

Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. Declares Two Dividends

Wheeling, W. Va., April 29.—(AP)—The Hazel-Atlas Glass company earned $327,891 in the first quarter of 1932, the quarterly report, issued today, shows. The regular dividend of 75 cents per share and an extra dividend of 25 cents, payable to stock of record April 1, were declared.

Transactions on Cocoa Market Reach New High

New York, April 29.—(AP)—A new record for volume of trading on the New York Cocoa exchange was established today when contracts representing 9,340 tons changed hands. The previous record turnover for a single day was made on Feb. 21, 1929, at 8,401 tons. Prices closed a shade lower.

Life Policies Bulwark for Many Millions

BY SCRUTATOR.

The record made by life insurance companies during the last two or three years has stimulated an ever increasing interest in life insurance from the investment standpoint.

Life insurance clearly has demonstrated that it is the last line of defense. No company has repudiated its obligations or refused to pay just claims.

More than half the population of the United States carries life insurance in the more than 300 companies in this country. Some 68 million people hold policies calling for the ultimate payment of more than 105 billion dollars.

In view of the tremendous investment in life insurance it is fair to ask whether the policy holder gets value received for the money paid in.

Basis of Company Profit.

The profits made by a life insurance company depend pricipally upon three things: The premium rate charged the policy holder, mortality, and the return realized on invested capital.

Premium rates are based on mortality tables which tell how many, of a given number, die at each age of life, and how many survive. There have been mortality tables ever since the days of Ulpianus, a Roman jurist of the fourth century, who figured 30 years' expectation of life for an infant. Fifteen centuries later infants came to have 46 years' expectation of life.

The American Experience table containing material compiled prior to the civil war today is generally used as the basis for rate making, although in some states the American Men table, representing the experience of 59 companies from 1843 to 1914, is employed.

People who buy insurance today, therefore, are being charged rates based on the death rate that existed before the invention of insulin and before the many other medical and surgical advances of the last generation.

Rate Making More Modern.

Methods of rate making, however, are not as antiquated as the use of a mortality table dated 1862 would indicate. Dr. H. W. Dingman, vice president and medical director of the Continental Assurance company, who wrote a book on the subject some years ago, tells me that the greatest value of the American experience table is its safety. It overstates present mortality, hence any premiums based on the expectation of more deaths than actually occur are bound to give a favorable mortality experience.

Dr. Dingman says the discrepancy is not as great as it may seem because the old table is merely used as a starting point and the rate quoted the policy holder discounts the increase in the span of life that has resulted from scientific discoveries.

Saving on mortality, he adds, is one of three safety margins that life insurance companies depend on to pile up a little fat against depressions and epidemics. The other two are: [1] additional return on investments over and above the basic rate of 3, 3½, or 4 per cent, and [2] savings accumulated as a result of keeping overhead and running expenses below the amount originally estimated.

Making of New Table.

If a new mortality table were to be compiled now it would differ greatly from the old 1862 table for the early age groups, but for groups above the age of 45 there would be little difference.

The average man over 45 today can reasonably expect to live not much longer than the average man over 45 age twenty years ago, largely because science now saves many physical weaklings from the diseases that formerly killed at early ages and has held them over as targets for heart trouble, suicide, accidents, and the degenerative diseases.

But even so the American Experience table is no longer an accurate measure of the mortality of man. Its use is not prima facie evidence that insurance companies charge higher rates than actual mortality justifies, but it may be an indication that an opportunity to do so exists. Insurance men say that the safety margin provided by the spread between actual mortality and the rate of mortality on which the premium is based is only enough to set up a cushion against emergencies.

HOOVER CLEANER SALES ADVANCE OVER MARCH, 1931

March sales of Hoover Electric cleaners were nine per cent ahead of March, 1931, in units sold, H. W. Hoover, president of the Hoover company, said. The gain was made in spite of the fact that March of last year was in sales one of the two best months of 1931. Mr. Hoover attributed the increase to aggressive merchandising and advertising.

GOLD TRANSACTIONS RESULT IN U. S. GAIN; EXCHANGES ERRATIC

New York, April 29.—(AP)—Today's gold transactions consisted of an import of $1,000,000 from Canada, exports of $600,900 to Holland and $100,700 to Italy. Gold to the amount of $500,000 was received at El Paso from Mexico. The country's monetary stock rose $798,400 as a result of these movements.

Foreign currencies closed irregularly higher in the New York market today, although changes were narrow. Sterling cables, off about a cent at the lowest, reduced their loss to ⅛ of a cent, the final quotation being $3.65¾. French francs regained what they had yielded yesterday and there were nominal advances for Belgian, Swiss and Norwegian moneys. Italian lira also rallied. Small declines in Scandinavians were retrieved when sterling steadied.

Finland Delays Return to Gold.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 29.—(AP)—The government today announced that Finland would remain off the gold standard at least until the end of the present fiscal year.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 29.—Declines of 1 to 2 or more points in such trading favorites as American Can, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont, New York Central and General Electric submerged the stock list to still another low level today.

Scattering losses among less active issues ran as high as 5, 6, or 7 points.

There was nothing in the industrial news of an inspirational character and the prospects of dividend news to come from a number of approaching board meetings of importance made their weight felt to some extent. The turnover was not greatly in excess of a million shares.

Rail Shares Suffer, Too.

Railroad shares found the way a little bumpier than usual, due to the unfavorable turn of events in the consolidation picture. Advices from Washington indicated that the four party eastern merger plan now stands little chance of early consummation.

In addition to the general grief in its corner, Atchison was under the onus of dispiriting talk regarding the outlook for its dividend at the next meeting of the board. Action is not due until July, but figures on the road's earnings for the first quarter are none too promising. When it fixed the $1 rate this month as against the $1.50 payment in January, the board warned that a "continuance of dividends on the common stock must depend on an improvement in the corporation's earnings." The price of the road's common shares declined more than 3 points today, going to a new low of 39⅜.

Norfolk Off 7½ Points.

Norfolk and Western dropped 7½, Union Pacific 1⅝, New York Central 1, and New Haven 1¼ points on continuous stream of offerings.

General Motors was again pressed for sale and gave way to a new low. Dividend anxieties were against it, too. Other automobile shares were soft. Auburn firmed toward the end to replace an early loss with a small net gain.

Among issues to distinguish themselves by more or less precipitate breaks were National Lead, Loose Wiles, Liggett & Myers, and Houston Oil.

A. T. & T. Again Weak.

American Telephone was again a weak spot in the utilities. It dropped to a new low of 96⅝ but recovered a part of its earlier loss before the close. Consolidated Gas and Western Union also had their troubles.

Oil shares were under moderate pressure with Houston Oil coming in for particular attention from the bear side. Amusement and copper shares were quiet with a tendency to lower territory.

United States Steel preferred broke more than 2 points to the lowest level since 1906. The common shares of the corporation also gave up about a point.

WAVE OF SELLING BREAKS PRICES OF GRAINS HERE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Tired longs went out of their holdings of grain yesterday in volume that sent the markets crashing to new low levels for the season on corn, oats, and rye, while wheat dropped to the lowest figures since late in March.

An avalanche of selling swept wheat prices off 1@1¼c early, with the June touching 55¾c, or 8¼c under the early high.

May corn sold off 1c to 29¼c, coming within ¼c of the inside figure for the 1898-'99 crop year, while May oats at 20⅞c was off ¾c from Thursday's finish, and at a price which has not been witnessed since October, 1897.

Selling was general in the early trading, with numerous stop loss orders uncovered. Individual operations counted for little, with the markets showing little disposition to rally until near the close. Then reports of a liberal export business in wheat commenced to attract attention and brought in sufficient local buying to carry the latter grain back to around the finish of the previous day. Other grains rallied in sympathy.

Feel Liquidation Is Over.

May corn sold at 22⅝c in April, 1897, and the September delivery touched 19½c in September, 1896. May oats sold as low as 15⅝c in April, 1897, and the September was down to 14½c in 1896. Both wheat and rye now are well above the lowest figures made in 1931, and have not reached the lowest prices of 1894-'97.

The trade regards it as a coincidence that the sensationally low prices for corn and oats should come at a time when the crops of both grains the previous harvest were materially below normal, and claim that this condition is a reflection of the destruction of confidence by general economic conditions. The same condition prevailed in 1896-'97 when prices were even lower than at present.

A much more friendly feeling toward the buying side prevailed in wheat toward the last. Liquidation was regarded as having practically run its course, and with Europe showing more interest in cash grain many operators turned to the bull side and bought freely. The finish was unchanged to ⅛c lower, with May wheat at 53⅝@54c; old July, 56¾c; old September, 59⅛@59¼c, and December, 62⅝@62½c.

Foreign Markets Easier.

Export sales of 750,000 to 1,000,000 bu North American wheat were estimated to have been made on the break, and some reports indicated a larger business. One cargo of hard winter and possibly two more were said to have been taken by Europe, in addition to considerable business in Manitobas. Liverpool reported liquidation in evidence due to the further rains in North America and on talk of large deliveries on May contracts and closed 1@1⅛c lower, with May at 54⅝c. The latter was 1½c over Chicago at the time, compared with a shipping difference of around 18c. Winnipeg was unchanged to ⅛c lower, with May at 58¾c in Canadian funds.

Over 1,000,000 bu cash corn has been bought by Chicago handlers during the last week, representing liquidation on the part of the producers. However, the cash grain has shown more strength than futures, the former gaining ¼@⅜c on the May yesterday. Selling of futures by scattered longs has been persistent and net losses at the last were ⅜@⅝c, with May at 29⅜@29½c; July, 33@33⅛c; September, 35⅛@35⅝c, and December, 36@36⅛c. Shipping demand was only fair, with sales of 79,000 bu.

At one time yesterday May corn in Chicago was quoted at a fractional discount under the same delivery in Buenos Aires, and a few small lots of American grain were said to have been sold for export at the seaboard. The nearby delivery of corn here also went to a discount under May oats at Winnipeg, even after allowing for the difference in the exchange rate, the first time such a condition has ever been known, according to local observers.

The bull movement in rye which started some time ago collapsed yesterday, with the May delivery at Winnipeg breaking 3⅛c to a low of 37c, compared with 59c recently. This increased the pressure on the local market and the nearby future dropped 1⅝c to 38c, and there was only a moderate rally toward the last. Net losses were ⅞@1¼c, with May at 36½c; July, 39½c, and September, 41¾c. A little export business was put through in Canadian rye.

Heavy shipments of cash oats are expected from Chicago in the next few days as charters have been made for 600,000 bu to Lake Erie ports. Future broke sharply early on liquidation only to rally later and close unchanged to ⅜c lower, with May at 21¼c; July, 21⅞c, and September, 22⅝c.

NEW LOW ON LARD

Lard was liquidated by scattered holders in sympathy with the break in grains and the easiness in the hog market. May declined to within a fraction of the 4c level. Later a rally came, with the close unchanged to 2½c net lower. Bellies were off 10@12½c. Liverpool lard was 6@9d lower. Export clearances of lard were 1,532,991 lbs. Hog receipts were smaller than a week ago and larger than last year. Prices follow:

Aluminum Co. of America.

Please send me some information on Aluminum Company of America common stock.—F. A. H.

Aluminum Company of America, from a small beginning in 1888, has developed into one of the large industrial concerns of the country. Total assets at the close of 1931 were $247,342,000.

It has a virtual monopoly on bauxite [aluminum ore]. Most of the bauxite used comes from South America, although some comes from the company's Saline county, Ark., deposits.

In addition to producing the ore the company carries on an extensive fabricating business. About 38 per cent of the output is consumed by transportation industries, 16 per cent is used as electrical conductors and about 14 per cent in the manufacture of cooking utensils. Annual capacity of the company's plants is 225,000,000 pounds of aluminum.

The company's research department has been successful in discovering new uses for aluminum.

As a result of generally reduced manufacturing activities, tonnage sales in 1931 were about two-thirds those for 1930. Net profit for 1931 was $3,910,000, against $10,869,000 for 1930, $25,318,000 for 1929 and $20,673,000 for 1928. Only 44 per cent of preferred dividends were earned in 1931. This, of course, left nothing applicable to the common. Preferred dividends were earned 1.23 times in 1930 and 2.73 times in 1929. Per share earnings on the common in 1930 were $1.38 and in 1929, $10.38.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $83,722,000, and current liabilities were $27,733,000. Cash and marketable securities alone were more than $30,000,000. Working capital was $55,989,000, against $58,625,000 the year before.

Funded debt totals $37,672,000. There are outstanding 1,472,625 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred [par $100] and an equal number of no par common shares.

Although earnings applicable to the common stock were substantial in the three years to 1930 no common dividend has yet been paid. Dividends on the preferred were paid regularly to April 1, 1932. On that date a payment of 75 cents per share was made.

New Orleans Public Service.

I own New Orleans Public Service series B bonds, maturing 1955. Please advise me as to their present standing.—J. J. R.

New Orleans Public Service company fixed charges were earned 1.40 times in the twelve months to Jan. 31, 1932, against 1.33 times in the preceding twelve months.

The first 5s, due 1955, are a business man's investment.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

RESCINDING OF DIVIDEND CUTS PRICE OF STOCK

Exchange Officials Debate Insull Unit's Act.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Further weakness developed in the stock of the Central and Southwest Utilities company on the Chicago exchange yesterday as confusion arose over the validity of the action of the company's directors in rescinding the dividends they had previously declared.

Under the ruling of the exchange securities committee the senior stocks sold ex dividend in the market yesterday. Reflecting the uncertainty of the situation the $7 prior lien stock broke 6 points to 10 and the 7 per cent preferred stock broke 2 points to a new low quotation of 6¼. The $6 no par prior lien stock is not listed on the exchange.

Officials Refuse to Comment.

Officials of the company declined to comment on the exchange ruling which in effect declared improper the action rescinding the dividends. The exchange contends that unless the company can show that the original action declaring the dividend was improper the later canceling of the action was illegal.

The company issued a noncommittal statement reiterating its previous announcement that the action was "believed to be to the best interest of the stockholders."

The dividends authorized and now canceled would involve an outlay of approximately $500,000. The company's last report, as of Dec. 31, listed cash on hand of $620,500 and bank loans of $500,000. The company is a principal holding subsidiary of Middle West Utilities company, now in receivership. It is understood that the decision to rescind the dividends was reached at a meeting of the receivers for the parent corporation.

Brokers' Opinion Divided.

Opinions differed among brokers as the validity of the company action. It was pointed out in previous cases in which dividends have been rescinded the stock exchanges have usually accepted the action. Yesterday the New York Curb exchange, where the stock is sometimes traded, did not rule the stock ex dividend.

Contrary to the action of the Chicago exchange the curb accepted that the dividends "have or may be canceled." Some brokers pointed out that if the original declaration was legal the stockholders immediately became creditors of the company with creditors' rights.

Gross income of the Central Southwest amounting to $30,529,000 last year accounted for approximately 18 per cent of total revenues of the Middle West system.

Trading in other securities on the Chicago market yesterday was slightly more active with prices following the general downward trend. Commonwealth Edison lost fractionally on active trade. The prior preferred stock of North West Utilities, another Middle West subsidiary, tumbled 10 points to 10 on a 10 share transaction. Losses elsewhere ranged from a fraction to 2 points.

UNITED GAS IMP. PROFIT HOLDS UP AS GROSS DROPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 29.—The Consolidated income statement of the United Gas Improvement company for the year ended March 31, 1932, shows net income of $37,402,567, equal after preferred dividends to $1.44 a share earned on the common stock, against $38,642,410, or $1.54 a common share in the preceding year. For the March quarter, net income was $10,007,664, or 39 cents a common share, against $10,327,876, or 41 cents a share, in the 1931 period.

Despite a decrease of $1,056,788, or 3.3 per cent, in operating revenues of utility subsidiaries in the first quarter, operating expenses have been so reduced through continued economies that the earnings available for common stock of such subsidiaries have decreased only $119,996, or 1.5 per cent, President John E. Zimmerman reports. Electric operating revenue decreased $516,495, or 2.5 per cent, while gas operating revenue decreased $338,007, or 6 per cent, this being in a large measure caused by the exceptionally mild winter.

"One of the main factors which is retarding business recovery at this time is the uncertainty on the part of business men as to how the federal budget is going to be balanced," Mr. Zimmerman says.

"The way to balance the federal budget which will be most helpful to business is, so far as practicable, to reduce cost of government. We should insist that the budget be balanced to the greatest extent possible by drastic reductions in governmental expenditures."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 29.—The annual report of the General Gas and Electric corporation and subsidiaries for 1931 shows a net income of $6,666,948, after taxes, charges, depreciation and underlying dividends, as compared with $7,575,039 in 1930. Surplus on Dec. 31, 1931, was $4,209,500, after $162,840 amortization of debt discount and expense of subsidiary companies, $4,006,321 preferred dividends, $2,272,630 class A and B common dividends, and $63,477 miscellaneous deductions, comparing with surplus of $4,048,018 at the end of 1930.

A. M. Byers Co. Reports $229,138 Quarterly Loss

A. M. Byers company had first quarter net loss of $229,138, contrasting with net profit of $49,255 a year ago. For the six months ended March 31 the company had a net loss of $36,322, compared with net profit of $103,233, or $1.32 a share on the preferred stock in the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year.

WHEELING STEEL.

Corporation and subsidiaries reported for the March quarter net loss of $833,137 after charges, against net loss of $628,623 in the like period a year ago.

LEASES HOUSE AT 1258 LAKE SHORE DRIVE

Replica of Residence in Italy.

One of the Lake Shore drive's well known residences, the Italian style house at 1258, once known as the Aldis home, was leased yesterday by Edgar Lebensberger for a three year term at a reported term rental of $10,800. During the 1893 World's Fair days the house, the façade of which is said to be a replica of an ancient residence in Italy, was the scene of many social events. It contains twelve rooms and three baths. Miss Mary B. Anderson and H. W. Croxton were brokers.

Walter P. Paepcke, president of the Container Corporation of America, has sold the vacant 118x140 on the north side of Oakdale avenue, 274 feet east of Sheridan road, to Rosalie Sturges Carpenter for an undisclosed consideration. Mr. Paepcke purchased this property from Mrs. Carpenter some time ago, with the intention of building a residence. He gave up this idea and has conveyed the site back to her.

Some Uptown Leases.

Four leases are reported by H. W. Croxton & Co. in the uptown area. Max Maas has leased the store at 4447 Broadway for an egg and poultry market for a term of years. A store in the business block at the southwest corner of Wilson and Kenmore avenues, was leased by S. Harris, millinery, for several years. John C. Krietenstein was lessor.

Max Barwein has leased a store in the Ken-Lee hotel building, 1023 Leland avenue, for a radio store for a term of years. The store at 1025 Leland avenue has been rented by Vladimar Hansen for a wholesale and retail picture frame shop. The length of term and the rental were undisclosed.

In Same Block 28 Years.

One of the pioneer merchants of the uptown district, Max F. Schiff, clothier, who has been in the same block for the last twenty-eight years, has renewed his lease at 4621 Broadway, with the Bausenbach estate, according to H. W. Croxton & Co., who represented all parties. When Mr. Schiff first leased a store in this block he paid $65 per month rent. During the last three years his rental has been $550 monthly, according to Mr. Croxton.

NITRATE TRUST OMITS INTEREST ON DEBENTURES

New York, April 29.—(AP)—Interest due May 1 on Anglo-Chilean Consolidated Nitrate corporation 20 year 7 per cent sinking fund debenture bonds, due 1945, will not be paid, it was announced here today at the Guggenheim offices.

The entire stock of Compania Salitrera Anglo-Chilean, the Chilean company which took over all assets of Anglo-Chilean Consolidated Nitrate corporation, as well as these bonds, is owned by Cosach, the Amalgamated Chilean Nitrate company. Negotiations for reorganization of Cosach, under way in New York since the end of March, still continued, the announcement said.

"The marked reduction in consumption of nitrate throughout the world due to the present agricultural and economic crisis, necessitates the readjustment of Cosach upon a basis making possible for the merger to continue in the face of new world conditions," the statement added.

Sweden Extends Kreuger & Toll Firm's Moratorium

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 29.—(AP)—Extension until the end of May of the moratorium granted the Kreuger & Toll companies was approved by the government today.
